Investigation to fix responsibility for the deaths was started.

Charles Williams, former clerk in Mayor Thompson's office, is unaccounted for.

Fire Attorney Elmer Whitty, after an investigation of the premises, issued a statement which implied that Smith's moonshine operations were responsible for the spread of the blaze.

"Smith operated a second-hand furniture store on the first floor, lived with his wife and mother on the second floor, front, and devoted the basement to the manufacture of moonshine," the statement declared.

CHANGES IN RUHR COMING

Practical Isolation of France Expected to Follow Resignation of Belgian Cabinet

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune]

PARIS, June 21.—Complete or semi-isolation of France in the Ruhr occupation is regarded as a positive result of the Brussels Cabinet's resignation.

The loss of the moral support of Belgium to the French policy on reparations requires a complete revision of certain phases of Premier Poincare's projects. Sweeping, far-reaching changes in the Ruhr situation are expected to develop in the imminent future as a result.

If an entire new Cabinet is formed in Brussels, it is believed that a sharp-line cleavage with Quai d'Orsay will develop immediately, as the Flemish, Catholic and antimilitary leaders who are responsible for the downfall of Premier Theunis lean toward a moderation policy toward Germany.

If Theunis succeeds in lining up enough party leaders to permit reforming the Cabinet it is not expected that he will be able to keep Belgium solidly lined up in support of Premier Poincare, especially in view of the persistent powerful British efforts to effect a split.

Well-informed persons assert that Stanley Baldwin is optimistic over the situation and that he expects to find a solution of the Ruhr and reparations impasse, based on the certainty of eventually winning over Belgian support to the British policy, which already secretly has Italian sympathy.

The collapse of the mark is considered a German-made trick to assist the British in forcing the creditor Allies to a re-examination of reparations.

PARIS AGOG OVER VISIT OF MELLON

Conflicting Rumors Heard, Some on Reparations Row, Others on Ruhr Question

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, June 21.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's visit to Europe is awaited with the greatest interest everywhere and the wildest and most conflicting rumors are afloat as to the probable result.

Some insist that Mr. Mellon is acting in an agreement with Prime Minister Baldwin of England to settle the reparations question and others declare he is coming to negotiate continental debts.

It is understood important official personages already are arranging appointments for Mr. Mellon with most important French officials. The same is true in England, Germany, Belgium and Italy.

The French press asserts that Lord Robert Cecil has intimated to Wilhelmstrasse that a solution to the Ruhr problem is imminent after Mr. Mellon arrives, which is the reason Chancellor Cuno is maintaining the passive resistance and German financiers are holding out despite the downward plunge of the mark.

Spain Tangles With France Over Morocco

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADRID, June 21.—A difficult situation in the Riffian area, in Morocco, between France and Spain, was complicated tonight by advices from Tangier that the French are forming special police.

The French have given out that this action was taken as a protection against natives to prevent thefts, but it is believed it will be sure to result in clashes.

FRENCH RADICALS IN CABINET DEFY PARTY

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, June 21.—Three members of the Cabinet, who also are members of the radical party, have ignored summons by the executive committee of the radicals directing them to resign office in order to show their loyalty to the party which voted against Premier Poincare in the recent debate on interior politicals. The three are Minister of Colonies Sarraut, Minister of Health Strauss and Undersecretary for Posts and Telegraphs Laffont.

HEAT WAVE RELENTING

Three Score Dead in Five Cities

Thousands Camp in New York Parks; Four Die in Chicago

New England Factories Close When Workers Faint at Machines

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—Some relief from the scorching heat is predicted by the Weather Bureau for tomorrow. The local forecast today said that it would be fair and "somewhat cooler" with moderate northerly winds.

Eleven deaths as a result of the torrid temperature of yesterday and today were reported in and near the city.

The United States Weather Bureau at Washington announced today that the heat wave which has been sweeping the Middle West and the Eastern States would be broken tonight throughout the affected district.

Yesterday's official high temperature was 95, but street thermometers near the ground level showed 100 in the shade.

CLOTHING FOUND

Clothes found early today in a Coney Island bathhouse indicated to the police that a man had been drowned, but he may have decided to sleep in his bathing suit.

At Mayor Hylan's order the parks were opened to the public for the night and thousands took advantage of the comparative coolness there. The beaches, too, were lined with sleepers. Families advanced upon them carrying robes, pillows, and even collapsible cots. Special police protection was ordered for the parks and beaches, so that pickpockets would not reap a harvest.

HYDRANTS FLOW

The street shower baths in front of fire houses also were turned on throughout the night, and in the tenement-house districts the fire hydrants were allowed to flow at intervals to cool the streets.

Today's official high mark was 92, a mark which was maintained from about noon until after 4 o'clock. A good breeze in the afternoon did much to moderate the discomfort.

FOUR DIE IN CHICAGO

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 21. — Four deaths and scores of prostrations were caused by the excessive heat here today, which registered 91 deg.

The dead are: John Serence, 55 years old, of 691 Milwaukee avenue; Mary Fredericks, 59, 1826 West Seventeenth street; James Karos, 68, 2618 South Turner street, and Almanda Robinson, 50, 4138 Federal street.

Observer Henry J. Cox, in charge of the local Weather Bureau, held out no hope of relief.

Coats disappeared like snowflakes and every inch of Chicago's celebrated thirty-three miles of shore was cluttered up with bathers as the white hot sun sent the mercury higher.

Car lines leading from the West Side to the shore handled record crowds, for the thousands who live beyond the lake's influence began trekking eastward at daybreak, to spend as much of the day as the curfew laws permit close to the water.

In the west parks every pool and lagoon had its hundreds of barefoot kids, paddling for coolness. And on the red-hot streets of the tenement districts, where truck

BUCKET SHOPS ATTACKED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 21.—The house cleaning in Wall street, inaugurated after the failure of E. M. Fuller & Co. for $5,000,000 and disclosure that the house was one of the scores of bucket shops where brokers bet their brains against their customers' money, brought four important developments today.

They were:

(2.) Announcement that W. S. Silkworth, who has been sharply under fire because of his alleged relations with now bankrupt members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, had decided to resign the exchange presidency next Thursday and that Lawrence Tweedy, vice-president, slated to succeed him, would start immediately a thorough reorganization of the exchange.

(3.) Disciplinary action by the New York Curb Market against two members alleged to have committed acts injurious to the exchange. One was expelled and one suspended for a year.

(4.) Reports that powerful banking interests in the street had inaugurated a series of conferences to seek some means of stabilizing conditions in the financial zone. In this connection the statement last night of President Cromwell of the New York Stock Exchange that a movement was on foot to organize a pool to save houses subjected to runs was recalled.

The Attorney-General's drive announced last night, was begun in earnest today when he obtained from Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel temporary injunctions restraining the interlocking brokerage firms of W. W. Weese & Co. and J. H. Dube & Co. from bucketing or otherwise engaging in fraudulent stock transactions.

MEDICS GATHERING AT SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Representing the vanguard of approximately 10,000 doctors who are San Francisco bound, several hundred California physicians assembled today for the first gathering preliminary to the convention of the American Medical Association, which will open next Monday. The State delegates discussed preparations for the opening tomorrow of the sessions of the California State Medical Association, the first of which will be featured by an address by its president, Dr. H. G. Brainerd of Los Angeles. Meanwhile arrangements are being completed for the welcome and entertainment of the thousands who will flock here over the week-end for the national convention.

CHEER HARDING TO ECHO IN ST. LOUIS ADDRESS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) June 21.—Completing the first leg of his transcontinental trip here late today, President Harding entered on a round of activities that completely filled the eight-hour visit allotted to St. Louis. The Chief Executive addressed the annual convention of the International Rotary in session here, laid the corner-stone of a new City Club Building and made a short address there, shook hands with the crowds that thronged his hotel, delivered the first prepared address of his trip with the World Court as his subject, and attended a number of minor affairs.

The Presidential party left the train in Forest Park and Mr. and Mrs. Harding were placed at the head of an automobile procession that took them over a seven-mile route to downtown St. Louis. The pavements from the park were lined three or four deep and bands stationed at mile intervals hailed the President's arrival in advance of the procession.

At the Coliseum where the President made his first speech to the Rotarians, the doors were closed to all members of the private party except the President and his secretary. Police denied admission to all alike, including local authorities and newspapermen traveling with the President.

ADDRESSES ROTARY

Speaking to the Rotarians, the President declared that if he could found Rotary in every community throughout the world, he would do so and then would guarantee tranquility and a forward march for the universe.

"Statesmen have their problems and governments have theirs," the President declared, "but if you could plant the spirit of Rotary throughout the world and turn it to practical application, there would not be much wrong with the human procession.

Importance of good city government to good government in the nation was emphasized by the President in a brief address given after he had laid the cornerstone of the new home of the City Club.

GREAT NATION

"You can only have a great nation as you have great citizens" he declared. "Consequently those in charge of the national government have a real interest in the government of the cities."

Applause that echoed and re-echoed in the downtown streets greeted a declaration by the President that he liked "people who inquire how much can I contribute to my city rather than how much can I get out of my city." With that he coupled the assertion that "whenever man contributes to his city, he contributes to his own self.

After the cornerstone laying, the President and Mrs. Harding were driven to a hotel where a public reception was held, but the crush of the crowd in and about the hotel was so great that only a small

SEIZE RUM ON SHIPS

Foreign Seals to be Broken

Harding Regrets Britain Has Forced Issue With Government

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

WASHINGTON June 21.—Foreign ships bringing liquor, no matter how imposingly sealed, within American territorial waters in defiance of the law of Congress and the decision of the Supreme Court will receive short shrift from the agents of Uncle Sam and will depart minus the liquor.

When the British liner Berengaria docks at New York tomorrow with its supply of liquor for the homeward voyage locked up and plastered with the seals of His Majesty's government, United States customs agents unceremoniously will break the seals and seize the liquor as contraband under American law.

MODE OF SEIZURE

The customs service will take the liquor ashore, turn it over to the prohibition enforcement officer and take a receipt therefore. The captain of the Berengaria will file a formal protest with the customs officers against the seizure of the liquor and disregard of the British government seals and the protest will be forwarded to the Treasury Department.

This will be the procedure in the cases of the French and Italian liners and all other ships resorting to the device of attaching the seals of their respective governments to liquor supplies reserved for beverable uses by passengers and crews on homeward bound voyages from the United States. Foreign government seals will not be respected and the liquor so sealed will be seized for confiscation under the Volstead Act as interpreted by the Supreme Court.

MAY GO TO COURT

Whether this new effort to circumvent the American prohibition law will go farther than the protests filed by masters of vessels remains to be seen. The Cunard and other steamship lines might seek relief in the American courts on the theory that liquor under foreign government seal presents circumstances differing from those on which the Supreme Court based its decision that no liquor for beverage purposes could be brought lawfully within the three-mile limit.

If the British government stands behind the Cunard and White Star Steamship Companies in this latest move to escape the rigors of American prohibition, British Ambassador Geddes presumably will protest to Secretary of State Hughes with a view to establishing by diplomatic negotiation the immunity from seizure of any article held on a British ship particularly under British government seal. The administration already has stated that it would not agree to the submission of the question of any international tribunal for settlement because the matter involved is one of the application of domestic law within the United States.

CONFERS NO IMMUNITY

The attachment of a government seal confers no immunity it is held by the Treasury Department, else any contraband article could be brought in and customs dues even evaded by such device.

The decision to seize the sealed liquor on incoming ships was reached by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon this afternoon after he had conference with Assistant Secretary Moss in charge of customs, Attorney Britt of the Prohibition Unit, Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair and finally with Secretary Hughes. The Secretary of State informed Mellon that the question was entirely one of enforcement of the law by the Treasury Department with which the State Department is not concerned and will not be concerned unless foreign governments join the issue.

Secretary Hughes having raised no obstacles Secretary Mellon announced that the law would be enforced by the seizure of the liquor. In the meantime H. C. Stuart, deputy collector of the port of New York, had called in the Cunard agent and inquired the in-

FARRAR AND THE PRINCE

German Romance of Geraldine

American Singer Said to Have Cast Spell Over Heir Apparent

Former Kaiser Put Stop to Affair, Says Biographer of Hohenzollern

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN June 21.—Adolph Kreutzer, one of the few men who knew Crown Prince Frederick William well enough to be able to write about his romances, while preparing for the publication of a few short sketches about "the Crown Prince and the women in his life," today gave unpublished details concerning one romance which interests America more than any other—that of Geraldine Farrar and the heir to the German throne.

It has been a widely discussed romance, but only a few know the real truth about it. Herr Kreutzer tells of the deep impression the great American artist made on the Crown Prince. "Celebrated for her beauty and for her art in all circles of Berlin, Geraldine was invited to sing before the Kaiserin and her most intimate friends at her Berline castle," Herr Kreutzer says. "She sang with the greatest success and one of the most enthusiastic among those present was the Crown Prince.

WAS UNDER SPELL

"The Crown Prince from the first minute that Geraldine sang was under her spell. He did not take his eyes from her for a minute.

"When she stopped singing, the heir to the German throne, stepped forward with almost touching shyness and yet impulsively said to her, 'Let us be good friends, dear Miss Farrar.' She answered gaily, 'We will become the best of friends,' and Geraldine was right," says Herr Kreutzer.

"It is certain that there is no woman for whom the Crown Prince ever felt more respect and love. Their friendship grew steadily and the Crown Prince never tried to hide it, for months he was absolutely in her power, calling on her for tea, and never making any efforts to conceal his visits though his friends urged him to do so to save appearances.

"It was not only due to the lack of hypocrisy on the part of the Crown Prince that the whole town heard about the romance.

FATHER GOOD ADVERTISER

"Geraldine's father was a very smart advertiser and he told everybody about the romance surrounding his daughter with the sensational glamour of imperialistic chivalry. He succeeded in the shortest time in making it known all

WORLD COURT ISSUE PLAIN

Harding in St. Louis Speech Demands Absolute Divorce of Plan From League of Nations

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—President Harding in his first formal address on his Alaskan trip here demanded an absolute divorce of the World Court from the League of Nations. At the same time he suggested reservations that apparently assure favorable Senate action on his modified plan for entry into the world court on the American plan, the eliminating of a division in the Republican party and the exclusion of the World Court issue as a factor in the next Presidential campaign.

If the President's speech may be taken as a definite plan, Political experts with his special train believe that the net result will be legislation in the Senate at the coming session which will give to the world the basis on which the United States become a member of the World Court. That accomplished the final result will await the action of other government now sponsors of the World court as to whether the terms of the United States for admission will be granted and in the meantime further discussion of the World court will cease to be a factor in Republican conference and the campaign of 1924 will depend on other issues.

BOLDNESS IS SURPRISE

The boldness of the Chief Executive's demand for reservations came as a surprise to many of the thousands gathered in the coliseum, where Senator Borah a month ago denounced the plan of the United States in participating in the world Court, for they expected that Senator Borah would be answered emphatically and were not prepared for reservations equal in intensity to those suggested by Henry Cabot Lodge and other conservative leaders of the Senate.

Missouri has been the battle ground of the League of Nations, and is the home of Senator James Reed, the leader of the Democratic bitter-enders. It was assumed that President Harding chose to make his speech in Missouri to answer some of the critics of his original submission of the court issue to the Senate last March, and no one was prepared for the suggestions offered for the entire reorganization of the court, its utter divorce from the League of Nations and its modifications to admit the United States on a basis satisfactory to domestic Republican policies.

Summed up, the comment, after the delivery of the speech, is that President Harding has determined on harmonizing all the elements of the Republican party before the Presidential campaign begins, and hopes to eliminate as finished legislation all reference to the World Court before the hour comes for the national contest.

During the day all through Indiana large and enthusiastic crowds greeted the President, and the indications were that cordial good will existed in these communities for the Chief Executive. In many of the towns the President made brief speeches from the rear platform, and his remarks brought forth applause and apparent approval. Speeches were made at Vincennes, Washington, Mitchell and other centers. One of the notable features was the apparent cordial feeling at railroad headquarters, evidenced by the railroad shop workers toward President Harding. He was in every instance greeted as a real friend, and apparently the feeling shown him was one of genuine understanding.

TRIBUNAL SEEN AS SAFE COURSE FOR AMERICA

President Cites International Body as Sound in Theory; Country to Enjoy Equal Rights

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—The following is the complete text of President Harding's address here tonight: My Countrymen: In an official journey from Washington to our great Territory of Alaska, our first stop halts us in your hospitable city, and affords an opportunity for renewed acquaintance and better understanding. I suppose it is perfectly natural expectation that when the President travels he must stop and must report to the community he is seeking to serve. It has seemed to me that nearly every city and village from the Potomac to the Pacific has bestowed an invitation and a tender of hospitality.

I like to say to you, because in saying it to you, I am speaking to many others in this marvelous age of communication, that I very genuinely regret the impossibility of accepting all of them. Quite apart from the personal satisfaction and renewed assurance in direct contact with our people, I think there is vast benefit in bringing the government a little closer to the people, and the people a little closer to government and closer to those temporarily charged with official responsibility.

You view government from afar, and I am not surprised that you wonder now and then, because you receive occasional reflexes which are so erroneous, that official Washington itself cannot understand them. And, those of us who are in Washington live in an atmosphere of officialdom which often hinders our knowledge of thoughts around the American fireside, and the activities which daily make the essential life of the nation. These are conditions not easily to be avoided. Our government is the biggest business in the world, and like any other business, it requires the management to be more or less diligently at work.

RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

Congress has been more or less continually in session for eight years, and under our co-ordinated form of government, the President must be more or less "in session" at the same time. So I have welcomed this opportunity to see the great central valley, the mountain West, the Pacific Coast and our treasure land in Alaska. I am rejoiced to speak to you as your President, reporting on the state of affairs to the stockholders of this republic.

I do not come with a partisan report, though I am politically a partisan, and believe in the utter necessity of political parties. One only serves his party by first serving his country well, and good service to his country ought to be the aspiration of every citizen of our land.

The present national administration came into responsibility at a very difficult time. Our country found itself in a bad way in the aftermath of world war. We had expended in heedlessness, we had inflated in madness, we had rushed into the abnormal, and found ten thousand difficulties in resuming our normal stride. There was the inevitable business slump. It follows every war. It applies to business in every line—finance, industry, agriculture.

PERIOD OF STRESS

And, business reflexes are felt by every citizen, no matter how humble or how great. We found in the inevitable reflux of the war-tide threatened financial ability, agricultural distress and vast unemployment. A survey of unemployment revealed four and a half to five millions of workers without jobs. I leave the appraisal of all relief efforts, legislative, executive or administrative to your own judgment. The thing I want to say is that this distressing situation has been wholly reversed and today employment is calling for men. There is complaint about that, too, but since we cannot always preserve the actual balance, I prefer a land which is seeking workmen to a country where discouraged men are hunting for jobs.

I like to believe that the recovery is based mainly on confidence in the American policy and the fundamental righteousness of our institutions. I like to believe we have recovered because we avoid the paths of destructive experimentation, ignore mad theories, and cling tenaciously to the foundations of business and property rights and human rights, which have made ours the most rapidly and most safely developed representative democracy in all the world.

FINANCIAL STABILITY

We have done more than banish unemployment; we have made our way to financial stability, without which there is little permanent employment. And we halted the extremists who caught their inspiration in European madness, and proposed to destroy our social order because of temporary ills, rather than cure the ills.

I believe America tonight is a fine example to the world, with confidence in herself, of a people capable of laying aside their arms, grappling a reconstruction problem and digging down to hard work to effect the needed restoration rather than to fling aside all we had wrought in a century of hopeful progress, and thereby subscribe to destruction in the name of social democracy.

We gave business a chance to resume, and assured it that honest success is no crime in the United States. We assured it that the government wasn't going into business, but that we meant to get out of it. Then to prove that we meant to have more business in government, we struck at the extravagance which grew in war's fevered activities, we pruned government expenditures and reduced the government personnel, not by thousands, but by tens of thousands, and went a long way in reducing government outlay.

CUT TAX BURDEN

Measures were adopted to lighten the taxation load and distribute the burdens more equitably. We sought to substitute for the exactions of war, the convictions of peace. We inaugurated the budget system of government financing and thereby effected reductions in government outlay amounting to billions. Of course, this enormous reduction was made possible mainly because we suspended war activities and ended war commitments, but we drove at the ordinary expenditures in the peacetime business of government, and lopped off hundreds of millions at a time, and we have proven to the world, in spite of a gigantic debt and its interest burdens, that there is a government resolved to live within its income.

The fiscal year, now near its close, threatened a $800,000,000 deficit when its financial budget was in the making, but we cut and trimmed, and insisted upon reduced expenditures, and it will close with a $200,000,000 surplus.

These are dull facts, but they are interesting to the government because they afford the proof that the government itself joined in the tremendously essential task of striking at its own cost. We were always keeping in mind the people who pay, in lifting our country out of the slough of depression and despondency.

ON RIGHT TRACK

In the simplest expression possible, we were trying to get this great country of ours on the right track again. The anxiety was in behalf of no one interest, but for all interests. We were anxious alike for the great captain of industry and his working army. We had concern for him whom we sometimes call the little chap, who makes up the great industrial procession, but who is little noted because he walks in the ranks, but whose good fortune is a foremost essential to a national happiness and contentment. We safeguarded against our own destruction being effected by the world's demoralization, but we never hindered the world's honest efforts at recovery.

On the whole, we contemplate fortunate conditions today, and I believe they are going to abide. We are the most prosperous people in the world. I do not share the belief that we have effected only temporary relief. I never did share the convictions of many men that our permanent recovery could only come after complete collapse, which we have so happily avoided.

It is too early now to safely appraise the competition of the world restored, but the world must take cognizance of the new order as well as we. War brought an emancipation of men and changed conditions of production which the Old World must recognize before a stable order is restored to it. Our recovery is based on a prompt recognition of the new order, socially just and economically sound, and I am sure we will carry on.

FUTURE CONFIDENCE

It is very gratifying to contemplate our conditions at home, wrought amid many manifestations of impatience, but, in spite of discouragements, the record is made, I share your gratification, and have full confidence for the morrow.

These things, briefly related, with great satisfaction in progress made, are meant to serve as a foundation for a wholly frank statement to you of St. Louis and Missouri, and to all the United States, concerning my convictions about the attitude of this republic toward other nations of the world. The President's impressions concerning international relationships are necessarily founded upon official experience which can come, because of the duties of office, to none other except the Secretary of State.

The endless problems of foreign relations are relatively little revealed to the world. Most frequently they are more readily adjusted because they are not revealed, though it is fair to assure you that nothing of vital importance is unduly hidden from the people for whom the government speaks.

GRAVE PROBLEMS

Week by week, day by day, often hour by hour, there are problems in our international relations which are no more to be avoided than the vital questions of our own relationships at home. The citizen who believes in aloofness is blind to inescapable obligations and insensible to the twentieth-century world order and unmindful of our commercial interdependence about which the modern business fabric has come to be woven.

In his never-to-be-forgotten farewell address, in which the first President compressed the gospel of our mutual interests at home and our proper relations abroad, he said:

"Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct. And can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it? . . . The experiment, at least, is recommended by every sentiment which ennobles human nature. Alas, is it rendered impossible by its vices?"

EXALTED JUSTICE

This solemn admonition was addressed by George Washington to his fellow-countrymen 127 years ago. That it has been heeded scrupulously we are proud to assume the world believes. That we have, indeed, observed good faith and have exalted justice above all other agencies of civilization, barring only Christianity, surely none can deny with truth.

And we have cultivated peace, not academically and passively, merely, but in practical ways and by active endeavors. Even as Washington appended his signature to his most memorable and far-reaching declaration, a new principle had been written into the treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States, had been sustained by the Congress, at his resolute insistence, and was in full force and effect. That principle was arbitration, which was not only employed successfully at the time, but became from that moment an established policy of the republic, from which, to this day, there has been no departure.

CULTIVATE PEACE

Thus, clearly, by the method already operative in substituting reason for prejudice, law for obduracy and justice for passion, the father of his country bade us, no less than his contemporaries, not merely to countenance and uphold, but actively to cultivate and promote peace. It is with that high purpose in mind and at heart, men and women of America, that I advocate participation by the United States in the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Two conditions may be considered indispensable:

First, that the tribunal be so constituted as to appear and to be, in theory and in practice, in form and in substance, beyond the shadow of doubt, a World Court, not a League court.

Second, that the United States shall occupy a place of perfect equality with other powers.

NOT FOR LEAGUE

There is no consequential dispute among us concerning the League of Nations. There are yet its earnest advocates, but the present administration has said, repeatedly and decisively, that the League is not for us. There admittedly is a League connection with the World Court. We cannot hope to get anywhere except in the frankest understanding of fact. The authors of the court protocol co-operating with a brilliant American leadership, turned to the League organization for the court electorate, to solve a problem in choosing judges heretofore unsolvable.

Though I firmly believe we could adhere to the court protocol, with becoming reservation, and be free from every possible obligation to the League, I would frankly prefer the court's complete independence of the League.

Just as frankly, let me say that I have not held it seemly, in view of the oft-repeated declaration favorable to the World Court establishment, to say to the nations which have establish very much what we wished that they must put aside their very commendable creation because we do not subscribe to its every detail, or fashion it all anew and to our liking in every specific detail before we offer our assistance in making it a permanent agency of improved international relationship.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Government can never successfully undertake the solution of a great problem unless it can frankly submit it to the people. It is for these reasons that I confess these objections. I recognize the constitutional requirement of Senate ratification, and I believe that the tide of public sentiment will be reflected in the Senate. I am so eager for the ultimate accomplishment that I am interested in harmonizing opposing elements; more anxious to effect our helpful commitment to the court than I am to score a victory for Executive insistence. Let us, therefore, appraise some of the determining factors which must be considered in hopefully mapping our course.

Nearly three years ago, by an overwhelming majority, the people rejected the proposal of the administration then in power to incorporate the United States in the League of Nations. To assert that those 16,000,000 voters did not know what they were doing is to insult their intelligence and to deny the facts.

Whatever other considerations may have influenced their judgment were purely incidental. The paramount issue, boldly, defiantly advanced in unmistakable terms by the Democratic party and espoused by the Democratic candidate for President, was indorsement of the League. The President. I dislike the use of party names in dealing with a problem which has now passed far beyond party association, but I want the World Court proposal utterly disassociated with any intention of entrance into the League, and recite the history to paint the background.

EARNEST HOPE

Moreover, I am so earnest in my desire to have the United States give support to the court that I would gladly wipe out factional difference to effect the great accomplishment.

If the country had desired to join the League in 1920, it had its opportunity. It most emphatically refused. It would refuse again, no less decisively, today.

There has been no change in condition. It is the same League. Not a line in the rejected covenant has been altered, not a phrase modified, not a word omitted or added. Article X still stands as the heart of the compact. Article XI and all other stipulations objected to and condemned by the American people remain untouched, in full force in theory, however, circumspectly they are being ignored in practice.

In the face of the overwhelming verdict of 1920, therefore, the issue of the League of Nations is as dead as slavery. Is it not the part of wisdom and common sense to let it rest in the deep grave to which it has been consigned, and turn our thoughts to living things?

ASKS CO-OPERATION

But let there be no misunderstanding. I did not say three years ago, and I do not say now, that there is no element in the League organization which might be utilized advantageously in striving to establish helpful, practical co-operation among the nations of the earth. On the contrary, I recognized generally then, and perceive more precisely now, rudiments of good in both the League and The Hague tribunal.

Having marked the fundamental difference between a Court of International Justice, which I espoused, and the council set up by the League covenant, which I disapproved, as the difference between a government of laws and a government of men, I said plainly on August 28, 1920: "I would take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad from both organizations."

That is exactly what I am now proposing to do. The abstract principle of a World Court found its genesis in The Hague tribunal. The concrete application of that principle has been made by the League. Sound theory and admirable practice have been joined successfully The court itself is not only firmly established but has clearly demonstrated its utility and efficiency.

OF HIGH ORDER

It is a true judicial tribunal. Its composition is of the highest order. None better, none freer from self-ish partisan, national or racial prejudicies or influences could be obtained. That, to the best of my information and belief, is a fact universally admitted and acclaimed. I care not whence the court came. I insist only that its integrity, its independence, its complete and continuing freedom be safeguarded absolutely.

The sole question is whether the requirements which I have enumerated as essential to adherence by the United States can be met. My answer is that where there is a unanimous will, a way can always be found. I am not wedded irrevocably to any particular method. I would not assume for a moment that the readjustment of the existing arrangement which appears to my mind as feasible is the best, much less the only one. But, such as it is, I submit it, without excess of detail, as a basis for consideration, discussion and judgment.

Granting the noteworthy excellence, of which I, for one, am fully convinced, of the court as now constituted, why not proceed in the belief that it may be made self-perpetuating? This could be done in one of two ways, (1) by empowering the court itself to fill any vacancy arising from the death of a member or retirement for whatever cause, without interposition from any other body; or (2) by continuing the existing authority of the permanent court of arbitration to nominate and by transferring the power to elect from the council and assembly of the League to the remaining members of the Court of Justice.

EXPENDITURES

The fixing of compensation of the judges, the supervision of expenditures, the apportionment of contributions, etc., could also be transferred from the League to either the court of arbitration or a commission designated by the member nations. Thus, incidentally, would be averted the admitted unfairness of the present system, which imposes a tax upon members of the League who are not subscribers to the court.

The exclusive privilege now held by the League to seek advisory legal guidance from the court might either be abolished, or more wisely, perhaps, be extended to any member or group of member nations. Thus, all would be served alike, subject as now to determination by the court itself of the kind of questions upon which it would render judgments.

The disparity in voting as between a unit nation and an aggregated empire, which now maintains in the assembly of the League, to which many object, because of apprehensions which I do not share, would, under this plan, disappear automatically.

UP TO SENATE

These observations are not to be construed as suggesting changes in the essential statute of the court, or the enlargement or diminution of its numerical strength, or modifying the proper provision that a nation having a cause before the court, which is not represented among the judges, may name one of its own nationals to sit in that particular case.

Such, in brief, is an outline of the basis upon which I shall hope, at the opening of Congress, for the consent of the Senate to initiate negotiations with the powers which have associated themselves with the permanent Court of International Justice.

"No program could be devised that would win unanimous approval either at home or abroad. We can not hope to attain perfection or to satisfy extreme demands. The best and the most we can do is to appeal, let us hope successfully, to reasonable minds and, with sturdy faith, be true to ourselves and ready for our duties as liberty-loving, duty-realising Americans.

"There are those who openly advocate our proposed association with the Court of Justice as a first step toward joining the League of Nations. Their number is not large, and they cannot hope to prevail. There are those who, in fear and trembling, proclaim their opinion that this mighty republic should live as a hermit nation. They, too, are few and hold to an impossible position. Both are extremists. In an endeavor to obtain actual results, both may be safely omitted from serious consideration.

AGE-LONG DESIRE

But two great groups, comprising a vast majority of our people, need to be considered. And, between these there lies no difference in professed desire. I am striving for fulfilment of that expressed desire. Both urge participation of the United States in a world court of justice, in fulfilment of our age-long aspiration, and in conformity with our unbroken tradition. They agree that to achieve its fundamental purpose of substituting justice for warfare in the settlement of controversies between nations, such a tribunal must be its own master. The distinction between the two is not one of essential principle, or of avowed intent, but only of fact and opinion.

There are those who hold that the creation of the existing court under a distinct protocol, instead of directly under the covenant of the League, removes every tincture of subservience or obligation. For present purposes, granting its correctness, there can be no real objection to clarifying the fact in plain, simple terms, to the end that all doubts shall be dispelled and that all minds shall be wholly convinced by ready understanding instead of being ony partially persuaded by intricate exposition.

UNQUESTIONED FAITH

If, as we all believe, the cornerstone of every judicial structure is unquestioning faith in its integrity, I am unwilling to deprive it of any particle of strength which would enhance popular respect for and confidence in its decisions. Surely no harm, but rather much good might spring from simplification of an admitted condition.

The other large group comprises those who, while equally earnest in advocacy of an international tribunal, regard the present court with suspicion because of its origin. This objection, for reasons which I have noted, is unimportant. Indeed, from a practical viewpoint, I consider it a matter of distinct congratulation that there is in existence a body which already has justified itself, upon its merits, by demonstration of its character and capabilities.

If American adherence could be made effective in the reconstruction of the court with respect to its continuing operation, that would seem to dispose conclusively of all other cited apprehensions of danger from the exercise of any influence, whatsoever, either open or furtive, by the League of Nations or by any other organization.

TEST SINCERITY

The whole question of support or opposition on the part of these two controlling groups clearly resolves into a test of sincerity. When once American citizens have comprehended that vital point, I shall have no doubt of their answer.

I have taken very frank cognizance of the avowed objections, because we have come to this very test of sincerity. Except for the very inconsiderable minority, which is hostile to any participation in world effort toward security, which our better impulses are ever urging, there is overwhelming sentiment favorable to our support of a world court.

But I want the United States to give its influence to the World Court already establish. Since any adherence must be attended by reservations I am willing to give consideration to our differences at home and thereby remove every threatening obstacle worth considering, so we may go wholeheartedly to the world with an authorized tender of support.

So much for the domestic phases of this problem. But there is another. I hear the voice of the doubter: "This is all very well, but it cannot be done. The forty nations, which have signed the protocol will refuse to make these changes. They have formulated their plans, have arranged their procedure, have constructed their machinery, have established a going concern; they are not only themselves content, but they can see no reason why the few remaining powers should not be equally satisfied with the result of their endeavors. They will resent the mere suggestion of such proposals by the United States as an attempt at dictation.

SHUN INTERFERENCE

It would be an act of discourtesy, if not indeed of unfriendliness on the part of the American government to approach them along these lines. They will not spurn the offer. They will not brook interference from an outsider; they will not consent to upset or modify their fait accompli. The whole project will fall to the ground."

To which I reply: Primarily, at this time, it is to satisfy the acknowledged hope and to comply with the earnest wish of our sister States that we are striving to find a way to join and strengthen the one body created by them which bears promise of eliminating the need of war to regulate international relations. We wish no more of war.

To submit terms which we consider essential to the preservation of our nationality is not an act of discourtesy; it is the only fair, square and honorable thing a great, self-respecting nation can do. So far from being unfriendly it springs from a sincere desire, through frank and intimate association to help to restore stability, and, in the words of Washington to "cultivate peace" throughout the world.

NO SUPPLIANT

Manifestations of resentment at our pursuing this natural and usual course would appear far less as evidences of indignation than would attend a course of aloofness, or an utter disregard for so notable an international endeavor.

The United States is not a suppliant. Nor has it the slightest desire to become a master. It is, and must be an equal, no more and no less, regardless of its relative material power or moral authority, ever conscious of its own rights, but never denying the like, in even proportion, to another.

And, what is the crux of conditions which I have ventured to suggest as constituting a basis for negotiation?

The making of the World Court precisely what its name implies, and for which we have so earnestly spoken.

Can it be possible that, despite their protestations to the contrary, this is not what some of our sister States at heart desire? Must there be a test of sincerity abroad as well as at home? Then the more quickly it can be made, the better for them and the better for us. There is nothing to be accomplished in ambiguity. We want to know. And the only way to find out is to inquire.

STANDS SQUARELY

Very recently a striking message was flashed through the air from Rome to Washington. "Tell America," said the vigorous Prime Minister, "that I like her, like her direct. I wish Italy to be the same and shall try to make her so." God speed him, and God grant that America shall never forfeit the high honor borne by that sentient tribute from Mussolini!

I cannot doubt that you will accord, at least the merit of simplicity and directness to what I have said. Understand clearly I do not advocate compromise. I merely reiterate and stand squarely for every pledge I have made. I still reject as unwise, untraditional and un-American any foreign political alliance or entanglement.

I still "favor with all my heart association of free nations animated by considerations of right and justice instead of might and self-interest, so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility." I strongly urge adherence to the permanent court of international justice as the one and only existing "agency of peace," to which we can safely subscribe without violating the basic principles of our national being.

I neither advance, nor retreat from the position which I assumed in my recent message to the Senate. My sole purpose to sight has been to amplify the constructive suggestion which at what appeared to be a proper time, I placed before the country for consideration and judgment. Broadly and yet I trust with sufficient particularity, I have indicated ways and means for realization of our common aspirations.

Further than that I shall not go. I shall not attempt to coerce the Senate of the United States. I shall make no demand upon the people. I shall not try to impose my will upon any bodies or any body. I shall embark upon no crusade. Hereafter, from time to time, as tonight, acting strictly within, but to the full limit of my constitutional authority, I shall make further exposition of my matured views and maturing proposals, to the end that we not only "remind the world anew" by our words, but convince the world by our deeds, that we do in fact, stand "ready to perform our part in furthering peace," and in regaining the common prosperity which can come only through the restoration of stability in all affairs.

But I shall not restrict my appeal to your reason. I shall call upon your patriotism. I shall beseech your humanity. I shall invoke your Christianity. I shall reach to the very depths of your love for your fellowmen of whatever race or creed throughout the world. I shall speak, as I speak now, with all the earnestness and power of the sincerity that is in me, and in perfect faith that God will keep clear and receptive your understanding.

FOR PEACE

I could not do otherwise. My soul yearns for peace. My heart is anguished by the sufferings of war. My spirit is eager to serve. My passion is for justice over force. My hope is in the great court. My mind is made up. My resolution is fixed.

I pass from Washington to Lincoln, "with malice toward none, with charity for all," accurately depicts our attitude toward other nations. All in equal measure hold our sympathy in their distress and our hope for the quick coming of better days. We would make no invidious comparisons.

It is but natural, nevertheless, that we should feel, and it is proper that we should express due appreciation of conduct which conforms notably to our own conceptions of what honor, integrity, sagacity, and gratitude require of self-respecting nations. I consider it eminently fitting at this time to voice the keen admiration and enhanced regard of this country for Great Britain as an immediate consequence of her frank acknowledgement and sturdy assumption of a financial obligation which, though incurred for the preservation of her very existence, added materially to her already heavy burdens.

JUST RECOGNITION

Nor can I withhold from the German democracy just recognition of its new government's clear manifestation of faith in our consciousness of fairness as the chief requisite of a peace settlement between her government and ours, and of our disinterestedness in all matters pertaining to the adjustment of European affairs.

It has ever been an irresistible impulse of our liberty loving people to welcome a triumph of democracy over autocracy, and a substitution of popular government for monarchical domination. Hence our earnest hope that a just settlement, terms of which we do not pretend to indicate, will be made in Europe, satisfying the just dues of democratic and heroic France, so that Germany may make good in her promises of reparations, and therein German democracy may establish a national honor which the monarchy had not conceived, and then take her place in support of the permanent court of international justice.

AS TO MEXICO

Our neighbor to the south for whom we have only good will and good hope, will soon, I trust, be in a position to make practicable resumption of international relations with this country, and, following that happy event, what more natural than that we, too, along with Germany, should let us hope, Tender our company the United States terms equality restored to fare, into the great it will become indeed a court.

Thus, briefly, my friends, I have revealed the hopeful promise of my mind and the yearning of my heart. I feel that the time for America to take a long stride in restoration of late and despaired of, will come, and that the way will be clear, though far, before us. May our vision never be dimmed by spectres of disaster, or of dismay!

If, in our search for world peace, we but let God be humbly but daringly "the only light" of divine inspiration for human brotherhood, a star in the Heavens, the most beautiful hope, and God will not let us fail.

NEGRO WHO SOUGHT TO RULE SEN

"PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT AFRICA" GETS FIVE YEARS IN PRISON

SCENE IN COURT

NEW YORK, June 21.—Marcus Garvey, negro leader, was convicted by Federal Judge Mayer today to serve five years in Atlanta prison and to pay a $1000 fine for using the mails to defraud.

So many officers were in court when the sentence, which was the maximum, was imposed on Garvey's admirers broke through the guard and wrung the hand of the leader, who took the court's pronouncement indifferently.

One woman dropped to her knees on the hot pavement and cried out: "Dear God, Christ died on the cross for the negro; they are punishing Garvey. Dear God, protect him." She was a mighty chorus of voices.

Other women quieted her and called down benedictions on the convicted man.

FANS PRESIDENT

When the Governor was speaking Mrs. Harding fanned the President, who wore a heavy cutaway.

President, before plunging into his prepared address, spoke a few words of appreciation of what had been extended him and Mrs. Harding in St. Louis. He departed from his manuscript early in the speech to say to Gov. Hyde, who had mentioned waterway development, that he would discuss that subject tomorrow night in Kansas City.

The first outburst of applause came when he told of the removal of unemployment.

Applause amplifying apparatus carried the President's voice to all parts of the big hall which holds 15,000. Radio instruments also were set up the speaker's words and carried them over a large section of the Middle West.

APPLAUD SAVINGS

Reference to savings through the postal system drew applause.

Cheering and shouts greeted the President's first reference to the World Court, and there was additional applause when he pronounced a statement that the country would refuse again, no less emphatically" than in 1920 to enter the League of Nations, got applause but the assertion that the League of Nations is dead as slavery" was passed by the audience.

The President's suggestion for the creation of the creative machinery of the court was listened to attentively by the audience, remaining in the hot hall.

REVERSES POLICY

In presenting his suggestions, after reading departed from his prepared address to say that in the matter of the World Court proposal, the general course had been reversed by the Executive had presented the matter first to the Senate instead of negotiating an agreement and laying it before the Senate as a second step.

Probably the loudest applause during the address came when he declared he was determined not to change his will upon any body or any body. The President concluded his address at 9:27 o'clock.

ETNA BREAKS LOOSE AGAIN

rest of the Sicilian mountains, but was formed of lava by volcanic eruptions in the Tertiary age.

"The first great eruption is on record in 396 B. C. The most destructive eruption in modern times occurred in 1628, when forty towns were buried under lava, which reached to the sea. About 75,000 people were killed. In ancient times the lava flow in some cases lasted two and three years. In more recent times the flows have lasted three months.

"There were nineteen important eruptions during the last century. This is the fifth eruption in this century. The present eruption seems to be the largest in 200 years.

"With all this misfortune the people in the Etna zone are so attached to their lands that they will not leave them. Their struggle against the destructive force of nature is most touching. As soon as the danger passes they return to reconstruct their dwellings and retill the ground, which often is a herculean job. They must use dynamite and other mechanical means to break the lava and it means years of patient labor. They deserve the greatest admiration."

Premier Mussolini arrived here just before noon today and was acclaimed with the greatest enthusiasm by the population, whose hope that their town will be saved is increasing each day. While Premier Mussolini visited the lava front two army planes with expert geologists with photographic apparatus were flying over the eruption zone. The planes were ordered to perform reconnoitering duty as in war times and to report the movement of the lava up in the high regions in order to warn the inhabitants on the slopes and on the plains.

Later Premier Mussolini visited Catania, which was all beflagged, where he was acclaimed with boundless, indescribable enthusiasm.

Now that Ambassador Child is coming to Catania to visit the eruption zone on the cruiser Pittsburg, under command of Admiral Andrew, he will be received by the Sicilians with immense gratitude. This zone furnished in recent years tens of thousands of emigrants to the United States. Since many of the population have been to America they consider America as their second home. Great preparations have been made to receive Ambassador Child tomorrow morning.

SHIPS' LIQUOR TO BE SEIZED

tentions of the company in the case of the Berengaria. The agent said the Berengaria was bringing a supply of liquor for the homeward voyage under seal of the British customs service. He admitted that seizure of the liquor notwithstanding the seal was expected and that a test of the right of seizure was desired. He said that the master of the Berengaria would have his protests ready to file when the seals are broken and the liquor seized.

REGRET EXPRESSED

Administration officials expressed regret that British ship lines had seen fit to force the issue to a point that it likely to produce unfortunate complications between the United States on the one side and Great Britain, France, Italy and other nations on the other side. They had hoped that foreign nations would consent to abide by the law as interpreted by the Supreme Court until Congress meets and has an opportunity to amend the Volstead Act. President Harding already has indicated an intention to recommend an amendment in the interest of preserving international comity which would permit foreign ships to bring liquor in under seal for beverage use on the homeward voyage.

The Supreme Court indicated that Congress had the right to sanction such an exemption as it already had done in the case of liquor transported through the Panama Canal and over the Panama Canal railroad.

ROME, June 21.—The Italian Deputy, Signor Cotugno, has just published a volume on the Chamber of Deputies which is entitled "Montecitorio," and in which there are many piquant revelations and anecdotes of Italian Parliamentary life. According to the author, who is a parliamentarian of much experience, the customs and manners of the Chamber have not improved in time.

The war has brought in its train much violence of language, and the epithets that Deputies have cast at one another in recent parliaments, such as "spy," "coward," "rascal," "bought and sold," "buffoon," etc., would not have been possible in the peaceful antiwar days.

Tumults, free-for-alls and fights between individual members distinguished the two parliaments that followed the armistice. Especially was that the case in the sessions when the young Fascist party arrived on the scene to challenge the overbearing Socialists. With the advent of Mussolini to power, it must be acknowledged that this kind of thing has virtually ceased.

SESSIONS ORDERLY

The sessions in the present Chamber are, as a rule, extremely orderly. Signor Cotugno notes that in some of the parliaments which preceded the present one there were often as many as 100 Deputies who brought themselves under the penal code for various offenses, such as slander, exciting to class hatred, outrage of public officials, electoral corruption, etc.

Some of the epigrams and criticisms of famous parliamentarians against their colleagues cited by Signor Cotugno are very interesting. Signor Nitti is credited with some biting mots at the expense of his opponents and fellow-Deputies. According to the author of "Montecitorio," Signor Nitti once referred to Signor Boselli as "a vase of tear gas."

TELLS OF FIRE EATERS

The Socialist Deputy, Modigliani, was spoken of by the ex-Premier as "a cannon that fires from the breech and often kills a friend." The Honorable Luzzatti gave it as his opinion of Signors Orlando and Sonnino that "the former spoke at Versailles in all the languages he didn't know, while Sonnino was silent in all the languages he did know."

Of Signor Cocco-Ortu, the old friend of Signor Giolitti, some one said that "he eats real nails with false teeth." Signor Cotugno reports this story of the Honorable Tittoni, who was bringing in a bill at a moment when the Cabinet's position was very uncertain. The Socialists cried out, "This is a will!" "If it is," answered Tittoni, "there's no legacy for you in it."

Liquor Agents' Work Scored by Foulke in Talk

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—Federal enforcement of prohibition has provided the blackest spot on government service in the history of the nation, William Dudley Foulke of Richmond, Ind., president of the Civil Service Reform League, declared in an address today at the sixteenth annual meeting of the assembly of civil service commissions.

Asserting that the record made by enforcement agents appointed by the Prohibition Director without civil service examinations provided one more evidence of the necessity of destroying the "spoils system." Mr. Foulke said:

"To contrast prohibition enforcement with the efficient civil service administration of the Narcotic Bureau and with the general classified service of the country merely serves to emphasize the need of completely eliminating the spoils system."

INTERPRETATION OF ALIEN LAW SOUGHT

IMMIGRATION COMMISSION SPURRED BY ATTACK OF BRITISH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 21. — Spurred by the attack in the British House of Commons yesterday on methods at Ellis Island in handling British-born immigrants, Commissioner-General Husband of the immigration service today sought legal opinion as to whether steamship companies could be required under existing law to bear the entire expense of detaining aliens at immigration stations.

Mr. Husband's move added another chapter to the controversy involving protest from some British authorities over the treatment their nationals received from American immigration officials, Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, recently made an inspection of conditions at Ellis Island, and his report, which never has been made public, is said by officials here who have seen it in the British White Book, to have been favorable rather than otherwise.

Admittedly conditions at Ellis Island leave much to be desired, Mr. Husband said, and it was understood that the Geddes report recognized the difficulties in the way of the American government in its efforts to correct them. The outburst in Parliament yesterday, therefore, it was declared, caused surprise among American officials.

TUCSON BISHOP ASSIGNED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TORRID IN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, June 21.—New England today continued to suffer beneath a record torrid wave. Eight persons have succumbed to heat and eight more lost their lives at various lake and seashore resorts. The thermometer is hovering around 90 deg. Many factories were closed down today. Hundreds of women mill workers fainted at their machines. Thousands are sleeping outdoors.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Three are dead here as the result of the terrifice heat. Schools were closed today. Thermometers registered 95 deg.

CLEVELAND, June 21.—According to reports reaching here this afternoon, deaths attributable to the excessive heat numbered twenty-five. These included accidents at various resorts.

DETROIT, June 21.—Fatalities during the last twenty-four hours throughout the lower section of Michigan reached ten this evening. Thousands of people are flocking to the shores of the smaller lakes for relief.

MUSKEGON (Mich.) June 21.—Two boys and their heroic shepherd dog lost their lives in Muskegon Lake near the municipal bathing beach last evening. George Jones, 13 years of age, colored, went into a deep hole and Shep, the dog, apparently sensing the danger, rushed to his rescue. As the boy clung to the dog, Averhill Hamel, 12, owner of the dog, went to the rescue of both. All went down. Near-by bathers thought the boys were playing. Deputies recovered the boys' bodies in fifteen feet of water. Later they recovered the body of the big dog.

As the municipal beach has not officially opened there were no guards present.

TEN KILLED IN TENEMENT FIRE

mash, each holding sixty-three gallons, and three stills. The cause of the fire was the ignition of the basement ceiling from a gas jet flaring four inches away. It burned through the floor of the first floor landing at the foot of the stairway leading to Federal street, and this stairway was the only means of egress to the occupants of the two upper stories.

"The reason the fire gained such rapid headway was the presence of alcoholic fumes confined in the walls and between the floors. These fumes were created by the manufacture of alcohol."

DISTRICT IN PANIC

The fire was discovered by members of truck company No. 4, located near by. When the engines arrived the occupants of the building were in a panic. The flames spread with terrific velocity and the stairways from the basement to the first floor were burned away.

Mothers were throwing their children from second story windows and leaping blindly after them. Many victims were overcome before they could reach air. Others were too severely burned to get as far as the windows.

Over and over again the members of squad 8 and truck companies 4 and 31 climbed to the third floor and carried down persons badly burned, many of them unconscious.

As the flames spread the whole neighborhood was thrown into a panic. Families living in adjacent buildings began hurling belongings out on the heads of those below.

ROMANCE OF GERALDINE

through Germany that the Crown Prince was in love with Geraldine.

"The Kaiser heard about the matter, too, and strongly disliked it. This induced him to take steps to end his son's romance, though officially he said he wanted to save the reputation of his son. There never had been a Kaiser-Farrar romance, though he greatly admired the American artist and he certainly disapproved finding his son without a rival. She was true to the Crown Prince whose ardent love was returned by her.

KAISER TAKES ACTION

"Miss Farrar was singing at the Berlin Royal Operahouse which was controlled by the Kaiser, so he simply issued a ukase to the director not to renew Miss Farrar's contract. She preferred to leave the scene of her great success instead of fighting to stay, and she left Berlin to the astonishment of artistic circles.

"During the time of the climax of her romance, Miss Farrar left Berlin quietly and often the Crown Prince when speaking with friends would gaze abstractedly as into a beautiful dream when the name Farrar was mentioned. Even out on the battlefields her name could draw a smile of joy and pride into his face.

"Friends surrounding the Crown Prince believe that it is for the sake of Miss Farrar, that the Crown Prince is so fond of Americans and the American people. She represents his most beautiful reminiscence of his youth, and it was the memory of Geraldine that kept him fond of America during the war—a sympathy which he never denied and which brought him many attacks from the pan-Germans."

WEIRD TALE IS RELATED IN DIVORCE

Woman Asserts She Had to Marry German to Halt Denunciation as Spy

BY JOHN STEELE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, June 21.—A story resembling sensational fiction was told in the divorce court today in the suit of Engineer Commander George Douglas Campbell of the British navy against his wife, who is the daughter of a Dutch general, on the ground of her misconduct with a German baron, Treuch Von Buttlar Brandenfels, since dead.

Mrs. Campbell was in Holland when the war began in 1914, and owing to an estrangement from her husband, secured a divorce there with his consent. Later she went to Germany and met the baron, who accused her of being a British spy and forced her to marry him.

"To save him from drinking himself to death," she consented, providing no marital relations took place, to which he agreed, and he carried out his promise.

She lived in terror, owing to his threats to denounce her as a spy, but declared she secured military information and succeeded in sending it to England. She declared she loathed the baron and finally secured a divorce, which was granted a day or two after his death. Subsequently she secured an annulment of the Dutch decree from her first husband, who is now suing her.

Sir Henry Duke, president of the divorce court, said he believed her story and gave the judgment against the husband who, he said, had violated his own position by the collusive divorce in Holland.

PLEA FOR AMNESTY FILED BY WOBBLIES

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A protest against the constitutional form of commutation granted yesterday to prisoners convicted of violating war time laws was filed at the White House today by the general defense committee representing Industrial Workers of the World affected by President Harding's action.

Objection was made to what the committee said was an "impression that these men are lawbreakers, which they steadfastly denied," and the assertion was made that under the commutation prisoners would be denied the right of jury trial in the future and would be liable to return to prison "because some government official thought they had broken the law."

Protest also was made against "discrimination shown to F. J. Gallagher owing to the fact that he tried to foment a strike" and against the "misleading attack issued by the Department of Justice against the Sacramento defendants and the discrimination shown against them. Unconditional amnesty was asked for "all Chicago, Wichita, and Sacramento prisoners, and the two other individual espionage cases."

STUDENT GOES SOUTH WITH HUNGARIAN CASH

TIPS OFF POLICE ON DEAL, THEN DASHES AWAY IN AUTOMOBILE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BUDAPEST, June 21.—Eugene Koepernick, a student, made such nice profits on tipping off the police to money speculations which are strictly forbidden in Hungary, that he decided to speculate similarly.

He whispered to the chief of police at Budapest this morning that speculators had arrived in town with 500,000 Czech crowns to trade against 150,000,000 Hungarian crowns and that they could be caught in the act of making the exchange in a rear corridor of the postoffice. The excited chief of police drew out the Hungarian crowns from the police fund and sent Koepernick to the postoffice with four detectives to trap the speculators. Koepernick posted the detectives at strategic points in front of the postoffice and then went to the rear corridor with the money to meet the speculators. He hurried out of a rear entrance and is now speeding toward the Rumanian frontier in his high-powered motor car.

MAN-WOMAN IS BREAKING DOWN

Tesmer Murder Suspect Wants Drugs Badly

Thompson's Record Gives Startling Disclosures

Continues in Dual Role of Male and Female

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, June 21.—Overpowering craving for dope is breaking down Fred G. Thompson, the puzzling "man-woman" held for the murder of Richard Tesmer, wealthy insurance man, on the evening of the 5th inst.

When Thompson was arrested, masquerading as "Mrs. Frank Carrick," he denied he was a drug addict, but admitted he drank freely. But three days without dope and the constant quizzing by the police are shaking him badly, and it is believed he will reach the point where he will betray himself.

ALIBI SHATTERED

One of his strongest alibis was shattered today. He had claimed he was at home sick all the night of the murder. Anthony Kusher, one of the men arrested in the Carrick flat, says the "girl-man" had not been at home at all on the 5th inst., day or evening, nor that Thompson had complained of being ill at any time approximating that date. Confronted with this testimony, Thompson refused to make any comment.

Frank T. Carrick, "common-law husband" of Thompson, after three days' grilling and also deprived for that period of dope, went suddenly mad this evening in his cell and was removed to a hospital. Shrieking wildly of shots, bullets, guns, murders and automobiles, he raved and frothed at the mouth until given a quieting potion at the hospital.

"Frank's come clean with the story," detectives told Thompson.

"My God, they're crazy" screamed Thompson, who became so nervous that measures had to be taken to quiet him.

Startling disclosures continued to come today as the police dug into the domestic life of Thompson and his close friends. The first shock came when Thompson confessed that he had been living as the "wife" of Frank Carrick, another occupant of the flat, but that he was legally married to Marie Clark, who also lived with him in the flat. He married the Clark woman two years ago.

Following this disclosure came the revelation that Thompson's "husband," Frank Carrick, had secured exemption from service in the army on account of his "wife." Both Thompson and Carrick explained that the purpose of the "wedding" had been the exemption of Carrick.

The Clark woman and Thompson are about the same build and the police considered it a possibility that she may have been the "man" companion of the woman who killed Tesmer. They will cause her to don men's clothing and appear before Mrs. Tesmer for identification.

Thompson, still arrayed in the soiled and draggled skirts and waist he wore when arrested, is breaking fast. He changes swiftly from a "woman" with a low-neck gown, crumpling a soiled silk handkerchief to "her" eyes, into a cursing, infuriated man, with a temper as ragged as his sprouting beard.

His case is becoming more and more a puzzle to the police. In spite of the fact he has been proved to be a fully developed man, he continues, unconsciously, his feminine actions, arranging his hair, smoothing out his gown and talking in a feminine voice.

NEW NIGHT SERVICE

Los Angeles Times Information and Resort Bureau

Due to the large number of newcomers arriving in Los Angeles after regular business hours, many of whom are unfamiliar with the city and often experience difficulty in finding their way about, The Times Information and Resort Bureau will inaugurate a new free night service, beginning Monday, June 18.

On and after that date, a complete question-answering service will be maintained up to 11 o'clock every night except Sundays. Strangers may step into any telephone booth, call up "Pico 700" or "10391," and receive intelligent, accurate directions as to how to reach any railroad depot, bus line or steamship office—where to take cars for any part of the city or surrounding towns—how to reach hotels, resorts, theaters, churches, hospitals, schools, etc.

This will be no mere perfunctory or half-organized service. The bureau will be in charge of an expert and information seekers will receive the same cordial attention that has made so many friends for the day-time hours.

Everyone, and particularly readers of The Times, are asked to consider that the new service is theirs, to use whenever and as often as they wish.

EX-SERVICE MEN SCORE GOV. HUNT

Arizona Legion Men for Colorado River Pact; Executive is Roasted

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLAGSTAFF, (Ariz.) June 21.—At its annual State meeting, the American Legion in Arizona appears to have been almost unanimously lined up against Gov. Hunt, on the basis of an asserted slight by him to the organization. When the Bisbee post, which at first called upon State Commander C. M. Stoddard for his resignation, in the end rallied with the others behind Stoddard and joined in resolutions censuring the State executive.

The latter has protested that he appointed representatives of no organizations when making up the list of the favored who were to attend his famous Colorado River Conference and that four members of the Legion actually were invited. He asks why he should have appointed a legion representative, as such, any more than he should have appointed a representative of the Grand Army of the Republic. But his expostulations have been of no avail.

The Governor did not go to the convention. Possibly it is as well that he did not appear. Even his letter of regret failed to get to Flagstaff in time. Thus Stoddard was afforded an opportunity to toast him very brown and the opportunity was improved. The Legion asserted itself as in politics, though in a nonpartisan way and demanded a share in the settlement of the Colorado River questions.

Incidentally, it declared itself and the service men for ratification of the Colorado River Pact, as written, and demanded a special session of the Legislature to accomplish that end.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Tommy Gibbons resumed his boxing stunts this afternoon after a one-day layoff following a bear is Thomas as he roughed his work with his sparring companions. Gibbons right down to brass tacks. Dempsey is going to have a tough time of it, he is going to find a different job on his hands than anything he has been facing for the most part Dempsey has been pegging his punches at a lot of slow plodding mugs who don't get out of their own way. WEIGHT LIGHTEST IN YEARS

Dempsey Tips Beam at 183 if Scales Are Right; Partners Disappoint

BY HUGH FULLERTON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

GREAT FALLS, June 21.—Great Falls is the driest part of this country tonight. The Missouri River looks drier than anything else. The storm which has inundated Montana put the finish on Dempsey's training and the world's champion spent the day playing hearts. The power plant went out of commission, there were no lights or electric heat in the training camp, and the roads from Great Falls to the camp were rivers.

We secure some news—which is startling. I received absolute evidence that the world's champion is far below the weight that is credited him. Kearns told me this morning that Dempsey now weighs 194 pounds. If the scales on which he weighed after his light loosening up exercises are to be believed, he weighed at 2 o'clock today exactly 183 pounds, the lightest he has been in years.

The lay-off did not fret the champion, who fails to show any symptoms of nervousness, and is irritable only as regards his sparring partners, who have not proved satisfactory, with the exception of George Godfrey and Wells. The lay-off had been ordered by Kearns even before the continuation of torrential rains compelled him to cease work. The grounds were inundated and the dance-hall, where he has worked indoors, was leaking like a sieve, there were no lights and he was compelled to rest.

Tonight it looks as if all the rain that possibly could fall has fallen. The wooden pavements have been washed away and a chill wind is blowing. Dempsey has a light cold and the weather is not helping him. Basements are flooded and the falls are roaring.

The preliminary bouts for the July 4 fistic carnival at Shelby were settled tonight. They are: Jimmy Delaney vs. Jack Burke, Tillie (Kid) Herman vs. Joe Simonski; Dandy Dillon vs. Lackey Morrow.

GEORGE LYONS HURLING HERO

Angel Flinger Blanks Oaks in 1-to-0 Game

Acorns Get but Two Bingles Off Local Pitcher

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Ray Kremer of the Oaks is certainly a hard-luck hurler. He held the Los Angeles outfit to four hits today, yet lost his game, 1 to 0. He let Seattle down with four hits one day last week, yet the Oaks were shut out by Vean Gregg. Earlier in that series Gregg beat him again, shutting out the Oaks. Kremer worked only six innings of that first game, but in that time the Oaks did not score a run for him. So, including today's game, Kremer had pitched twenty-four innings without his mates giving him a single run. No pitcher can win with that kind of batting support.

Kremer pitched good enough ball to win an ordinary game, but George Lyons pitched even better, just as Vean Gregg did the last time Kremer faced him. Lyons allowed the Oaks only two hits and one pass. McAuley booted a grounder in the ninth that gave Massey a lift, and he made the fourth man of the Oaks who reached first base during the game. Only one of them got as far as second, and he died there.

BYLER SCORES ONLY RUN

Byler scored the only run of the game in the third. With one out he was passed and Lyons bunted him to second. Bill McCabe came through with a single to center, and Byler scored. McCabe was flagged at second. LaFayette cutting off Cooper's throw-in and getting the ball to Brubaker in time to tag McCabe.

McAuley opened the fourth inning with a three-base hit, yet Kremer pitched himself out of the hole and did not allow him to score. Maderas tossed out Twombly, and Kremer threw out Golvin. McAuley should have scored on that play, for Golvin bounced the ball high in the air and Kremer had to wait for it to come down. But McAuley did not run, and he was left stranded at third when Brubaker ended the inning by tossing out Deal.

McCABE HIT ROBBER

McCabe took a long hit away from LaFayette in the second by a fine running catch. Had that ball gone safe the Oaks would have had a chance, for LaFayette was the first man up.

Whiteman got a hit in the seventh, but Butch Byler called the turn on a hit-and-run play, called for a pitch out and nailed Whiteman stealing. The Oaks did not get a man to first in the eighth. With one out in the ninth Massey went to bat for Kremer, and was safe when McAuley booted his grounder. Hood made a nice catch of Cooper's long drive, and Whiteman ended the game by forcing Massey at second. Score:

Willard Must be Examined Before Fight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TRENTON (N. J.) June 21. Word has been received from Tex Rickard, promoter of the Willard-Firpo heavyweight fight at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, July 12, by State Controller Bugbee, director of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, that Jess Willard would present himself for physical examination in New Jersey to prove his fitness to meet the South American, it was announced here today.

When it was first announced early today that Willard would have to submit to an examination before the bout would be held quite a furore was raised in boxing circles. State Controller Bugbee stated that he was only compelling Willard to be examined to disprove written stories concerning the giant Kansan's old age and poor condition. If the examination proves that Willard is not in condition to meet such a rugged fighter as Firpo, the match is to be called off.

Bugbee has authorized Thomas Kilduff of Hoboken, boxing inspector of Hudson county, to select three physicians to perform the examination.

Genaro After Rematch With Pancho Villa

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—Frankie Genaro's manager, Phil Bernstein, conferred with Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Polo Grounds Athletic Club, today with a view to signing up for a meeting with Pancho Villa for the world's flyweight title.

"All we ask is a reasonable break on the financial arrangements," said Bernstein. "Genaro has been forced to take a very small percentage in each of the last two meetings despite the fact that he has three decisions over Villa."

Genaro's manager expressed the opinion that O'Rourke is the matchmaker entitled to the Villa-Genaro match in view of his bringing Jimmy Wilde to this country.

French Divide With Irish in Davis Cup Tie

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, June 21.—France and Ireland divided the first day's play of Davis Cup competition in their second round tie here today, each winning and losing a singles match.

Henri Cochet put the French in the lead when he defeated E. D. McCrea, 6-1, 6-3, 13-11, in the first match of the day. McCrea put up a terrific battle and forced the last set to duece several times, but the Frenchman managed to capture the last set and the match.

Later in the day Ireland evened the going when the Honorable Cecil Campbell routed Jean Borotra, the French star, 6-1, 7-5, 6-0. Borotra gave all he had in the second set and completely wilted away in the final set.

British Crew to Meet Yanks at the Harbor

A crew from H. M. S. Curlew, British cruiser now at Los Angeles Harbor, will race a crew from U.S.S. Oklahoma today at 4:30 p. m. and jack tars of the American fleet have bet more than $10,000 on the result, yesterday being pay day.

The Curlew rowers are champions of the British cruiser squadron, holders of the Hamilton (Bermuda) Regetta cup, and champions of the West Indies Squadron and are slight favorites as they are accustomed to heavier boats than the American racing cutters, which will be used in the race. Lieutenant-Commander Michael Harrison of the Curlew will pull an oar in the British boat. The race will be held in the outer harbor over a two-mile course just inside the breakwater.

AMERICANS ADVANCE TO SEMIFINALS

Richards and Hunter Win in British Tourney; Miss Goss Eliminated

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, June 21. — Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, brilliant American racket wielders, advanced to the semifinals in the London Lawn tennis championship tournament at the Queen's club here today. Miss Eleanor Goss, another Yankee net star, was eliminated by Mrs. Satterthwaite, 6-1, 6-3, in the third round of the women's singles.

Richards defeated his opponent, G. Millard, with comparative ease in straight sets, 6-2, 6-1. Millard managed to take thre egames in the first set, but the youthful Richards speeded up his game and completely outclassed the Britisher in the second set. Hunter was given a little more competition than was Richards, but he also won in straight sets. D. R. Putnam was the victim of Hunter's wizardry, the score being 6-3, 6-3.

Richards and Hunter were also victorious in the men's doubles, downing the British pair, Col. H. G. Mayes and Capt. Dicks, 7-5, 6-1, 6-3. The Yankee pair played brilliantly and after the first set was in control of the match until the end.

MANY NEW FEATURES AT RANCHO

Locker Rooms and Grill Added; Louis Sivian Shoots Long Mashie Shot

BY BOB LOCKE

The Rancho Country Club's annual invitational golf tournament will be played off sometime next September, is the announcement that comes from Dr. P. A. Moulton, president of the club. When it does come off, however, its success is assured as there are many Los Angeles golfers waiting a chance to get on the new course.

The main reason for postponing the tournament is that the course is for the most part under repair and the greens committee thought it would be best to let the new grass get a good start before exposing it to the rigors of tournament play.

Seven of the holes at the Rancho Club have been completely changed and all of them have been resown and worked until persons who have not played on the course for a month would not know it as the old Rancho course. The greens are in perfect shape and with a few more months of care they should be the best in the south.

Aside from the improvements on the course the Rancho is "fixin' up" their plant in great shape. In the rear of the present locker rooms and grill room a new addition is being built that will be the grill room and still more locker space. The club has long since outgrown its present habitation and the new improvements were absolutely necessary.

The women of the club are also in for a new set of rooms and so forth. The present women's quarters will be extended and then the whole porch will be glassed in so that the female porch golfers need not be wind-blown or harmed in any way.

The whole of the new improvements will be carried out in the same style of architecture that the Rancho Club is famous for. The stained rough boards and rancho style will predominate except in the locker rooms where spotless white will be the color scheme.

The San Gabriel Country Club's new handicap board arrived yesterday and it surely is a "munificent" affair. It consists of several boards, resembling a building directory, on which the name and handicap of every member of the club is placed. As the handicaps change and as new members come into the club the slips may be changed and thus a permanent and up-to-date list of members and handicaps is always where anyone may see it.

Dr. Waterman, president of the San Gabriel Country Club, has the reputation of being the steadiest player that calls the club home. Waterman finished second in the bi-monthly individual scoring and by reason of his constant shooting on the reputation.

Louis Sivian of Spalding Brothers, claims the long-distance title for all mashie wielders. Sunday at the Sunset Canyon, Sivian, who has just arrived from New York, shot the fourth hole at the Sunset Club and put the ball way over the green. The calculated distance by the admiring gallery was about 235 yards. No mean shot, say we.

Jack Stone, pro at the California Country Club leaves today for San Francisco and Seattle. Stone has improved a lot in the past few weeks and looks exceptionally well on the course. Jack says that if he doesn't win it won't be because he didn't buy the loudest socks in Los Angeles. Rival golfers are likely to drop in their tracks when they see Jack arrive en habit.

RITCHIE AFTER BENNY LEONARD

Wants to Meet Lightweight King in September

Claims He is in Fine Shape to Tackle Benny

BY BILL HENRY

Willie Ritchie, former world's lightweight boxing champion and latest convert to the Jess Willard-Dr. Coue "Every day in every way I'm getting better and getter" school of thinking, dropping into The Times editorial sanctum yesterday to renew old-time friendship and incidentally make it plain that his proposed onslaught on the well-known world's championship was no idle rumor.

It's a cinch Willie isn't trying a comeback because of lack of finances. He is the proud proprietor of one of San Francisco's leading tire dispensaries and waltzed into the office yesterday with his manly frame incased in the latest of sartorial splendor. Just down here to buy a couple of billion dollars' worth of Samson Tires was Willie.

VERY SERIOUS

"Sure I'm serious about fighting Leonard in September. Why shouldn't I be?" demanded Willie with as ferocious an expression as he could muster on his cherubic countenance. "I'm in splendid shape right now. I only weigh about 140 and I've kept in condition by a little boxing and a lot of handball. I beat Leonard once, he beat me once and I believe I can beat him again.

"Leonard is a great fighter. When he beat me he won by a mile. But he can be hit and he can be hurt. I hurt him myself; Ritchie Mitchell and Charley White both knocked him down. I'm inclined to think that I could do every bit as well and probably a whole lot better. I'm still young and the only beating I ever took was from Leonard."

CONFIDENT

Willie by this time evidently has convinced himself that he can do the work. He boxed an exhibition with Buck Holley a week ago and says that he is going to box several more exhibitions "to convince myself and the public that I am able to get back into the best of shape," as Willie puts it.

"I put my challenge in with the New York Boxing Commission in June for a fight in September so that they would realize that I was seriously figuring on getting in the best of condition and springing a real comeback," said Willie. "In the two and a half months between now and the battle I am going to work out first about three times a week and then gradually increase my work as I go along."

IN SHAPE

Ritchie certainly does look well. He doesn't look quite as heavy as he did when he was fighting a few years ago when he nearly had to saw off a leg to make the lightweight limit. He says that he can make 135 pounds just as easy as getting his by an automobile on Broadway, and expects to be down this way again shortly. He left for San Francisco again last night.

Jim Londos to Meet Spanish Mat Champion

If Jim Londos succeeds in disposing of Andrews Castanos, Spanish champion, in their finish match Monday night at Philharmonic Auditorium, he is going to hurl a challenge at Ad Santel for a finish match to determine the light heavyweight championship of the world.

A Londos-Santel match would be the best card ever offered Los Angeles and one that other cities hereabouts would bid high to get. That it is not impossible to match the pair is the statement of the promoter.

Castanos will have fifteen to twenty pounds advantage over Londos, but the Greek figures to outwit his Castilian antagonist with his famous wrist holds. Castanos holds decisions over Gardini and Wladek Zbyszko and is said to be a sensational and satisfactory performer.

MUIR HIKERS ARE HAVING FINE TIME

Word was received yesterday from Mrs. E .B. Gillett, in charge of the Muir Hikers from the B. H. Dyas Company Log Cabin, now on the annual trip through Yosemite, saying that the arrival was safe and without mishap and that the fifty members of the party so far have had a great time.

Fifty strong, the Dyas Log Cabin hikers left on the trip last Saturday aboard a private car of the Southern Pacific. Camp Curry in Yosemite is being maintained as headquarters. The return will be made early next week.

CHERNIS WINS BATTLE

Battling through three torrid rounds, Sid (Fat) Chernis copped a hard-earned victory from John Westlund at the Los Angeles Athletic Club bouts last night. A large house saw the bloody affair and by the roars of approval that went up as the conqueror left the arena it was evident that the decision could have been "nothing else but."

In the main event, a whirlwind affair with both contestants taking the count of nine, John Grella lost to Ed Johnson in an extra round bout. Grella looked good until the second round when Johnson landed a tough right and Grella hit the mat for nine. He came back strong, however, in the third for a flash that got him an extra round.

Eddie Gleason tore through Joe Comby and in the second round placed a well-aimed right to Joe's chin and the fight was all over. The same was true of the Joe Salas-Dan Conley set-to. In the second round, after a fast and furious first round, Joe landed one and Dan took the count.

The complete results for the evening's entertainment were as follows:

Emmett Callahan defeated Oscar Finn in four rounds, Sid Chernis defeated John Westlund in three rounds, Jack Fields defeated Arthur Afflerbach in three rounds, William Zuhle defeated Al Leonard in three rounds, Joe Salas knocked out Dan Conley in two rounds; Stanley Frye, Pacific Coast light-heavyweight champion, defeated Sailor Bell, Pacific Coast heavyweight champion, in three rounds, Eddie Gleason knocked out Joe Comby in two rounds, and Ed Johnson defeated Juan Grella in four rounds.

"I'm Young Enough to be Jess Willard's Son"

That's what Willie Ritchie, former lightweight boxing champion said yesterday afternoon when they were kidding him about his proposed "comeback" against Benny Leonard.

SHELLS READY FOR NAVY LADS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) June 21.—The Navy shells were in their allotted place in the Washington boathouse tonight, a day ahead of the expected advent tomorrow of the Annapolis eight, the last crew to join Pennsylvania, Columbia, Syracuse, and Washington in training here for the intercollegiate regatta of June 23. Two submarine chasers brought the Navy shells to Highland in the forenoon, where they were unloaded, as the varsity eight of Washington was going over the three-mile course in the unofficially clocked time of 14:25 minutes. Tomorrow afternoon is expected to witness the arrival of the Navy.

A temperature of 100 deg. for the third successive day kept all of the crews off the course until late in the afternoon. Washington's exercise was mild in comparison with this morning's spurt.

League Leaders Overcome Vernon's Lead and Take Front Position in Series

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS

San Francisco went out yesterday and won a ball game for itself, 6 to 5, in the fatal seventh, which also was fat-al, it being an obese inning containing four visiting runs.

Vernon at the time was basking in the false security of a 4-to-2 lead, when the Seals suddenly made things so cloudy for Wheezer Dell that he was dispersed by Bill Essick, after which the visitors finished up the feast on Elmer Reiger. Gene Valla, the golden calf worshiped by San Francisco idolators, landed by crowning blow in the shape of a triple with two on.

Pat Shea ran second to Dell until the seventh, when Waner went in and rapped one for him. Doug McWeeny had a run knocked out of him by P. Samson Schneider in the Vernon seventh, but refused to weaken under the punch, not allowing another hit. Roy Gilder went the last two rounds for Vernon and looked as good as a strawberry in a restaurant shortcake.

EARLY RALLIES SHORT

The earlier rallies were short, sweet and snappy. Way back in the first round Ping Bodie planted a home run behind Red Murphy's double. Direction of thus beautiful swat was over the well-known and greatly frequented left-field fence. Then in third High, R. Murphy and Bodie bunched doubles for two runs.

San Francisco redeemed two of these in the fifth when Shea singled and Joe Kelly jarred a homer, back side of same left-field fence being his target. Joe came around himself to the plate by a chin.

Seals sortied forth for the seventh all hopped up with the unexpected, and it was a spluttery inning with Dell getting it where one might wear a wart for a collar button had nature been so generous as to lavish a wart there. There was the spicy sound of a whistling single by Rhyne, and the heavy thud of Arch Yelle thumping a double. This thump was the coup de grace for Wheezer, who accepted it in the same happy vein. Elmer Reiger, spitball plether, then went in and sought to expectorate the Seals into submission.

WANER FOOLED HIM

But Waner fooled him by going in and hitting a single for Pat Shea. This counted Rhyne and sent Yelle to third, where he was held while Warner tossed out Joe Kelly. Gene Valla then counted Yelle and Waner with a right-field triple, and it became plainer why the San Francisco buss rave over this boy. Mulligan, with a fly to High, sent Gene galloping athwart the pan. Compton popped.

This put the Seals two runs to the good, but was no insurance against future skidding. Only nonskid rallies come in last half of ninth. They slipped a trifle in the second half of seventh, when Douglas McWeeny started pitching. Incidentally, it was then that P. Samson Schneider started hitting. He and Doug, so to speak, were contemporaneous. This was the first time Pete had had a chance to hit. Pete was pried off the bench to slap one for Reiger and, as usual, delivered. Pete seldom packs any wet ammunition to the plate. He slammed a triple and came in on Chadbourne's fly to Valla, the opulent center fielder. High skied to Kelly with a sky-high fly and the usually reliable Rod Murphy was gold-bricked on strikes. Ray Gilder took hold of the dangerous end of the business at start of eighth and compiled some problems in pitching that had the visitors wrinkling their massive brows in deep perplexity. The score:

AGE LIMIT FOR GIRLS IS RAISED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21. Girls under 16 years are to be allowed to compete for the Helen Wills's cup in the Pacific Coast championship tennis tournament, which will begin on the Berkeley Tennis Club's courts Saturday. The previous announcement was to the effect that competition was to be limited to girls under 15.

Dr. C. A. Wills, father of the national junior champion, is the cup's donor and, as there is no similar national event, it was left to Dr. Wills to select the age limit. By selecting 16 instead of 15, which is the limit for the corresponding event for boys, a larger field for competition was created and also a better opportunity for a three-time win.

Ward Dawson, who in 1916 with Maurice McLaughlin won the Pacific Coast doubles championship, has entered the singles of the Pacific Coast tournament, and it is said his game is probably better than at any period of his successful tennis career. He won the Berkeley Club's championship Sunday from Bud Chandler, who has entered both the men's and junior singles. In the junior doubles Chandler will pair with Tom Stow as Gervais Hillis, his usual partner, left for an eastern trip.

Mrs. George Wightman, who as Hazel Hotchkiss held the Pacific Coast title on many occasions, is to arrive at her parents' home in Berkeley next week and her entry in the coming tournament is a possibility. She is recovering from an operation for appendicitis and will not be available for singles play. If she enters the doubles and mixed doubles she will furnish strong competition.

Stillman Bobs Up at Links to Watch Tourney

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH (N. Y.) June 21. James A. Stillman, former National City Bank head, whose marital troubles and the revelations of his amours incident thereto have kept him in the limelight for more than two years past and resulted in his resignation as National City president, surprised scores of his former financial associates when he appeared as a spectator at the annual golf tournament of the Bankers' Athletic League here yesterday.

Although not entered in the tourney, he was much in evidence in the morning, but when newspaper men got on his trail in the afternoon he retired to a remote part of the clubhouse and denied himself to reporters.

Recently Stillman was reported as having sailed under an assumed name for Europe and as planning to institute an action for divorce from Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman in the French courts.

PLAN STREET WIDENING AT EXPOSITION PARK

In order to provide wider streets in the vicinity of the new $1,000,000 Exposition Park Coliseum, the City Council yesterday instructed the City Engineer to prepare a proposed ordinance for the improvement of Menlo avenue from Santa Barbara avenue to Exposition Boulevard and the widening of Menlo avenue to forty-six feet. Adjacent property owners petitioned for the improvement.

BRITAIN FAILS TO ENTER MEET

National Open Tourney Will be Big Affair

California Represented by Several Players

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 21.—In spite of the fact that it is rather unlikely that there will be any British representatives present for the event, the national open golf championship at the Inwood Country Club on Long Island, July 9 to 13, promises to attract the largest field that ever teed off for a national golf championship anywhere. More than fifty entries have already been received even this far in advance, and the number is expected to run well over 300.

W. C. Sherwood of Newark, Ohio, happened to be the first player to shy his hat into the ring for the big event, and the whole of the country has been pretty well covered in the list of those who have already entered. Abe Espinosa of San Francisco and E. Gayer, another California professional, have come in to represent the Far West, while Henry Bolesta of Tampa and Tom Hughes of Jacksonville are from the farthest points south. Eddie Gow of Weston, Mass., represents the most eastern entry thus far.

AMATEURS ENTER

Two prominent amateurs, Bobby Jones and Rudie Knepper, are already entered. Of course this early list is merely indicative of what may be expected later on. Secretary Cornelius Lee of the United States Golf Association anticipates that the field this year will certainly surpass that at Skokie last year, where some three hundred and twenty players took part.

Because of the big field anticipated, it is announced that it will be necessary to enforce strictly the time limit for receiving entries. The lists close at 5 o'clock, June 27, and no entry that is not put in the mail by that date will be accepted. In entering no entry blank is necessary. All that needs to be done is to enclose $5 with a letter asking to be entered for the tournament and mail the letter to the United States Golf Association at 55 John Street, New York. The Professional Golfers' Association has placed itself on record in the matter of asking the U.S.G.A. to enforce the time limit for receiving entries. For the past few years late comers have caused quite a lot of trouble in the way of making necessary the rearranging of the pairings and the fixing of starting times. If this year's list mounts as high as is now expected, it will be necessary that work of this kind be fully completed well beforehand, in order to avoid confusion.

BLACK IN PLAY

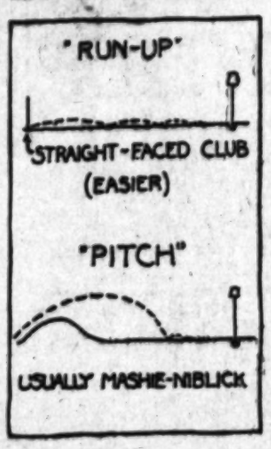
John Black, who proved such a heroic figure in the 1922 championship at Skokie, when he finished in a tie with Bobby Jones, a stroke behind Gene Sarazen, expects to play in this year's championship, and may prove quite as strong a factor as he did last year. Black is now located at the Wichita Country Club, and has fully recovered from the injuries received in an automobile accident last year that came near costing him his life.

SIR THOMAS WILL CHALLENGE FOR CUP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 21. — Sir Thomas Lipton will challenge again this year for another series of races for the America's cup, to be run in the summer of 1924, the Evening Post said today.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports



Is it best to pitch all shots to the green, or is it better to play a run-up shot when possible?

Answered by BOB CRUIKSHANK

The man who, in 1921, defeated Hutchison, Sarazen and Barnes in an invitation tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. Runner-up in Pittsburg tournament for professional golfers, 1922, being defeated only by Sarazen.

The pitch shot is always a safe way to a green, but the run-up is often better if you have a clear space to the green. It is also easier. In playing a run-up, a straight-faced club should be used, and throughout the back swing and down swing the club head should be kept low. The pitch and run, a combination of both, is also a very useful shot, but rather difficult.

FARREN AND ASHMORE IN MAIN EVENT

Teddy Silva Risks Title With Rubidoux at Legion Arena in Hollywood

Two titles will be at stake tonight when the American Legion stages its weekly boxing festival at the Hollywood stadium. Sailor Ashmore, holder of the Pacific Coast lightweight championship, will give Frankie Farren a crack at the belt in the main event, while in the semi-wind-up Teddy Silva, the recognized bantamweight king on the Coast, will square off with Ad Rubidoux.

It has been sometime since Farren appeared in a local ring. In San Francisco, his home town, he is regarded as one of the most dangerous lightweights ever produced in the Bay City. Farren has held Frankie Burns to a draw on three occasions. He met Jimmy Duffy thrice, two of the bouts ending in a draw and the third resulting in a Farren victory. The challenger has been going so good that the northern promoters have been dickering for a match for him with Ashmore. Matchmaker Frank Crowley finally succeeded in hooking the pair up and tonight's mill will determine their relative merits. Farren has been training diligently for the bout as has the champion and the affair should develop into a wild jamboree.

Little Ad Rubidoux has left nothing undone in preparing for his date with Silva and is confident of taking the title from the clever Puente scrapper.. Silva is giving away some six pounds, but he, too, is certain of a victory.

Freddie Brower, a 130-pound Philadelphian, will make his bow to the local patrons, when he steps into the ring to box with Young Russ Pierce in the special event. Earl Clark, a stranger from Wichita, Kan., will make his debut against "Knockout" Kelly at 130 pounds. Red Uhland meets George Smith at 135 pounds. Connie Hogan tackles Ted Merry at 138 pounds and Young Terry faces Al Knowles at 140 pounds. George Blake will referee.

DR. SOILAND WILL HAVE BUSY TIME

Yachting Admiral Off on a Two Weeks' Visit to Attend Meetings

A heavy schedule is cut out for Dr. Albert Soiland, admiral of the Pacific Coast Yachting Association, during the next two weeks. However, the doctor will have company. The marining medico, accompanied by Mrs. Soiland, and Dr. and Mrs. Costelow, left here last night for San Francisco.

At the northen city, Dr. Soiland will attend the annual meetings of the American Medical Association, the American Radium Society and the Radiological Society of North America.

These three scientific bodies will hold their conventions at San Francisco, during the next week and before all of them, Dr. Soiland, who is nationally known in radium and X-ray work, will present papers on radium, X-ray and cancer.

When the medical societies have adjourned, Dr. Soiland and his party will travel to Vancouver and attend the annual regatta of the Pacific International Yachting Association.

PUBLIC TENNIS STARS TO PLAY

Municipal Players Compete in Tournament

Initial Event Takes Place in St. Louis

BY WILLIAM T. TILDEN,
World's Champion Tennis Player, 1920-21

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHILADELPHIA June 21.—The National Lawn Tennis Association has been working for years to provide an opportunity for the players who have not the privileges of clubs in the association to play competitive teams under its supervision. It remained for the new president, Dwight Davis, Assistant Secretary of War and donor of the famous Davis Cup, to put into effect a plan which will provide that opportunity. The committee on national municipal tennis, under its able chairman, George W. Wightman of Boston, vice-president of the National Tennis Association, has just completed plans for the first annual national municipal championship to be held at the Forest Park municipal courts in St. Louis on August 8 and succeeding days.

The committee has drawn up its regulations on a poster, which tells far more accurately than I could the exact requirements of the system. The National Association has presented a magnificent trophy, on which the name of the winner will be inscribed as a permanent record in the annals of the association. The individual winners receive gold medals of the same historic value as the gold tennis balls presented to the national singles champions.

THE TERMS

The full terms of the poster follow:

The municipal tennis championship of the United States, under the auspices of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, will be inaugurated this year. The event will be for men only and will consist of th national municipal singles championship and national municipal doubles championship.

Gold medals, emblematic of these national championships, will be awarded to the winners of both the singles and doubles championships. The name of the winner of the singles championship will be inscribed on the national municipal tennis championship trophy.

The championship tournament will be held on the courts of the St. Louis Municipal Tennis Association, located in Forest Park, St. Louis, Mo., commencing August 8, 1923. The management of the championship tournament is in the hands of a committee representing the U.S.L.T.A., consisting of C. Drummond Jones, chairman, care of Busch-Diesel Company, St. Louis, Mo.; Redowe H. Abeken, Roland M. Hoerr and John E. Mooney.

(d) Shall not have represented a club whose tennis courts are not under the direct supervision of the public recreation authorities in any tennis tournaments since June 1 of the current year.

Fourth: The committee representing the U.S.L.T.A. has the right to reject any entry if in the opinion of this committee the acceptance of such entry might interfere with the orderly conduct of the tournament, or might be detrimental to the best interests of the tournament.

YALE AND HARVARD READY FOR SHELLS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW LONDON (Ct.) June 21.—Efforts to avoid the effects of the intense heat constituted the principal task confronting the Yale and Harvard crews today. With the routine practice finished, the oarsmen of both camps awaited tomorrow's regatta, hoping the weather would be cooler. The freshman race is scheduled for 10:45 a.m., daylight saving time, and the junior varsity for 11:15. Both these events are to be rowed upstream over the two-mile course on the Thames. The big race between the varsity eights is scheduled for 7 p.m., daylight saving time, downstream over the four-mile course.

SPORT SHRAPNEL

By HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

There is one experienced and presumably wise man of pugilism who can't see Tommy Gibbons in the coming conflict.

That is Fred Winsor, manager of Jack Dempsey before that fighter trod the paths to tile fame. They broke their partnership, and Winsor thus missed being pilot of a world champion, as well as pocketing perhaps a cool $500,000 for himself.

Therefore if there if anybody in the world who would be expected to bounce a battle ax off Dempsey, and thump his reputation black and blue with a hammer, it would be this same Winsor.

But Fred seems to be a fair-minded sort of guy, and to entertain malice toward none. Measuring his words both in volume and apparent sincerity, he is just about Jack's biggest booster.

Admitting that the scrap may be both exciting and entertaining, Winsor some way can't quite bring himself to the idea of Gibbons actually fighting for the heavyweight championship of the world.

"There is nothing in Tommy's record which indicates he has any business in the same ring with Dempsey," declared Winsor, who pronounces Jack the greatest fighter with gloves that ever lived with one exception of Sam Langford.

"Gibbons is agood man up to a certain point but it is hard for me to conceive of him actually fighting for the heavyweight championship. A lot of those stories coming out of Shelby favorable to Gibbons and unfavorable to Dempsey I think are for the purpose of smoking up interest.

"Take the bout which Gibbons had about eighteen months ago with Bartley Madden. It was a no-decision affair, yet in the tenth round Madden was the aggressor and had Tommy backing up. Madden is a fighter forty years old. It required Gibbons ten rounds to knock out Boy McCormick and Chuck Wiggins, and eleven rounds to flatten old Porky Flynn. Dempsey gave Porky the kayoe in two rounds.

"I see where Gibbons assetrs he knocked out Willie Meehan in one round, a boxer who bothered Dempsey because of his peculiar style. Meehan was not knocked out by Gibbons in that Cleveland fight. He flopped. I was his manager at the time and should know. I even advised against his receiving any money because of his poor showing. Meehan gave as an excuse lack of condition. That wasn't true. We had been in Cleveland two weeks, he had three sparring partners and was boxing form six to eight rounds every day."

Ever stop to figure how richly Chicago has been blessed in the matter of topnotch backstops?

Within comparatively modern baseball times the Lake Michigan Metropolis has boasted six above the ordinary, and some of them ranking among the greatest of the game. Wearing the windpad for the Cbs have been Kling, Bresnahan, Archer and O'Farrell, for the White Sox, Sullivan and Schalk. I was discussing this tendency of so many good ones to settle in one spot with Oscar Riechow, business manager of the Los Angeles Club, and former bigleague writer As he had the two Chicago clubs, and particularly under observation for sixteen years his answer to my question as to which ranked first is worth while.

"Without a doubt, Johnny Kling was king of them all," declared Riechow. "He had everything, mechanical skill, good arm and speed, the ability to hit and a sort of sixth sense or intuitiveness. Baserunners were an open book to him. There never has been his equal at breaking up plays, and he seldom called for a pitchout. This, of course, increased the effectiveness of the man pitching to him.

"Bresnahan, a wonderful backstop, I would say ranked second. He lacked Kling's absolute perfection all departments, mental and physical. Billy Sullivan was great. He could steady pitchers, and was like a nerve center to a ball club. His arm was not the equal of Kling's, but he offset this by the accuracy of his pegs and his ability to fathom what the base-runner and batter were figuring on doing.

"Ray Schalk ranks high, and some regard him as without a superior in recent times. But he is smaller, and lacks the all-around ability of Kling.

"O'Farrell is a fine mechanical catcher, and a hard hitter. Archer also was a good backstop, but the outstanding feature was his arm, perhaps never surpassed in baseball. He never rose from his haunches to throw, snapping what as known as the 'quiet peg.'

"Kling could do everything that Bresnahan, Sullivan, Schalk, Archer and O'Farrell could do, and not only that, but do it a little bit better. One evidence of his absolute skill is that he quit the game with hardly a mark on his hands. His only accident was a broken finger, the little one on his right hand, which was fractured by a foul tip."

Kling quit the game when practically in his prime. He invested his savings in Kansas City, and is now rated as a millionaire.

NOTAS TELEGRAFICAS

Muertes Producidas por el Calor

COLUMBUS (Ohio) junio 21.—La contribución que en muertes ha cobrado la onda cálida que desde el lunes se ha enseñoreado de Ohio, sube ya a 22 defunciones, y la oficina meteorológica predice que el intenso calor continuará toda la semana. En muchas regiones del estado se registraron ayer temperaturas de 92 grados. Al este de Fremont, bajo la expansión producida por el calor, se reventó el pavimento de hormigón, en el momento en que un automóvil que conducía Leo Jeffrey, de North Adams, Michigan, pasaba sobre el punto en que ocurrió el estallido. El coche quedó embarrancado y sufrió averías; Jeffrey no sufrió daños graves.

También en Boston Hace Estragos la Temperatura

BOSTON, junio 21.—Dos días y dos noches de intenso calor han ocasionado aquí varias muertes y muchas insolaciones. Millares de gentes durmieron anoche en las playas y en los parques de Boston.

Se Ha Intensificado el Contrabando en México

EL PASO (Texas) junio 21.—Alarmado por la introducción clandestina de mercancías extranjeras que, según se ha declarado, están perjudicando a las industrias de México, el gobierno mexicano está dando pasos para hacer difícil el contrabando.

Según noticias recogidas hoy aquí entre los círculos oficiales mexicanos, el Presidente Obregón tiene el propósito de someter al Congreso un proyecto de ley por el cual la Secretaría de Hacienda habrá de ampliar de 10 a 15 kilómetros el ancho de la zona fiscal a lo largo de la frontera americana, estableciendo cotralínea de aduanas a lo largo del límite sur de dicha zona. Se reforzarían además las fuerzas aduanales, los celadores de las costas y las patrullas de aviones.

Los Cautivos Chinos Siguen en Poder de los Bandidos

SHANGHAI, junio 21.—Más de setenta cautivos chinos que se hallan en la montaña Paotzuku, en poder de los bandidos de Shantung, están en situación desesperada, hasta el grado de haberse vuelto locos varios de ellos, desde que fueron soltados los secuestrados extranjeros hace poco. Tales son las noticias que hoy recibió el Club de Rotarios de Shanghai.

Los mencionados Rotarios han nombrado a Carl Crow, un americano que fué periodista en San Francisco, y al Reverendo W. E. Souter, de la Sociedad Escocesa de la Biblia, para que se dirijan a Nanking, y procuren allí obtener la libertad de los pobres cautivos chinos.

NOTAS LOCALES

Después de la aprehensión de un octavo presunto miembro de la cuadrilla de bandidos que, el 13 de febrero, se robó bonos negociables valorados en $450,000 y asesinó a Sam McGee, chófer del First National Bank, se sujetó ayer tarde a duro interrogatorio a todos los sospechosos que están ahora tras de cerrojos. Cree la policía que los interrogatorios y careos harán que se descubra quién de los detenidos fué el que mató al referido chófer.

A. M. García se llama el octavo arrestado, y lo fué en Fresno por el Capitán Ayudante de Detectives O'Brien, el Teniente Raymond, y otros oficiales de Los Angeles. Pudieron recobrarse en casa de García $82,242.50 de bonos, que fueron reconocidos como parte del millón de dólares de botín. El Capitán de Detectives Home y sus subalternos han recobrado ya aproximativamente $75,000 de bonos negociables. A Angel Ruiz le recogieron $21,000; de una casa de la calle de Aliso, 422, donde Ruiz vivió, se sacaron bonos valorados en $23,000; $7000 más fueron halladoa en una cajo de seguridad; y el arresto de García acaba de revelar el escondite de $23,000 más.

Bandidos Asustados que Roban un Banco

Un bandido tembloroso, tan dominado por la emoción, que se le disparó la pistola al escapar, asaltó ayer, en compañía de un amigo cuyo rostro revelaba intensa palidez, la Sucursal del Security Trust and Savings Bank, que se encuentra en la Avenida Moneta, esquina a Florence. A pesar de su nerviosidad, logró darse a la fuga con $3500 en billetes de banco y un cheque por $30.

El chófer del coche en que huyeron los ladrones era el más tranquilo de los tres pillos, pues pilotó su auto por entre un laberinto de tráfico, a sesenta millas de velocidad.

El atraco estuvo inteligentemente calculado, y ejecutado con eficiencia. John True, que estaba abriendo una cuenta en el banco, en los momentos del robo, no se percató de que se había hallado presente durante la hazaña hasta que se oyó la detonación del tiro que dejó salir uno de los bandidos cuando ambos se precipitaban fuera de la puerta. Cargados de un saco de harina lleno de billetes, entre los que había hasta de $50, los dos atracadores subieron al auto que los esperaba, el que echó a correr por la Avenida Moneta, en tanto que Ed y Stanley Rogan, boticarios, corrían precipitadamente tras de ellos.

Decreta un Juez que es Buena la Acusación contra Follette

Ayer denegó el Juez Superior Reeve una petición de que se revocara la inculpación del gran jurado contra el Juez de Paz Follette, y fijó el 28 de los corrientes para oír los alegatos del recurso dilatorio, que es el siguiente paso que van a dar los defensores de Follette.

DEPORTES

Baseball

San Francisco se ganó ayer un juego de la serie en el séptimo turno, por 6 a 5. Fué fatal para los contrarios ese séptimo turno, pues produjo cuatro carreras a los visitantes.

Pugilato

TRENTON (New Jersey) junio 21.—Se ha recibido noticia de Tex Rickard, promotor de la pelea de púgiles pesados Willard-Firpo, que se efectuará el 12 de julio en Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, que Willard va a presentarse ante el Director de la Comisión de Box de New Jersey, para someterse a un examen físico, y probar sus aptitudes para hacer frente al sudamericano.

SHELBY (Montana) junio 21.—La más fuerte tormenta de lluvia que en muchos años se haya registrado en esta región de Montana, hizo que Tommy Gibbons se dedicara puertas adentro a su entrenamiento para el encuentro con Jack Dempsey el 4 de julio. Con su personal de cuatro ayudantes, se fué al pabellón de baile iluminado con luces verdes, y boxeó durante diez movidos asaltos al compás de una orquesta de jazz. Este ejercicio fué precedido por dos asaltos de boxeo con su sombra, de treinta minutos de salto de cuerda, y de trabajo en las poleas. Así pues, el retador pudo decir, al dar fin a sus labores, que había burlado la tentativa del meteorologista de interrumpir su entrenamiento.

Esta noche se disputarán dos títulos en en festival del estadio de Hollywood: el campeonato de pesoligeros de la costa del Pacífico, que hoy tiene el marinero Ashmore, y que le disputará Frankie Farren, y el de pesogallos de esta misma costa, que Teddy Silva defenderá contra Ad Rubidoux.

Golf

NUEVA YORK, junio 21.—A pesar de ser muy improbable que haya representantes británicos en la prueba, el campeonato nacional de golf libre, que se celebrará de julio 9 a 13, en el Club Campestre de Inwood, Long Island, promete atraer el mayor número de jugadores que se hayan disputado nunca un campeonato nacional. Hasta la fecha se han inscrito más de cincuenta, y se espera suban los contrincantes a 300.

GOSSIP IN WASHINGTON

July to End Worries for Long-Suffering Spanish Immigrants; Democratic Senators Plan European Trips; Ocean Liquor Rule Kicks Back

BY THE OBSERVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

WASHINGTON, June 21.—July ought to be the month of happiness for Mrs. Remedios Gonzales. Months of worry and doubt will end on the first of that month for the elderly Spanish woman who, in the past few months, has endured much. On that day she will cross the international bridge at Niagara Falls and be entitled beyond all legal doubt to make her residence in the United States.

The story of Mrs. Gonzales has been first-page news more than once. First, when she came to the United States from Spain with her son, Louis. He, it may be recalled, traveled first class, while the woman who bore him came in the steerage. There were complications about her entry, but fortunately Mrs. Gonzales had another son, Jose, living at Elizabeth, N. J. Jose furnished the necessary $500 bond to have his mother admitted temporarily, while efforts were being made to see if the quota law could not be lifted in the old woman's behalf.

For a while it looked as though there could be no relief. Jose, himself married with a wife and family to take care of, announced that if his mother had to go he would go with her to remain at her side until she could enter legally. The greatest sacrifice he felt he was making was that such a trip would disturb the orderly course of his naturalization for which he was preparing.

Such a step will be needless now. It has been arranged through a philanthropic agency that Mrs. Gonzales shall be taken to Niagara Falls the 30th inst. Early the next morning she will make a short round trip on the international bridge into Canada and then back as the first person of the Spanish quota to be admitted for the year 1923-24. Then there will be no one to question her right to make her future home in Elizabeth.

The question of Senatorial visits to Europe, mentioned once before, continues to be one of the most interesting contests that Washington has witnessed in many a day. The Republicans did get the jump on their Democratic colleagues. Senators Hiram Johnson, George Moses and Selden P. Spencer were on the wind a few days after Congress adjourned. Oscar W. Underwood was about the only Democrat to prove himself forehanded.

Since the Republican exodus, however, the Democrats have noticed that these European trips have their advantages. The Senators abroad or returning home have not only amassed first-hand knowledge of European conditions, but succeed remarkably well in getting their ideas into print. In consequence, the European urge has overcome several Democratic members of the upper house.

Meteorites which fall on the earth's surface are composed usually of stone and but rarely of iron.

The Little Warrior

BY P. G. WODEHOUSE

[SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS.]

Freddie Rooke, a young English nincompoop, takes the welfare of his friend, Sir Derek Underhill, M.P., very much to heart. Sir Derek has lately become engaged to Jill Mariner and has so written his mother, Lady Underhill. The news horrifies that lady to London and Freddie fears the worst for his friend who, in addition to keeping the commandments, must also preserve the Underhill traditions. Lady Underhill's first meeting with her son's choice is to take place at dinner in Freddie's apartments.

"Parker!"

Freddie Rooke pushed a tousled head, which had yet to be brushed into the smooth sleekness that made it a delight to the public eye, out of a room down the passage.

"Sir?"

"Somebody ringing."

"I heard, sir. I was about to answer the bell."

"If it's Lady Underhill, tell her I'll be in in a minute."

"I fancy it is Miss Mariner, sir. I think I recognise her touch."

He made his way down the passage to the front door, and opened it. A girl was standing outside. She wore a long gray cloak and a filmy gray hood covered her hair. As parker opened the door, she scampered in like a gray kitten.

"Brrrh! It's cold!" she exclaimed.

"Hullo, Parker!"

"Good evening, miss."

"Am I the last or the first or what?"

Parker moved to help her with her cloak.

"Sir Derek and her ladyship have not yet arrived, miss. Sir Derek went to bring her ladyship from the Savoy Hotel. Mr. Rooke is adressing in his bedroom and will be ready very shortly."

The girl had slipped out of the fur coat, and Parker cast a swift glance of approval at her. He had the valet's unerring eye for a thoroughbred, and Jill Mariner was manifestly that. It showed in her walk, in every move of her small, active body, in the way she looked at you, in the way she talked to you, in the little tilt of her resolute chin. Her hair was pale gold, and had the brightness of coloring of a child's. Her face glowed, and her gray eyes sparkled. She looked very much alive.

It was this aliveness of hers that was her chief charm. Her eyes were good and her mouth, with its small, even teeth, attractive, but she would have laughed if anybody had called her beautiful. She sometimes doubted if she were even pretty. Yet few men had met her and remained entirely undisturbed. She had a magnetism. One hapless youth, who had laid his heart at her feet and had been commanded to pick it up again, had endeavored subsequently to explain her attraction (to a bosom friend over a mournful bottle of the best in the club smoking-room) in these words: "I don't know what it is about her, old man, but she somehow makes a feller feel she's so damned interested in a chap, if you know what I mean." And, though not generally credited in his circle with any great acuteness, there is no doubt that the speaker had achieved something approaching a true analysis of Jill's fascination for his sex. She was interested in everything life presented to her notice, from a coronation to a stray cat. She was vivid. She had sympathy. She listened to you as though you really mattered. It takes a man of tough fiber to resist these qualities. Women, on the other hand, especially of the Lady Underhill type, can resist them without an effort.

"Go and stir him up," said Jill, alluding to the absent Mr. Rooke. "Tell him to come and talk to me. Where's the nearest fire? I want to get right over it and huddle."

"The fire's burning nicely in the sitting-room, miss."

Jill hurried into the sitting-room, and increased her hold on Parker's esteem by explaining rapturously at the sight that greeted her. Parker had expended time and trouble over the sitting-room. There was no dust, no untidiness. The pictures all hung straight; the cushions were smooth and unrumpled; and a fire of exactly the right dimensions burned cheerfully in the grate, flickering cosily on the small piano by the couch, on the deep leather arm-chairs which Freddie had brought with him from Oxford, that home of comfortable chairs, and on the photographs that studded the walls. In the center of the mantelpiece, the place of honor, was the photograph of herself which she had given Dereck a week ago.

"You're simply wonderful, Parker! I don't see how you manage to make a room so cosy!" Jill sat down on the club-fender that guarded the fireplace, and held her hands over the blaze. "I can't understand why men ever marry. Fancy having to give up all this!"

"I am gratified that you appreciate it, miss. I did my best to make it comfortable for you. I fancy I hear Mr. Rooke coming now."

"I hope the others won't be long "I'm starving. Has Mrs. Parker got something very good for dinner?"

"She has strained every nerve, miss."

"Then I'm sure it's worth waiting for. Hullo, Freddie."

Freddie Rooke, resplendent in evening dress, bustled in, patting his tie with solicitous fingers. It had been right when he had looked in the glass in his bedroom, but you never know about ties. Sometimes they stay right, sometimes they wiggle up sideways. Life is full of these anxieties."

"I shouldn't touch it," said Jill. "It looks beautiful, and, if I may say so in confidence, is having a most disturbing effect on my emotional nature. I'm not at all sure I shall be able to resist it right through the evening. It isn't fair of you to try to alienate the affections of an engaged young person like this."

Freddie squinted down, and became calmer.

"Hullo, Jill, old thing. Nobody here yet?"

"Well, I'm here,—the petite figure seated on the fender. But perhaps I don't count."

"Oh, I didn't mean that, you know."

"I should hope not, when I've bought a special new dress just to fascinate you. A creation I mean. When they cost as much as this one did, you have to call them names. What do you think of it?"

Freddie seated himself on another section of the fender, and regarded her with the eye of an expert. A snappy dresser, as the technical term is, himself, he appreciated snap in the outer covering of the other sex.

"Topping!" he said spaciously. "No other word for it! All wool and a yard wide! Precisely as mother makes it! You look like a thingummy!"

"How splendid! All my life I've wanted to look like a thingummy, but somehow I've never been able to manage it."

"A wood-nymph!" exclaimed Freddie, in a burst of unwonted imagery.

"Wood-nymphs didn't wear creations."

"Well, you know what I mean!" He looked at her with honest admiration. "Dash it, Jill, you know, there's something about you! Your're—what's the word?—you've got such small bones!"

"Ugh! I suppose it's a compliment, but how horrible it sounds! It makes me feel like a skeleton."

"I mean to say, you're—you're dainty!"

"That's much better."

"You look as if you weighed about an ounce and a half! You look like a bit of thistledown! Your're a little fairy princess dash it!"

"Freddie! This is eloquence!" Jill raised her left hand, and twiddled a rinsed finger ostentatiously. "Er—you do realize that I'm bespoke, don't you, and that my heart, alas, is another's? Because you sound as if you were going to propose."

Freddie produced a snowy handkerchief, and polished his eyeglass. Solemnity descended on him like a cloud. He looked at Jill with an earnest, paternal gaze.

"That reminds me," he said. "I wanted to have a bit of a talk with you about that—being engaged and all that sort of thing. I'm glad I got you alone before the curse arrived."

"Curse? Do you mean Derek's mother? That sounds cheerful and encouraging."

"Well, she is, you know," said Freddie earnestly. "She's a bird! It would be idle to deny it. She always puts the fear of God into me. I never know what to say to her."

"Why don't you try asking her riddles?"

"It's no joking matter," persisted Freddie, his amiable face overcast. "Wait till you meet her! You should have seen her at the station this morning. You don't know what you're up against!"

"You make my flesh creep, Freddie. What am I up against?"

Freddie poked the fire scientifically, and assisted it with coal.

"It's this way," he said. "Of course, dear old Derek's the finest chap in the world."

"I know that," said Jill softly. She patted Freddie's hand with a little gesture of gratitude. Freddie's devotion to Derek was a thing that always touched her. She looked thoughtfully into the fire, and her eyes seemed to glow in sympathy with the glowing coals. "There's nobody like him!"

"But," continued Freddie, "he always has been frightfully under his mother's thumb, you know."

Jill was conscious of a little flicker of irritation.

"Well, you know what I mean."

"I don't in the least know what you mean."

"I mean, it would be rather rotten if his mother set him against you."

Jill clenched her teeth. The quick temper which always lurked so very little beneath the surface of her cheerfulness was stirred. She felt suddenly chilled and miserable. She tried to tell herself that Freddie was just an amiable blunderer who spoke without sense or reason, but it was no use. It had been the one jarring note in the melody of her romance, this apprehension of Derek's regarding his mother. The Derek she loved was a strong man with a strong man's contempt for other people's criticism. She tried to feel that the flaw in her idol did not exist, but here was Freddie Rooke, a man who admired Derek with all his hero-worshipping nature, pointing it out independently. She was annoyed, and she expended her annoyance, as women will do, upon the innocent bystander.

A 5 Year telephone task performed in a few minutes

Suppose you had a used car for sale, a room for rent or an orange grove to exchange, how long would it take to telephone your proposition to each family served with the LOS ANGELES SUNDAY TIMES?

Allowing 5 minutes per call, it would take approximately 14,000 hours, or, by telephoning 8 hours per day, week days and Sundays, you could finish the task in about 5 years.

But there is a different method whereby practically the same thing is achieved by using the telephone ONCE. Call up THE TIMES, give your message to an ad-taker, and it will be automatically broadcast throughout the same audience. By means of TIMES Want Ads your few minutes' conversation is converted into the equivalent of five years of telephoning.

WEALTHY MATE SURPRISES WIFE

Winfield Scott of Texas Files Divorce Suit

Wife Sees Notice in Paper While Visiting Mother

Cruelty and Extravagance Asserted in Plaint

BY W. D. HORNADAY
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FORT WORTH (Tex.) June 21. While Mrs. Winfield Scott was in Kansas City, Mo., a few days ago visiting her mother, her millionaire husband, young son of the late Winfield Scott, pioneer ranchman of Texas, sprang a surprise on her by filing a suit for divorce in District Court here. Mrs. Scott got her first notice of the divorce proceedings by reading the item in a newspaper.

She returned to Fort Worth immediately, accompanied by her mother, and announced herself ready and determined to fight the divorce suit to the fullest limit. She asserted there had been no trouble whatever between her and her husband during their six months of married life and that when she left Fort Worth a few days prior to the filing of the divorce suit they were on the best of terms.

FRIENDS SURPRISED

Friends of the couple in Fort Worth confirm this statement. They do not recall any evidences of marital discord and point to the fact that the couple had made plans to spend the summer in California and that only a few days ago Mrs. Scott was packing personal effects of both her husband and her own. It is said that when Mrs. Scott left Fort Worth she stated that she intended going to Kansas City for a few days to visit with her mother and would go from there to California where she would be joined by Scott and together they would spend the summer touring the State. Intimate friends of the couple state that Scott accompanied her to the station and bade her good-bye as she boarded the train.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott were married in Kansas City, January 9, 1922. She was Miss Gertrude J. Lane. They had met in Roxbury, Mass., where she was attending school when Scott was a student at Yale. Immediately after their marriage they came to Fort Worth and despite the fact that Scott inherited the bulk of his father's estate, estimated at the time of his death at more than $5,000,000, the couple lived in a very modest way.

ENTERED BUSINESS

Only a few months ago Scott entered the automobile business, and this venture, friends of the couple say, was upon the insistence of his wife.

"Cruel treatment" and "extravagance" are given as the grounds for divorce. The petition was immediately withdrawn from the District Clerk's office by attorneys for the plaintiff. It was learned from the citation which was sent to Kansas City that the following assertions are contained in the suit.

"That the plaintiff treated the defendant with kindness and consideration in every manner as her husband, but very shortly after their marriage she became guilty of certain excesses and cruel treatment toward him which was of such nature as to render their living together insupportable.

"That she began a course of conduct which rendered it impossible for the plaintiff to further live with the defendant.

"That she was and became exceedingly extravagant in the use of money to the extent of buying unnecessary wearing apparel and other such articles.

"That she used abusive language in speaking with him. That she made derogatory remarks about him which affected him deeply and brought him ridicule before his friends and acquaintances.

"That contrary to remonstrances she became worse and worse in her conduct toward him."

PAIR PATCH UP TROUBLE ON SEA TRIP

Wife and Husband Take Same Boat; Divorce Suit is Canceled

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HONOLULU, June 21.—The $250,000 divorce suit of Mrs. Stephanie Brown against Francis Brown, golf champion of Hawaii, crack polo player, and one of the heirs to the immense John Li estate, has been canceled on radioed instructions from Mrs. Brown while she was aboard the steamer Maui bound for San Francisco, it became known here today. The Maui was due to reach San Francisco yesterday.

Both traveled to the mainland on the Maui without knowing they were to be fellow passengers until after the ship had sailed.

Some time ago Mrs. Brown, who charged her husband with habitual intemperance, and who had asked $250,000 lump sum alimony, engaged passage for San Francisco on another vessel. Brown had bought his ticket on the same ship. Then each discovered that the other was to be a traveling companion, so each quietly canceled sailing arrangements to avoid embarrassment.

Then Brown engaged passage on the Maui. Mrs. Brown did the same thing, not knowing her husband was to be aboard, and neither discovered the fact until the ship had cleared Honolulu harbor, and was well on her way to San Francisco.

A few days later the radio instructions came from Mrs. Brown to discontinue the suit against her husband.

The Startling Story of Twelve Toothbrushes

What a Bacteriologist Found on the Toothbrushes of a Dozen Business Men—

SOME time ago twelve business men all thirty years or more of age agreed to submit the toothbrushes they were then using to a bacteriological examination. The brushes were collected and sent to one of the leading bacteriologists of the country with the request that he examine them for pyorrhea germs. His report has just been received. It shows that pyorrhea germs were found on the bristles of ten of the toothbrushes examined.

It must be borne in mind that the men whose toothbrushes were submitted were not picked as likely victims of pyorrhea. They were taken at random. The report in full is too long for publication. We will simply quote from the letter which accompanied it.

"Zonite Products Company, New York City.

Gentlemen: We enclose herewith our report on the cultures made from the twelve toothbrushes submitted to us for bacteriological examination. On ten of the twelve toothbrushes examined we found the bacteria prevalent in cases of pyorrhea."

Now what does the above letter indicate? It indicates that in the mouths of about eight out of ten Americans who are no longer in the bloom of youth pyorrhea germs are at work slowly reducing them to toothless old age, filling their systems with pus-poison and undermining their health.

Disinfect the Mouth

Pyorrhea is a condition produced by bacterial infection. The human mouth constantly harbors millions of bacteria seeking an accessible retreat in which to colonize and multiply. If the mouth is thoroughly disinfected once or twice a day, this colonization and growth of bacteria cannot take place.

The problem then is to find an antiseptic powerful enough to really kill bacteria that can be used freely and safely as a mouth wash. A perfected form of a famous world-war discovery at last places such an antiseptic in the hands of the public. It is called Zonite.

Zonite is non-poisonous and non-irritating. It has greater germicidal power in the presence of saliva than pure carbolic acid. It has a hundred times the germicidal power of mild antiseptics and pleasant-tasting mouth washes heretofore in general use.

In recent laboratory tests the saliva of pyorrhea patients reeking with bacteria was subjected to a solution of one part Zonite to fifty parts water. In one minute all germs were killed.

To sum up: If you wish to avoid pyorrhea or check it in its earlier stages see your dentist regularly, throw away scented, pleasant-tasting mouth washes and use Zonite at least once a day.

The above statement is endorsed by leading bacteriologists and dentists. It has been proved by laboratory and dental tests.

HINT DEATH FOR SPANISH ARMY CHIEF

Sensation Sprung During Quiz of Moroccan Debacle in Senate

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MADRID, June 21.—A sensation occurred in the Spanish Senate yesterday on the question of the responsibility for the Moroccan debacle in 1921 when Senator Cavestany, a noted dramatist, in the course of his address likened the disaster to that suffered by the Greek army in Asia Minor and reminded the Senate of what happened to the Greek ministers and military commanders who were deemed responsible.

The president of the Senate called Senator Cavestany to order amid loud protest, his views being held as dangerous in view of the probable trial of Gen. Berenguer, commander-in-chief of the Spanish army in Morocco at the time of the disaster.

The Spanish government has appointed Mauricio Lopez Roberts as official delegate to the Tangier conference. The appointment caused much satisfaction in political circles, inasmuch as Roberts has been the Spanish diplomatic agent in Tangier and is well informed on the questions at issue.

Congressman Raker, while here, took opportunity to declare for the absolute exclusion of Japanese immigrants. At present Hawaii receives Japanese picture brides, wives of Japanese residents and the privileged classes of Japanese, such as merchants, students and travelers.

Speaking to a civic organization, Congressman Raker declared:

"I have examined carefully the records at the vital statistics bureau and I have seen what you or anyone else who is familiar with the question must have seen. It takes no mental gymnastics to tell what will happen to Hawaii within ten years. You have only to look at the schools and the records of births and you will see.

"Every boy or girl born on American soil and within the jurisdiction of the American government is an American citizen and entitled to the privileges of an American citizen, as well as the right to exercise his or her vote just the same as any other citizen, be his parents the subject of a foreign nation or not.

"Within ten years a transformation can come. Don't let things slide along. It is a vital problem, and unless you solve it Congress will. And God forbid that there should ever be established a commission form of government in these islands.

"We have been fed up on this 'melting pot' idea. The pot has boiled over again, and now some people are trying to step up holes in the corroded bottom, which has almost fallen through from boiling and boiling—they are trying to patch it up and fill it full of another brew—all for the sake of the almighty dollar.

"IT CAN'T BE DONE"

"Friends, it can't be done. This Territory and our country cannot be overloaded with foreign immigration, unassimilable, dregs of the land from which they come. Nothing that can be done should be overlooked to prevent the importing into our land of hordes of cheap—the cheapest of the cheap—contract laborers. We want only those who will become good citizens.

"There are some who are seeking to pry open the door, so that they may let in the flood of cheap laborers."

A few days later, speaking to the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, Raker went further in urging exclusion of oriental races. He said in part:

"I want to see Congress say who shall come to this country and who shall not.

"We've got to pass a positive law excluding Japanese—not determined by a commission, but by Congress.

"We have already said that the Hindus, Chinese and Japanese cannot be citizens. Can't we say that they shall not come into our country?

"From ten to fifteen years hence, by mathematical count, figuring on the present birth rate and with all the boys and girls coming on here and those going to school elsewhere, but who can come back here, one nationality can elect every public officer of the district from Senator down."

WORLD PARLEY PROPOSED

Congressman Johnson proposed a world parley on immigration, to be conducted in Hawaii, which, he declared, is the natural place for such a conference. He indicated a determination not to modify the 3 per cent immigration quota law and declared that, as Japan is protecting her nationalism, so the United States must protect American nationalism.

Both Congressmen declared themselves opposed to a commission form of government for Hawaii. Raker declared that to turn Hawaii over to a commission and take away its self-government would be "a crime against civilization."

WILL FIGHT WAGE LAW IN ARIZONA

Minimum for Women is Declared Unconstitutional by Merchant

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) June 21.—There is to be trial of the Arizona women's minimum-wage law on July 16, possibly in Los Angeles or San Francisco, if a Federal Circuit Court of Appeals magistrate prefers not to experience the heat of Arizona or if the two Arizona Federal judges prefer the coast climate. The three are to constitute a court of equity in which will be determined whether the decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the District of Columbia minimum-wage suit shall be applied in Arizona.

United States Judge Sawtelle refused to grant a temporary injunction against enforcement of the act of the last Legislature setting a minimum of $16 a week for women in Arizona. A restraining order was asked by A. Sardell, Nogales merchant, employer of four women, and was sought against the State and the county of Santa Cruz. It was stipulated that Sardell might continue as he has till the major case has been determined, but the Attorney-General, represented by Earl Anderson, and County Attorney W. A. O'Connor of Nogales announced they would proceed against all other violations.

Sardell's contention is that the act deprives him of a constitutional right to contract and of property without due process of law.

FORMER MODEL SUES SCULPTOR

Asserts Head Study Placed on Another's Nude Body

Home Wrecked as Result, is Charged in Plaint

Asks $200,000 for Balm to Wounded Spirit

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—If you had posed for a sculptor to make a study of your head and shoulders and he had later attached your head to another girl's nude body, and if the resulting statue had broken up your happy married life and wrecked your health, would you consider you had been damaged $200,000 worth?

That is what Mrs. Charles U. Lind, 20 years of age, pretty and bobbed-haired, says happened to her and that is the amount of the damage suit she is preparing to bring against A. Stirling Calder, noted sculptor.

Because she is still a minor, she has had her father, Abraham Levy, 241 West Ninety-seventh street, appointed her guardian ad litem by Judge Richard P. Lydon in the Supreme Court, and three suits, one against the sculptor, one against the Vogue Company for a picture of the statue published in that magazine, and one against the American Sculpture Society for putting it on exhibition, are to be filed within a day or two.

CAUSED BREAKDOWN

Mrs. Lind told of the case at her father's home, where she is staying since her return from several weeks at Lake Placid, where she went to recover from the breakdown she says was caused by her troubles over the statue. She is of the petite, Titian type, with a marked resemblance to Irene Castle.

"It was while I was a student at the Art Students' League in June, 1921, that Mr. Calder, who was my instructor, asked me to pose for a head," Mrs. Lind said. "It turned out splendidly and I was very much pleased with it. After I was married I gave up my art studies and it was not until February of this year that I knew what Mr. Calder had done with my head.

"That was when a picture of his statue, 'The Last Dryad,' came out in Vogue. Of course, a lot of my friends and relatives saw it and began talking. It was a terrible blow to my husband and he refused to believe that I had not posed in the nude. My mother-in-law, Mrs. M. P. Foster, thought the same thing and nothing I could say would convince them otherwise.

"The mortification and the disgrace brought on a breakdown, and when I was able I had to go to Lake Placid to recuperate. There has been no reconciliation with my husband, who still believes I posed for all of the statue.

"It would not have been quite so bad if it were an ordinary nude pose, but to have one's head attached to the immodest, daring pose of Mr. Calder's 'Dryad' is an outrage, especially as he did it without my consent or even knowledge."

SCULPTOR QUIET

The statue in dispute is of a slender girl with bobbed-hair crouched upon a curved tree trunk and drawing away in terror from an approaching menace. Mrs. Lind says that she knows the model who posed for the body, at the same time the head was made.

"The Last Dryad" is at present on exhibition at the Hispanic Museum, One Hundred and Fifty-sixth street and Broadway.

Mr. Calder, when seen at his studio, refused to say whether he had used Mrs. Lind's head on another body or to discuss the case in any way. When a young woman reporter called later to tell him of the assertions in the guardianship action and to ask if he had anything to say in reply, he had her forcibly ejected by the janitor.

At the office of Davis & Hayden, Mrs. Lind's attorneys, it was said that photographs of the head study were being made and that when that was done the suits would be filed.

TO DECLINE ENTRIES FOR PARK LAND

Government Agents Seek Power to Protect City's Title to Griffith Tract

Following the filing of two homestead claims for portions of Griffith Park and the announcement that twenty-six other persons will file claims, the aggregate covering the whole of the 4081 acres in the city park, which it is claimed is still government-owned property and subject to filing, Register Valentine and Receiver Smith of the local Land Office yesterday sent a telegram to Secretary of the Interior Work, requesting authority to decline to receive entries for land in the park.

The two entries were filed by Edward T. Cresap and Charles H. Chapman. Both have been marked "rejected" at the local Land Office.

"The proposed attack upon the title to Griffith Park ought to be considered a disgrace to the community," City Attorney Stephens and Park Commissioner Van Griffith, son of the donor of the park, said in a joint statement. "This is the most flagrant example of lack of civic consciousness and an attempt to satisfy personal greed that has been displayed in the community for some time. It goes without saying that it will be resisted to the utmost and that the interests of the public will be protected against such lack of public spirit."

According to the old records in the Land Office, the land was granted under a Spanish grant, and had been in the possession of Griffith, his predecessors and successors, without cloud to the title, for many years. The would-be homesteaders assert the Griffith tract was a part of a Spanish grant and automatically became government land

What higher recommendation does a subdivision need than to have such a man as City Engineer Griffin purchase a lot in it? It is his business to know Los Angeles better than any other man in the city—to know how rapidly it is growing and in what direction most of that growth is occurring.

And armed with this knowledge he bought in GREATER GOODYEAR PARK. How wise he was is shown by the fact that he made almost 100% profit in 40 days by re-selling it.

Mr. Martin Knapp Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I was troubled with irritation of the skin on my face and other parts of my body. Later hard red pimples broke out which after a time festered and caused disfigurement. They itched so that I scratched and the rubbing of my clothes caused them to spread.

"I tried other remedies with but little success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased more and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Martin Knapp, Burlington, Colo. Aug 10 1922

FRESNO CHEST CONFAB CALLED

Actual Organization Will be Perfected Soon

Advertising Club Head Will Visit Raisin City

Street Inspector Hopes to Share in Estate

FRESNO, June 21.—Fresno's community chest will become an actual organization the 28th inst. for which date the first annual meeting has been called. A board of fifteen directors is to be elected. Within two weeks thereafter a president, two vice-presidents and a treasurer are to be chosen. A paid director also is to be selected soon, and a date fixed for the drive to create the chest fund.

Copies of a tentative constitution recently adopted for the chest have been mailed by Secretary Leonard of the organization group to all interested bodies, with a request that each send two delegates to the annual meeting. These delegates will be the official council.

The directors immediately after their selection will name budget, campaign and executive committees.

The chest movement has been carried to its present stage by a group of citizens chosen recently at a mass meeting representative of most of the civic and philanthropic organizations of Fresno.

ADVERTISING MAN COMING

Louis E. Holland of Kansas City, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, will be a guest of the Fresno club the 27th inst. Word was received yesterday that Holland will come here after the convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Advertising Clubs, now in progress at Spokane, Wash.

Arrangements are being made here for a banquet in Holland's honor, at the Hotel Fresno.

Word has been received from Spokane that Fresno had been chosen for the 1924 convention city of the Pacific Coast ad men.

MAY SHARE IN FORTUNE

Four Fresnans have high hopes of getting a major share of a $1,500,000 estate soon to be distributed, according to Alex M. Jones, street inspector and one of the hopeful ones. The property is the Jacob Baker estate of Philadelphia, long in litigation and reported in newspapers lately to be of fabulous value. Jones says, however, that something more than $1,000,000 is a fair estimate of its worth.

The estate was originally granted to Jacob Henry Baker at the time of the Revolution and was leased to the government in 1787 for ninety-nine years. When the lease expired, says Jones, apportionment was not made to the heirs. They sued and in 1890 the courts decided in their favor, he says, but ever since then litigation has prevented distribution of the property. But recently he has been informed that he and other claimants are soon to come into their own.

There are about 150 heirs, according to Jones, but the only ones in California who have a direct claim are himself, John Robert Jones, Jacob Yost Jones III and Samuel K. Jones of Fresno and four other children of the late Jacob Yost Jones II.

FIREWORKS BANNED

Sale or use of fireworks within a four-mile radius of the County Courthouse is prohibited in an emergency ordinance adopted yesterday by the County Board of Supervisors. The law is effective at once. It supplements two city ordinances already in force and to the same general effect, merely extending the fireworks ban into certain unincorporated areas on the outskirts of the city that are thickly populated.

MYSTERY CLEARED UP

Confessions by four boys of the Washington Junior High School have cleared up the mystery of the "painting party" there that for a time prevented all senior boys from receiving their diplomas. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by City Superintendent of Schools Cooper. Parts of the school building more than a week ago were smeared with satirical observations about faculty members. Nobody would tell who did the painting. Cooper therefore suspended all the senior boys. Since the confessions of guilt by lads whose names Cooper will not divulge, the withheld sheepskins have been distributed.

Pickpocket Gets Federal Agent's Watch, Chain

U. S. Commissioner Long was the victim of a pickpocket yesterday, while he was walking from the Federal Building to the Pacific Electric station.

The commissioner was relieved of a gold watch, with chain and a charm. The watch is one of Mr. Long's most treasured possessions, which he has carried since 1883. His name is engraved inside and outside of the case.

BUSINESS MEN HEAR PAPER MANUFACTURER

Four hundreds persons allied with the paper and printing businesses last night jammed Symphony Hall, 332 South Hill street, as guests of the Zellerbach Paper Company to hear lectures on paper and the relationship of the paper business to that of printing. Those present in the audience came from many points in Southern California, including several from Santa Barbara.

Practical ideas in salesmanship in relation to the printing industry were incorporated in an address by George Ilmsted of the S. D. Warren Company, Boston. Jesse W. Clark of the same firm also lectured, illustrating his talk with motion pictures.

Speeches of welcome were made by J. Y. Baruh, general manager, and V. E. Hecht, assistant manager of the Zellerbach Paper Company of Los Angeles. Ward Nash of the advertising department of the Zellerbach Company, discussed the advantages of the various mediums of advertising, showing how newspapers of the country lead all other means.

GIRL HIT BY CAR DIES ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Struck by an automobile when she darted from behind another machine going in the opposite direction, Iona Garland, 7 years of age, living at 1403 East Forty-ninth street, was picked up on Compton avenue near Forty-eighth street, suffering injuries from which she died on the way to the hospital. Thomas W. Myles, 2746 Boulder avenue, driver of the motor car, was absolved from blame by police.

AGED MAN DIES OF INJURIES IN CRASH

Frank Harasta, 76 years of age, died last night of injuries he suffered when struck by an automobile at Vernon and Main streets Tuesday. He had stepped off a street car when he was struck by a car driven by Phillip Gardiner of San Gabriel. Harasta leaves a widow and six children. The body was removed to the Ruppe mortuary.

START FUND FOR HEROIC MONUMENT

Grain Exchange Subscribes for Tribute to Progress of City; Site at Harbor

Six officials of the Grain Exchange sent to the Chamber of Commerce yesterday the nucleus for a fund to erect a monument of heroic size at Point Firmin, to express the spirit which has made Los Angeles the leading commercial and industrial center of the Pacific Coast.

Capt. John D. Fredericks, Congressman-elect and former president of the chamber, suggested such a monument at a recent banquet of the chamber, and yesterday's action was the first step toward carrying it out.

The Grain Exchange suggestion was that the monument be erected by subscriptions of $1 each by Los Angeles residents and that in size it should equal or surpass the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor and place Los Angeles Harbor in the same relation to the Pacific Coast as New York to the Atlantic.

The subscriptions were made by M. D. Thiebaud, secretary; C. G. White, traffic manager; R. E. Larson, bookkeeper; Chester Silcox, chief inspector; O. W. Dillinger, inspector and A. J. Lohbeck, sampler.

Charge Running Sanitarium in Barred Section

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SOUTH PASADENA, June 21.—Dr. Rose Moore, proprietor of Los Terradors Hotel, pleaded not guilty to a charge of maintaining a sanatorium in a restricted district, as complained by residents of the Sierra Vista district, when arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Crump. Dr. Moore was arrested on complaint of Hazel M. Hollis, 2046 Alpha street, who asserted that the hotel is occupied by persons mentally unbalanced who are allowed to roam the streets.

Hearing on the question of whether Dr. Moore is conducting a bonafide hotel or a sanatorium was set for July 13. Residents of the Sierra Vista district are reported to have employed attorneys to prosecute the case against Dr. Moore.

J. H. Stearns, lessee and manager of the place, denies that anyone ill is a patient in the hotel. He said he recently returned from six months in Europe and it is possible sick persons may have stayed at the hotel in his absence.

FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL, POLICE LAUNCH QUIZ

MAN LEFT NOTE SAYING HE WAS BOTHERED WITH RHEUMATISM

Investigation is being made by police today into the death of Herman Brandt, 76 years of age, who was found dead late yesterday afternoon in his room at the Chapman Hotel, Fifth and Wall streets. Police are undecided whether Brandt took his own life by swallowing poison or died a natural death.

Brandt came to Los Angeles from Maryland in 1888. He left a note in which he stated that he had been troubled with rheumatism. The note also stated that because of his desire to get away from his relatives he had assumed the name of J. H. Block when he came here. The body was removed to the Armstrong mortuary.

CRIME CODE EXAMPLE TO ALL STATES

New California Laws Are Model for Nation, Speakers Say at Legislative Dinner

That the program of criminal reform sponsored by the Los Angeles Crime Commission and intended primarily to combat crimes of violence in Los Angeles city and county will be one which will not only benefit the State at large but probably will be copied generally throughout the United States, was the opinion expressed by members of the State Legislature at a dinner given in their honor by the Crime Commission at the Athletic Club last night.

The function signalized the announcement of the complete success of the Crime Commission's legislative program through the signing by the Governor of the last of its series of bills. Members of the Southern California delegation to the Legislature, members of the Crime Commission, officers of the Senate and Sacramento newspaper correspondents were present.

Walter K. Tuller, chairman of the Crime Commission, who presidered as toastmaster, spoke briefly of the origin, purposes and accomplishments of the Commission and declared that the thanks not only of the Commission and the citizens of Los Angeles out of all the people of the State are due to the members of the Legislature for the passage of these important laws.

Special emphasis was laid by Major Tuller upon the new laws imposing heavier penalties upon criminals operating with deadly weapons and those restricting probation and parole to dangerous law breakers and to unfaithful public servants.

Replying, the Legislators complimented the Commission highly upon its work which they declared will be of tremendous aid in diminishing crime in California and, by example, throughout the country. Legislators who spoke were Senators Harry Chamberlin and Charles H. V. Lewis and Assemblymen Sidney T. Graves, Henry E. Carter, Edwin Baker, now Councilman-elect; F. M. Roberts, W. E. Badham, Harry Lyons, Elmer P. Bromley, Hugh R. Pomeroy, Otto Emme, J. J. Prendergast, Edwin A. Mueller, Charles B. Dawson and Frank C. Weller. Joseph Beek and Joseph F. Nolan, respectively secretary and sergeant-at-arms of the State Senate, also spoke. Speakers for the Crime Commission were Major Tuller, G. G. Young, Dr. Frank Barham, Henry S. McKee, Mendel Silberberg, Zach Farmer, F. W. Eldridge, Buron Fitts, Wesley Barr and R. W. Trueblood. Sacramento newspaper correspondents present were Kyle Palmer, Denton Crow and John A. Gray.

Publicity Man to be Wed to Film Actress

Charles Heston Peirson, well-known newspaper man and publicity writer, and Mrs. Percy Franklin Montgomery, actress on stage and screen, will be married next Sunday, it was learned yesterday.

The ceremony will take place at the old Jack London home in the Valley of the Moon near Glen Ellen. The bride-to-be is a cousin of Mrs. London, who will be matron of honor.

As a writer for newspapers and magazines, Mr. Peirson is widely known. His genial disposition and personality belie his 62 years of life. He is publicity director for the Southern California Edison Company.

Mrs. Montgomery is the daughter of Julius Lyons, one of the oldest practicing attorneys in California. On the legitimate stage she played leads in San Francisco and New York. For some time she supported Olga Nethersole. Her work on the screen was notable for her portrayal of Senorita Gonzales in "Ramona." Her last screen appearance was in Harold Bell Wright's "Eyes of the World."

After October 1, Mr. and Mrs. Peirson will be "at home" at the Sunset Canyon Country Club near Burbank.

Shuler, Forbes and Oaks Asked to Talk Crime

Chief of Police Oaks, Rev. Bob Shuler and Judge Forbes have been invited to address the City Club on the subject of crime in Los Angeles at the luncheon tomorrow.

The appearance of the three persons who have been prominent in making and denying charges that Los Angeles is "wide open" on the rostrum at one time was planned by the club, it is stated, to obtain the different viewpoints on the public question of law enforcement.

Eye and Nose Specialists in Meeting Here

The eleventh annual convention of the Pacific Coast Oto-Opthalmological Society was opened yesterday at the Hotel Ambassador with a preliminary address by the organization's president, Dr. William Humes Roberts of Pasadena.

The morning was devoted to a series of lectures by members on subjects ranging from "Visual Defects Resulting from Affections of the Nasal Accessory Sinuses" to the "Melano-Sarcoma of the Choroid." During the afternoon the delegates attended a barbecue at the Uplifters' Ranch in Santa Monica, which was followed in the evening by a dinner dance at a local country club.

Today the society will be the guest of the eye, ear, nose and throat staff of the General Hospital, where clinics will be conducted throughout the morning.

Magnitude of the Telephone Business Explained

Electric Energy Sales Grow Twenty-five Per Cent

A. W. Coote Holds Out Hope of a Reorganization

To enable some of its subscribers to appreciate the magnitude of the operations conducted by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and subsidiaries through the 14,000,000 telephones in service in the United States, the Bell system has prepared a few pertinent observations of its business, some of which are presented below.

To provide telephone service for the 110,500,000 people living in the continental United States, the Bell system uses enough wire to span the distance from the earth to the moon more than 125 times.

The Bell system owns duct space for carrying cables underground of sufficient length to reach more than seven times through the center of the earth from pole to pole.

If all the buildings owned by the Bell system were grouped together, they would make a business community with 400 more buildings than the total number of office buildings in New York City.

More than $5,000,000 telephone conversations take place every day over its wires.

The number of Bell telephones in the United States is greater than the total number of telephones in all the other countries of the world combined.

The telephone properties of the Bell system cost over $1,700,000,000.

There is a Bell telephone for every eight persons in the United States.

Nearly 249,000 individuals own American Telephone stock, and more than half of this number are women.

OIL STOCK LISTED

Buckeye Union Oil Company common and preferred stocks have been passed for listing on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange by the board of governors, and will be called the 27th inst. The company is capitalized at $500,000 of preferred and $500,000 of common stock, having a par of $1, all of which is outstanding. The properties are situated in Huntington Beach, Santa Fe Springs and 640 Acres in Santa Cruz county.

The officers are Orra E. Monnette, president; A. L. Irish, vice-president and general manager; M. J. Monnette, treasurer; James E. Randall, secretary J. R. Rutherford, assistant secretary and treasurer.

ELECTRIC ENERGY

An increase of 25.3 per cent in the total industrial sales of electric energy for March, 1923, over March, 1922, is shown by the report of the Federal Reserve Bank for the Twelfth District, according to Blyth, Witter & Co. This is the largest monthly increase shown during the past year, and indicates the continued quickening of industry in this district.

In California, total industrial sales of electric energy show an increase of 32.2 per cent for the period. The greatest gain was made in sales for agricultural purposes, which gained 58.3 per cent. Manufacturing was second, with a gain of 38.3 per cent, and mining showed an increase of 7.7 per cent.

The number of industrial consumers of electricity in California for March, 1923, was 55,636 as compared with 46,914 for March, 1922, a gain of 8766.

DINNER FOR BOOTH

Willis Booth, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given Monday evening at the Los Angeles Country Club by the Security Trust and Savings Bank. The affair is being arranged by officers of the bank, and approximately 100 members of the Security force will be present.

Mr. Booth is president of the International Chamber of Commerce, and continues to hold a vice-presidency in the Security Trust and Savings Bank, with which he was actively identified for several years.

PERSONAL MENTION

Drake, Riley & Thomas announce the association of John W. Frost, formerly of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, with their sales department. He was also identified with Rhoades & Co., of New York, and was also special assistant and confidential secretary to Will H. Hays, when the latter was Postmaster-General.

Howard N. Martin & Co. announce that Donald C. MacFadyen, formerly with Edmunds Bros., of Boston, and F. Caneer, late of the local office of Carstens & Earles, are now members of the sales department of that organization.

CALIFORNIA PETROLEUM

April profits of the California Petroleum Corporation are reported by Dow, Jones & Co. as amounting to $787,000 after deducting taxes, sinking fund provisions, and depletion and depreciation charges. This is at the same monthly rate as earnings in the first quarter, when the net was $2,292,361 after all deductions, or the equivalent to $7.54 a share on the combined preferred and common stocks.

DIVIDEND DECLARATIONS

Westinghouse Electric declared regular quarterly dividends of $1 on common and preferred stocks. Common is payable July 31 to stock of record June 30, and preferred July 16, stock of record June 30.

Northern Pacific declared regular quarterly $1.25 dividend payable August 1 to stock of record July 2.

COTTON PRICES SHOW STRONG UNDERTONE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—The cotton market showed a strong undertone in an active session today. An early advance of 16 to 33 points encouraged profit-taking, but the list again moved higher in the latter dealings. Buying in the distant months was not so aggressive, but final prices were just under the day's best, and 42 to 83 points net higher.

Spot was steady, 85 points advance, 28.50 for middling upland. Southern markets: Galveston, 28.70 50 points advance; New Orleans, 28, 50 points advance; Savannah, 28.20, 50 points advance; Augusta, 27.63, 63 points advance, Memphis, 28.50, unchanged; Houston, 28.50, 75 points advance; Little Rock, 27.75, 50 points advance.

DAILY TRADE TALK

No Real Reason for Panicky Outburst; Business is Sound; Warning Against Careless Financing

BY CRAPIN HALL

"Every New York Stock Exchange house is sound."

This statement is reputed to President Cromwell of the stock exchange a few hours before the failure of the second large and influential firm to be announced within three days.

It illustrates the frailty of human judgment in matters pertaining to speculative transactions, for if anyone in the world was in a position to know whereof he speaks it would appear to be the head of the world's greatest exchange.

The failure of Zimmerman & Forshay again emphasized the danger attendant upon foreign-exchange trading, a division in which both of the houses which have recently gone to the wall were specializing.

Foreign exchange in the present state of world affairs is laden with T.N.T.

Disquieting rumors and street gossip are said to have had a good deal to do with the latest failure. Few houses are in a position to withstand an assault by frightened clients, even though their assets may exceed liabilities if given an opportunity to thaw.

Just now the entire financial district, so far as it relates to speculative markets, is suffering from a severe attack of nerves. It is decidedly "jumpy." Traders feel that they are sitting atop a volcano, and this notwithstanding the fact that careful investigation fails to reveal a sufficient cause for such an attitude. There is actually no reason for fright, and it is a time when no attention should be paid to idle talk, which always prevails after a big failure.

The upward movement will doubtless be resumed, after the current scare is over, in seasoned and marketable issues that enjoy high current earnings and a strong cash position. Commentators call attention to the fact, which they say is noteworthy, that floor traders who have been selling short cover whenever a comparatively small profit offers. At the same time, buying is largely of a scale-down character and reflects the confidence of important operators even in the fact of surface pessimism.

As a matter of fact, more honest, safe, money-making investment securities are being offered the public today than ever before in the history of the United States. Yet, while Germans have been sending money across the Atlantic for heavy purchases of high-class bonds and stocks here, Americans have been "investing" in German marks and thereby losing not far from $500,000,000, in addition to to annual American fraudulent-stock loss of $500,000,000.

What's the trouble? Why doesn't the thrifty American dollar as readily find the sound investments that are a sure road to a large or small fortune, owning a home or a comfortable old-age income. It isn't that the press and honest business haven't warned against fraud. They have, unceasingly—and there's the trouble. We've been trying to learn what investments not to buy instead of learning what to buy and why to buy it.

Municipals and public utilities are among the investment bulwarks. Securities which have behind them the good faith of an American community, or the growing requirements of public service, carry in most instances their own selling arguments. Public utilities in this country represent an investment of more than $50,000,000,000, while our greatest industry, agriculture, has in all the farm lands and buildings in the country only $66,500,000,000. If the electric light and power companies alone were to meet all their demands for service, they would have to spend this year not less than $500,000,000 in extensions. Since 1900, for instance, our population has increased 37 per cent, but the demand for telephone service has increased more than 1000 per cent.

Such bonds, together with sound industrials, yield from 5 to 6½ per cent; railroad equipment bonds, 5 to 6 per cent; government, municipal, road, school and similar bonds, wholly or partly tax exempt, 4 to 5½ per cent. Foreign bonds yield 6 to 8 per cent, but should only be selected by a reputable investment banker. "In fact," said Eugene M. Stevens, vice-president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in an interview yesterday, "the one great essential for any investor in buying any securities is to deal only with an established, reputable dealer. Always investigate the dealer thoroughly. That is the only way to assure safety and avoid loss."

The widespread sale of fraudulent securities cuts into legitimate business in every community, destroys buying power and weakens incentive to thrift and industry. This is an evil which has taken heavy toll from Southern California since the war, and many harrowing tales have been told of wrecked hopes and of the loss of small capital brought by home-seekers who had planned to engage in business in Los Angeles or vicinity, but who, lured by the siren voice of the get-rich-quick-sters, have intrusted their funds to smooth-tongued and oily-fingered promoters only to be left high and dry upon the shoals and forced to make a fresh start in a strange environment, or else return whence they came as best they might.

Anything which may legitimately be done to lessen this great evil is entitled to respect and co-operation. The Investment Bankers' Association of America has enlisted in the cause and through its 873 affiliated investment banking houses has undertaken a campaign of education to spread a wider knowledge of the value of savings accounts, life insurance, home ownership and safe, secured investments. More power to the movement.

How Do You Judge the Security of an Investment?

With present day fluctuations in the currencies of the world the most essential security for invested funds should be one of unquestioned economic importance. Improved agricultural lands constitute such security for:

1. The land is the source of all values.
2. It is a definite, tangible asset.
3. It cannot be taken away nor destroyed.

We are offering an unusual diversity of First Mortgage Bonds secured by conservatively appraised income-producing California Farm Lands. These Bonds can be had in convenient denominations; in maturities from 1 to 15 years and nearly every one has been Certified as Legal Investment for Savings Banks in this State. BOND QUOTATIONS

Unresponsive Market

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—The bond market today failed to participate to any pronounced extent in the strength shown by stocks. At intervals during the morning selling pressure was applied very persistently against a varied list of domestic issues and foreign bonds, losses running in some instances from 1 to 3 points.

In the last half of the session the complexion of the market underwent a decided change for the better, many of the earlier declines being reduced to small proportions, while some popular lines sold materially above yesterday's final figures.

It is becoming more generally recognized that considerable of the recent pressure arose from selling by interests who had to sacrifice their interest who bolster up speculative commitments in stocks. In addition there is always a considerable volume of short selling in active issues which commonly move in unison with the course of stocks with which they are identified.

Signs that much of the recent selling through causes of a specific nature were completed were not wanting in the closing dealings, when the more active issues were moving up in a spirited fashion. Relatively little change occurred in United States government obligations, a loss of 3-32 in the Liberty 3 1-2s and a rise of a similar amount in the Treasury 4 1-2s furnishing the extreme movement.

Total sales (par value) $11,409,000.

Beattie Sugar Company

Twenty-Year First Mortgage 7½% Gold Bonds

To be Dated June 1, 1923 — To Mature June 1, 1943

Authorized Issue, $5,000,000

Interest payable June 1 and December 1, without deduction for normal Federal Income Tax not to exceed 2%. Pennsylvania Four Mills Tax and Massachusetts State Income Tax of 6% will be refunded by the Company on appropriate request. Principal and interest payable free of present or future Cuban Taxes. Redeemable in whole or in part at 105 and accrued interest on any interest date on sixty days' notice. Principal and interest payable in United States of America Gold Coin at the office of the Chase National Bank of the City of New York. Interest also payable at the office of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee

A letter from Mr. Richard H. Beattie, President of the Company (copies of which will be furnished upon request) is summarized as follows:

PROPERTY: The Beattie Sugar Company, owning Central Isabel, is a self contained low cost raw sugar producer, located on the southeast coast of the Island of Cuba. The company has produced sugar continuously since 1886, except during the war of Cuban independence.

Central Isabel draws cane from 27,000 acres of owned land, over 1500 acres of leased land, 15,000 acres of controlled land and a large additional acreage of adjacent lands, making a total available cane zone of over 60,000 acres. All cane and sugar is carried over the company's own railroads to its mill and from the mill to its wharf on deep water, without payment of a dollar of revenue to any public carrier.

All of the company's lands have long been noted for their fertility, and their yield in tonnage and richness of sugar in the cane have substantially exceeded the averages for all other Cuban estates as reported by the government statistics.

SECURITY: These bonds will be secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first mortgage on all the mortgageable property of the company. A recent appraisal of the company's fixed assets, comprising 67,000 acres of cane lands, a sugar mill of 300,000 bags capacity, 46 miles of railroad, docks, cane cultivations, railroad, marine and field equipment, etc., was in excess of $8,300,000.

EARNINGS: Earnings available for interest, depreciation and income taxes for the eight years ended June 30, 1922, averaged in excess of $600,000, or over $4.11 per bag of sugar produced, equivalent to over 2 2-3 times maximum annual interest charges on this issue. Operations for the crop just completed indicate similar earnings partially estimated in excess of $1,200,000, or over 5 times such charges.

SINKING FUND: Sinking Fund commencing in 1925, of 50c per bag of sugar sold, plus 10% of net earnings available for dividends, is expected to retire the entire issue before maturity.

GENERAL: In the opinion of prominent sugar engineers, Central Isabel can make a profit at sugar prices that would cause a substantial operating deficit to most estates in Cuba, and, on the company's 40,000 acres of virgin land at Belic, there can be developed a raw sugar property having an earning power per bag unsurpassed, if equaled, in all Cuba.

These Bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us subject to the approval of all titles and legal proceedings by our Counsel, Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell of New York, and Messrs. Rosales & Lavedan of Havana. Books of the Company have been audited by Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co. And appraisal of the property has been made for the Bankers by Messrs. Smith & Ames, Sugar Engineers of Havana and New York. (Temporary Bonds will be delivered pending issuance of definitive Bonds.)

NEW YORK CURB

Trend is Upward

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NEW YORK, June 21.—Short covering operations, combined with supporting orders, turned prices upward in today's curb market. There were individual reversions, but the general list was greatly improved.

Armour & Co. of Delaware ran counter to the trend despite a statement by company officials that the corporation during the first five months of the year had more than earned its dividend requirements. After a slight advance the stock yielded a point, where it closed. Durant Motors gained 3 points, Cleveland Motors 1¼ and Hupmobile each advanced fractionally.

Oil shares generally showed much improvement, all of the Standard Oils moving upward and most of the independent shares showing strength. Cities Service gained 4 points, Standard Oil of Indiana 3¾, Prairie Oil and Gas 2 and Vacuum 1¾. Magnolia Petroleum stumed 2½ points.

Mining shares also moved upward in dull trading.

RUBBER DROPS WITH DECLINING DEMAND

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—The lack of demand by tire manufacturers and other large consumers sent crude rubber price down today, despite the efforts of the British government to tighten operation of the Stevenson restriction plan, large shipments of rubber are coming out of the Far East and most of it from plantations over which the British have restrictions. Ribbed smoked sheets and first late spot sold at 21¾ a pound, a new low for the year. Brown crepe thin clean was offered at 24¾; amber No. 1, 25, and fine upriver Para, 25½.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS IMPROVING

A PROMINENT manufacturer recently stated: "Business is good but some people don't know it." Something similar might be said of the financial situation. Conditions are favorable, but many people, including some who are engaged in financial business, do not realize it.

Both the stock and bond markets are showing a distinctly better tone, and the rapidity with which recent issues, including the Austrian loan, have been absorbed, shows conclusively that there is an ample supply of funds for investment purposes. This condition coupled with the present sound business conditions prevailing throughout the country, and the substantially increased earnings of railway, public utility and industrial corporations, should serve as the foundation of an extensive and rising market.

The financial outlook is decidedly favorable.

...such occasions and since people familiar with the machinery of speculation know that—even the announcement of a failure of that sort removes one more "object-five."

Prices reversed their movement on today's commodity markets also. Cotton for spot delivery rose 7-8c per pound; wheat recovered fractionally; most of the other staple markets advanced. It is not at all strange that these markets have moved with the stock exchange, for all of them are honeycombed with the same kind of speculation. Perhaps the least reassuring among the movements of commodities is the persistent weakness of wheat, whose prices, now around the lowest of the year, indicate one factor in the general situation of the country which perplexes even those who believe in a fresh expansion of trade activity in the autumn.

Bally Supersedes Slump

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 21.—Supporting orders placed at the opening of today's stock market started a rally which reached fair proportions before the close. Recognition of such orders influenced aggressive short covering operations and there was strong evidence of buying by "bargain hunters."

Today's rise was confined to no particular class of stock but extended throughout the list, with here and there a share falling off because of some development affecting it individually. Baldwin moved up 4 1-4 points, American Locomotive 3, American Can 4, Studebaker 3 1-8, Pan-American 2 3-4, United States Steel 2 and Kelly Springfield 2½.

Railroad shares shared in the upward movement, gains ranging from a point to more than 4 points. Delaware and Lackawanna gained 4½ points and half a dozen others advanced 1 point or more.

Foreign exchanges ruled slightly lower. Demand sterling slumped 3-4 to 4.61 5-16 and French francs fell of 5½ points to 6.19 cents. German marks held relatively steady to .0007 3-8 cents.

Most of the other European exchanges were easier than yesterday. Call money again held steady throughout the day at 5 per cent. The time-money market was dull, being confined almost entirely to renewals. Quoted rates were unchanged at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent for the shoter maturities and 5 per cent for the longer terms. A small amount of commercial paper changed hands at 5 1-4 per cent but the rates were steady at 5 per cent for prime names and 4 3-4 for exceptional ones.

Twenty industrials averaged 93.26; net gain 1.45. High 1923, 105.38; low, 90.81.

THE COOTE AFFAIR

Sanguine hopes of a reorganization through the efforts of creditors were held out yesterday afternoon by A. W. Coote, head of the brokerage organization that was declared involuntarily bankrupt Monday. A group of principal creditors met with Mr. Coote in the morning, after which he said he hoped that the business may be saved with their co-operation.

TIMES WANT ADS

North and South, East and West Times Want-Ads are most and best.

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The Union Oil Company announced last night the completion of two new wells at Santa Fe Springs. Well No. 13 was brought in from a depth of 4490 feet, with a flow of 3500 barrels. Meyer No. 16, drilled to a depth of 4720 feet, was disappointing, its flow being only 200 barrels. This well, according to the popular belief, is close to the field limits. None of the wells in its area have been large producers, according to reports.

Still Increasing

The gross production of crude oil in the United States showed an average gain of 55,600 barrels a day for the week ending the 16th inst., according to American Petroleum Institute figures.

The daily production east of the Rocky Mountains was 1,346,850 barrels, an increase of 10,650. California production was 785,000 barrels, an increase of 45,000. Santa Fe Springs is reported at 275,000 barrels, against 241,000; Long Beach 192,000 barrels, as against 189,000, and Huntington Beach 111,000, against 105,000.

Pennsylvania crude oil was reduced 25 cents a barrel making Bradford districts, Pennsylvania, $5.25 a barrel and all other Pennsylvania grades $3 a barrel. There were no other changes reported in crude oil prices for the majority districts—Mid-Continent being quoted at $1.10 to $2.20 a barrel and Gulf Coast $1.75 a barrel. Imports for the week ended the 16th inst., totaled 1,403,000 barrels, compared with 2,160,000 for the week ended the 9th inst. Receipts of California Oil at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for the week ended June 16 totaled 1,039,000 barrels, against 1,646,000 barrels for the week ended the 9th inst.

Pacific States Going Ahead

After standing for several weeks the Pacific States well No. 1, located near the corner of Little Lake and Shamrock Road at Santa Fe Springs, resumed drilling. The well was spudded in several weeks ago, cable tools being used.

A short time later drilling was stopped and the contractors were released, according to reports. It is understood that a contract has been entered into for a rotary driller and that work will start within a few days. The lease consists of a drilling site only and is near the Fisher-Gregg lease and a few hundred feet from the Russell well.

Drilling Contract Let

The contract for drilling of Tweedy well, No. 1, near Huntington Park, has been let by the Magnolia Petroleum Syndicate to the Dulton Drilling Company. The agreement calls for drilling to a depth of 5000 feet. The cost will be about $135,000, it is said.

Turman To Stop Drill

The Joe B. Turman organization has announced that drilling on the Turman well in the southwest portion of the Santa Fe Springs field will be discontinued. The well is 5475 feet deep and the drillers state that the showings have failed to be of an encouraging nature. An oil sand of small depth was passed at 4600 feet, the operators say, and the log of the well to that depth followed almost exactly the log of the big Elliott producer.

The fact that geologists say there is a difference in the structure near there is expected to cause other operators in that section to continue drilling. The well is almost on a line east and west with the two wells abandoned by the Are-Bee and the Ferdon Verpillat interests on Norwalk Road recently.

Dewenter Comes In

Dewenter No. 3, drilled by the Amalgamated Oil Company, was placed on production Wednesday at Santa Fe Springs, making an initial flow of 1800 barrels. The well was drilled to the Bell sand and was 3874 feet in depth. The oil is said to be 32 degrees gravity.

The Dewenter lease is near the intersection of Norwalk Road and Telegraph Road and is adjacent to the Jordon-Amalagamated holdings. Wells or large size have been placed on production by that company on the Jordon lease. All of the adjoining wells were drilled to the Meyer sand. The flow of the new well was curtailed 20 per cent Thursday. One other well is being drilled and one is a location on the Dewenter lease.

Official Field Report

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. E. Collom during the week ending June 16, show fifteen new wells started, as compared with thirty-six during the previous week. The total new wells this year is 717, as compared with 621 the same date last year.

Tests for water shut-off that week numbered forty-five, as compared with forty-eight during the previous week. Yearly total to date 938; total to same date last year 784.

Deepening or redrilling jobs numbered nine, as compared with seven during the preceeding week. Total to date this year 316; total to same date last year 423.

Abandonments numbered two, as compared with four during the preceeding week. Total to date this year 117; total to same date last year 139.

DAILY MARKET LETTER OF THE NEW YORK COMMERCIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 21.—Domestic fruit sales included twenty-two cars of Valencia late oranges, one car Navels and one car St. Mikes. The market on Valencias was 15 to 35 cents a box higher than the previous day. Valencia 100s sold $3.45 to $6.35; 126s $3.80 to $7.25; 150s, $3.80 to $7; 176s $3.85 to $7; 200s, 216s and 252s, $3.45 to $6.80 and 288s $3.35 to $6.94.

At the sale of Sicily lemons there was more excitement than the day previous and another pronounced advance in prices took place. Verdellia 300s were $1.25 to $2 a box higher and 360s were $1 higher. The general advance in ripe fruits was about $1 a case.

DRIED FRUITS

The dried fruit market appeared to be marking time with demand from the principal consumers quiet. The better movement in raisins is a feature of no little interest in the trade. Jobbers, supply houses, bakers and other large consumers have been steady buyers. Peaches and pears are reported quiet.

CANNED GOODS

The market is generally quiet for canned goods. Developments in the peas market have been unsatisfactory, the yield having been materially smaller than anticipated. Tomatoes appear to be lagging with orders few. Various items in the canned fish market were on a higher basis including Columbia River Chinook salmon, tuna fish, Japanese crab meat and oysters.

SUGAR MARKET

A decidedly improved feeling was prevalent in the raw sugar market. Cables from the United Kingdom report an advancing market there with sales of Java sugars to Marseilles, London and British India.

The spot market here was 5¼ cents cost and freight in the afternoon when Warner entered the market for some 20,000 bags of Cubas at 5½ cost and freight 10,000 bags being for prompt shipment on that basis and the remainder for June shipment. The American Sugar Refining Company bought 7500 tons of Philippines for early July arrival at 7.28 cents c.i.f equal to 5½ cents cost and freight Cuba.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company announced an advance of 25 cents in its list price in the afternoon establishing the market on the basis of 9.50 cents a pound, although they were taking a limited amount of business at 9.25 cents, delivery as soon as possible.

A bulge in future sugar attracted a considerable amount of profit taking and while prices were off a few points from the best in the afternoon the general market closed at a net advance of some 15 to 25 points.

COFFEE, TEA

Strong Brazilian cables were responsible for a decided rally in the coffee futures. Early official cables indicated that an advance of 450 to 1100 reis had taken place at Santos and shortly after the opening cables reported that the net advance there had amounted to 975 to 1700 reis. The interpretation of the sharp appreciation there was that speculators were covering heavily in the anticipation of government support. While there was a moderate reaction from the best prices of the day the general market closed 29 to 40 points net higher.

Cables received from Calcutta reported that all grades of teas had moved up another penny a pound on reports of floods in many of the lower plantations. A much better demand has been encountered for spot teas.

RICE, BEANS AND PEAS

The bean market is weak. Foreign marrows are weak at the last decline. Pea beans showed the most strength, $8 being the ruling rate. California lima beans are weak.

BUTTER, EGGS

The butter market developed unexpected weakness, due to an increase in arrivals and prices on the table grades eased off 1-4c per pound.

Sales in future: 200 tubs creamery extras, seller today at 39c; 100 tubs do; seller July 38½c and 300 tubs 93 score seller July at 39c per pound.

The egg market showed some expansion on the last decline, especially on top grades. The market is still glutted with medium and under grades.

COPPER, ZINC

The copper market continues nominal at from 15 @ 15 1-8c a pound for electrolytic delivered over the next few months.

London cables reported a further decline in standard copper, spot dropping 7s 6d to £66 and futures 5s to £66 10s while electrolytic spot held firm and unchanged at £73, futures declined 10s to £73 10s.

Zinc dropped another 5 points and closed at 5.85c a pound St. Louis.

Another decline in London showed a drop of 7s 6d, spot closing at £28 12s 6d and futures at £29.

PETROLEUM

The daily average gross crude oil production for the week ended June 16 was 2,131,850 barrels as against 2,076,250 barrels the week previous, according to the American Petroleum Institute. The California production was 785,000 barrels daily as against 740,000 barrels for the week of June 9.

BOND MARKET

Bonds took a step upward although the net gains do not reflect the improvement in the undertone of the market.

Many of the active industrial and rail issues finished near the highs of the day.

Liberty bonds were in slack demand with the majority of the issues finishing unchanged. Treasury 4½s were up 2-32. The 3½s moved off 2-32 in very narrow dealings.

Austrian 7s improved 1 7-8 in an active market. Serb 8s were weak and Czech 8s were down a shade. British and French bonds were irregular at the close. Mexicans were generally lower.

Increased interest in copper bonds was a feature. Anaconda 7s held just under par most of the day but climbed to that position in the final hour. Cerro De Pasco 8s gained 2½ points.

Oils were about steady.

Rails were more active and higher. The Frisco and D. and R. G. groups were among the steadiest, the last named road on the announcement of the long awaited reorganization plan which terminates the receivership.

The Record We Bank On

21 producers in 20 months
7 dividend paying syndicates

We believe that any group of men who have done so well can be depended on for the future. That's one reason we are offering some of the few remaining Yankee units.

We watched Fred B. Foster & Company bring in their 3500 barrel Simplex No. 1—their Californian No. 2 at 4000 barrels, and their Miracle No. 6 at 5000 barrels per day—all since April 24th. Such a record for two months spells to us knowledge, good management, and integrity. That's another reason we bought a block of Yankee units.

We investigated the location. Yankee Oil Syndicate will drill two wells to the Meyer sand on five acres that cost $100,000. Their neighbors are the famous—Julian, Russell, Boeske, and Elliott No. 1.

We know Fred B. Foster & Company. We know the Yankee Oil Syndicate. We know their lease, and we know the splendid possibilities of profits on Yankee units.

Knowing all these things, we strongly recommend that our clients take advantage of the opportunity. We cannot promise more than to fill orders in the rotation received for these units at $100 each. Details cheerfully given.

Come to the office—wire at our expense or phone.

STARS OFFER AID

Eulalie Jensen and Al St. John to Perform for Veterans

Two motion-picture stars, Eulalie Jensen and Al St. John, have volunteered their services to aid the cause of Los Angeles Post No. 1, Disabled Veterans of the World War, in relieving the distress of buddies, many the victims of German gas, who are forced to come to Southern California for their health.

Miss Jensen will appear several times during the nine-day program of "It," the circus and wild-animal exposition, at Selig Zoo, beginning tomorrow at noon. She will do her famous gypsy dance as it will be seen when "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is shown on the screen. St. John, popular comedia, will appear in comic entertainments like those in which he stars on the silver sheet.

Another feature added to the program will be the singing and dancing of Kinney and Anderson in highbrow southern plantation melodies and jazz numbers. The San Diego Band will play at concerts on Sunday and musical numbers also will be given during the circus by the Master-Pacific Coast Showmen's Band.

COAST MEN BIDDING FOR HUGE FLEET

Los Angeles and Bay City Would be Home Ports of 150 Additional Vessels

Los Angeles Harbor and San Francisco will be the home ports of more than 150 additional vessels in Pacific-Oriental, South American and intercostal freight and passenger services if the United States Shipping Board acts favorably on bids tendered by the W. R. Grace Company, Pacific Mail Steamship Company, Admiral-Oriental Line, Columbia-Pacific Shipping Company, Munson Steamship Line, the United States Steel Corporation interests, and the Hind-Rolph group of San Francisco for government ships now in operation, it was learned at the harbor last night.

The Norton Lilly-Argonaut bid for five of the service is said to involve an investment of $30,000,000 alone.

An investigation and survey is now being conducted by the Shipping Board, through its district agents on the Pacific Coast, as to the advisability of accepting the offers of the above shipping group. The sale, if consummated, would entail the transfer to private ownership and operation of practically every Shipping Board service on the Pacific.

Asks Canceling of Port Tender to Government

Asking the City Council to rescind its long-standing ordinance formal ly offering to the Federal government free 146 acres of frontage on the outer harbor for the site of a permanent Submarine Base, the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce yesterday forwarded a communication to the Council declaring that the site was needed for improvement for docks, wharves, and other facilities for commercial shipping.

The chamber's letter pointed out that despite the city's offer to grant the government a free site for the base which the Naval Board had declared ideal for the puspose, Congress had failed to appropriate the necessary funds and the Navy Department was now removing the temporary base from its free location on city-owned Pier I at the Harbor to San Diego. Therefore, the chamber said, the city should cancel its offer and proceed to devlop the frontage for needed revenue-producing facilities.

NEW HARBOR PLANT SHIPS FIRST ORDER

Lumber Products Company Sends Consignment of Box Shook North

A notable addition to the port's increasing industries was established yesterday with the departure for Seattle of the steamer El Abeto, carrying 661,000 feet of box shook for the Puget Sound plant of the American Can Company. The shipment, first of its kind ever dispatched from Southern California, marks the opening of full operations by the $10,000,000 plant of the Los Angeles Lumber Products Company.

Officials of the concern announced yesterday that 125,000 feet of lumber is being cut daily in the new electric sawmill and that a relative amount of material is handled by the box factory adjoining, which was completed less than a fortnight ago. The plant is the largest electric combined saw and planing mill and box factory on the Pacific Coast.

The El Abeto, which is carrying the pioneer shipment of the new plant, is the flagship of the fleet of steel lumber steamers which brings rough squares of timber here from the Los Angeles Lumber Products Company's vast holdings on Graham Island, British Columbia. In command of Capt. V. C. Iverson, she also took for northern consignees 12,000 barrels of fuel oil. Southbound, the El Abeto will bring to Los Angeles Harbor 1,750,000 feet of timber squares.

Speedy Vessel Comes to Join Western Boats

The California Yacht Club yesterday gained one of the fastest schooners on the Pacific with the arrival from New York of the 85-footer Haswell. She was purchased this spring by A. R. Pedder, Santa Barbara sportsman, and came around from the east coast on the deck of the Luckenbach liner, J. L. Luckenbach.

She is being thoroughly refitted for western breezes at the wilmington plant of Joe Fellows and will be entered in the various cruises and races held by the California club this summer. Her trim lines and lofty rig attracted unusual interest among yachtsmen at the harbor yesterday.

FIGHT OVER ONE LETTER IS IN COURT

Case of Warwick vs Warrick, Actresses, in Spelling of Name is Being Heard

Two motion-picture actresses faced each other in Judge Montur's court yesterday in a dispute over the use of one letter in one name.

The point at issue is whether one young woman shall be permitted to use a "w" in place of an "r" in her name.

Virginia Warwick is the plaintiff. Virginia Warrick is the defendant. Miss Warrick claims the privilege of changing one "r" in her name to "w." Miss Warwick denies this right, because such a change would make their names identical and she avers that her own name is better known than the other actress's.

The court is being asked to issue an injunction restraining Miss Warrick from changing her name for use in motion pictures.

Miss Warrick took the stand yesterday to tell Judge Montur why she believes she will use the name Warwick.

"Warwick is the name of our family for generations back," she said. "I am a direct descendant of the Earl of Warwick. But my great-grandfather changed his name from Warwick to Warrick. I don't approve of the change. I think the original name is better and I want to use it."

Miss Warwick, however, charged that Miss Warrick is not prompted by such disinterested motives but desires to trade upon the reputation which she declared the name has been given in film circles by Miss Warwick's acting. The case was continued.

FORFEITURE OF BOND IS JUST SAVED

Actor Tells Court How Attorney Forgot Because He Was Being Married

Edward Francis Howard Gaye, English motion-picture actor, who is charged with violation of the Mann Act, appeared in the office of U. S. Commissioner Long yesterday and thereby saved himself $2500 which he had deposited with the government in the form of a cash bond some time ago.

The actor was scheduled to appear before the Commissioner Wednesday for a preliminary hearing, but failed to show up, and the bond was declared forfeited. Yesterday, however, Gaye appeared in the offices of the Commissioner and explained that his attorney, Kimpton Ellis, was so busy getting married that he forgot to inform him of the appointment.

Commissioner Long accepted this explanation but increased the bond to $3000. This will be furnished by Jack Coogan, father of Jackie, with whom Gaye is appearing in a picture which is now being filmed, it was stated in court. The original bond was deposited by Neil S. McCarthy, but it is understood that Coogan furnished the money.

Gaye is accused of taking Fanchon F. Duncan from the city of New York for an immoral purpose and was indicted by the Federal grand jury. It is intended to have Gaye appear in court next Monday morning to plead to the indictment.

HEAVY DAMAGES ARE GIVEN FOR ACCIDENT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HANFORD, June 21. — The heaviest damages ever awarded in the Superior Court of Kings county in an automobile-collision suit were given yesterday to Fred Turner and his wife, Florence Turner, against the Kings County Supply Company, a Japanese firm of this city, the jury bringing in a verdict for $7000. Turner was employed as buyer by the Modesto Grain and Bean Company. The complaint asserted that October 11, 1922, while they were riding on the highway near Stratford, the husband driving a Ford coupe, a Dodge delivery truck operated by an employee of the defendant company collided with their auto, throwing it twenty-five feet. Florence Turner, it was asserted, suffered serious, painful and permanent injuries. The sum of $15,000 for personal damages to Florence Turner was asked. The husband was asserted to have lost $5000 through lack of his wife's services.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation was the low bidder for converting the freighter Stanley Dollar from a coal to oil burner. The low bid was $37,186. The Stanley Dollar formerly was the German steamer Ernst, which was interned during the World War. She was also formerly the Polish Navigation steamer Warszawa.

A plan for closer co-operation between freight forwarders and steamship companies, with a view of eliminating congestion of import shipments on San Francisco piers, is being worked out by the foreign trade bureau of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. The bureau had a meeting to-day, at which freight forwarders and representatives of the steamship lines refused their support. Another meeting has been called for next week.

SEATTLE, June 21.—W. D. Bensen, Pacific Coast general agent for the Trans-Marine Corporation, which has announced its entry into intercoastal traffic, is going soon to San Francisco and Los Angeles to establish representation, having opened offices here. No agency is to be placed in Portland for the present.

Capt. J. E. Bristor is to command the Hanley, which arrived here today, and is to be transferred as soon as discharged to the Westchester Trading Company, new owners, who will operate her in the intercoastal trade.

With the navy radio station here closed last night in effect economy, its operators notified all ships within reach to send messages pertaining to ships' business, including position reports, through the radio station of the Seattle harbor department hereafter. The harbor department station was recently equipped with extra strong sending and receiving sets.

The Seattle port commission today announced that it had established a rate of 25 cents a thousand feet for handling lumber at the South Shore terminals, supervising the charges of not over 15 per cent. SUN TO HIDE HIMSELF IN SEPTEMBER

First Total Eclipse to be Visible in South Part of California Since 1806

One of the greatest celestial sights in many years will visit Southern California September 10, when in many places in the Southland a total eclipse of the sun will be visible, the first in Southern California since June 16, 1806, and the last one until August 12, 2045. Mars F. Baumgardt, D.O.S., prominent Los Angeles optometrist, Wednesday night explained the phenomenon to the vast audience of The Times radio.

The eyes of the scientific world will be riveted upon Southern California in consequence of the eclipse, Mr. Baumgardt said, and men of science, accustomed to travel to the remotest corners of the earth to witness for a few minutes a celestial wonder of this kind will flock to this part of the country because of the ease of transportation. Auspicious climate conditions and the usually favorable circumstances under which the eclipse will be viewed here will also aid in drawing the men of science to Southern California, Mr. Baumgardt explained.

The fact that no other total eclipse of the sun will be visible in this part of the country for more than 122 years will lend more than usual general interest to the phenomenon. It is safe to say that few if any living here today will ever witness a similar spectacle during their stay in this mundane sphere.

There are many records of panics caused among semicivilized and savage peoples in many parts of the world when total eclipses of the sun have overshadowed the earth, making it as dark as night and bringing the stars into visibility. Of these, Mr. Baumgardt explained the effects which will be noticed by persons in various parts o fthe State.

The points in Southern California where the eclipse will be total include Point Conception, Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz Island, Catalina Island nd virtually all the channel islands, Cardiff, Del Mar, Point Loma and San Diego.

At Los Angeles there will be a 99 per cent eclipse at 1 p.m.

OPTIMISTS UNITED, SPEAKER DECLARES

FINDS NEW SPIRIT AMONG MEMBERS; TIMES RADIO MAN TALKS

Oscar Smith, delegate to the International Optimists' Clubs convention at Chattanooga, Tenn., in an address at Paulais's yesterday told his fellow-members of the Los Angeles Optimists' Club that a new spirit has been born into the organization since the election of Tom Elliott as international secretary.

"This talk about the Pacific Coast clubs withdrawing from the International Optimists is all bunk," said Mr. Smith. "In my trip to Chattanooga I found that the clubs of the country are with us to a man and the new secretary is one of the best friends of west coast Optimists."

"Uncle" John Daggett of The Times radio station spoke on "Radioptimism," and said that the radiophone today is not only the greatest channel of publicity but also the greatest conveyor of happiness.

"Optimism, has three sons and their names are Courage, Confidence and Courtesy," said Mr. Daggett. "The names of her daughters are Faith, Hope and Charity. Recently another son was born to her and she called him Radiotimism and already he shows promise of becoming the world's greatest servant."

Another speaker on the program was Jesse W. Clark of Boston who spoke on "The Romance of Business." Next Thursday at noon the club will conduct its last meeting of the season at Paulais's.

SMALLNESS ENTERS INTO SEPARATION

Wife Declares Husband Ridiculed Her Stature and Gets Divorce

Asserting that her small stature was held up to ridicule by her husband's parents and that her husband once in a nonplayful mood called her an "educated little devil," Mrs. Mary Rose Henry was successful in obtaining a divorce from J. W. Henry yesterday in Judge Summerfield's department of Superior Court.

"You are too little for any good," complained her husband's mother in El Paso when Mrs. Henry was visiting, according to the testimony of the plaintiff.

Mrs. Henry also asserted her husband deserted from the Marine corps and left her even as he had departed from the military organization. Henry claimed to be a big game hunter and an aviator, Mrs. Henry asserted.

She further complained that Henry told her he hated children, although they are the parents of one child. They were married in 1920 and Henry left his wife in 1922, Mrs. Henry said.

Attorney J. F. D. Jennings represented Mrs. Henry.

Jail Prisoner Trusty Flees Working Gang

While working with a crew of trusties cleaning up the alley in the rear of the County Jail yesterday, Perry Yount, accused of violation of the Dyer Act, jumped through a window of the charities building, adjoining the jail, and fled.

Yount's disappearance was not immediately discovered and he made good his escape.

LAUNDRY LOSES POINT

Arroyo Seco Residents Succeed in Holding Up Extension Plan

The residents of the Arroyo Seco district yesterday temporarily won their fight before the City Council to prevent the expansion of a wet wash laundry on Arroyo Seco avenue. The Council rejected the report of a majority of the members of the Council's welfare committee for the present and adopted Councilman Conaway's minority reports, thus denying the request of the owner of the laundry to enlarge his industry.

The district is now legally a residential one and the residents there desire to beautify the Arroyo If the new Board of Education desires to enlarge its school property there, the Council will probably refuse to grant the laundry owner's petition.

FINAL TRIANGLE PARTY TO BE HELD TOMORROW

The final Y.W.C.A. blue triangle party of the season will occur in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium, 941 South Figueroa street, tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. Special preparations are being made to have this party a climax to the series of Saturday nights that have been held successfully throughout the year by this group of young business women. This particular party will be in the nature of a vaudeville night.

Some of the features on the program are a sketch of "Twenty Minutes Behind the Scenes," presented by Phil Ware and Harold Hayes; vocal solo by Miss Trevor. Punch will be dispensed by the girls of the Blue Triangle Club, Hazel Landen, Anita Scofield and Betty Chully. Mrs. Barnes, executive of the Blue Triangle, will act as hostess.

Appeal Court in Customs Cases in Session Here

Judge Eugene G. Hay, of the Board of General Appraisers, of Washington, D. C., accompanied by his stenographer, J. M. Boardman, and P. St. George Bissell, Special Attorney-General, opened a two-day session of the Customs Appeal Court at the Federal Building, yesterday.

The session has to do with asserted unfair appraisals of customs dues on importations by local merchants, and there are more than 300 cases on the calendar. It is the largest in the recent history of similar hearings in this city.

The articles involved cover everything from overseas, including blow pipes, tomatoes, rolling pins, wooden spoons, sardines and marble images. The points argued are mostly of a technical nature, to settle whether the duties levied by the customs officials were according to law, with discussions of classifications, standards, et.

SUCKERS WILL MEET AT REUNION TONIGHT

Suckers of the Illinois variety are cordially invited to attend a reunion at the Music Arts Hall, 233 South Broadway, this evening. H. J. Brubaker, president of the Illinois State Society, will lead the community singing and Dr. Franklin Pierce, noted Chicago musician, will render several instrumental solos. MORE CITY CASH POURED INTO POWER RATHOLE

Ten Thousand Dollars of Public Funds Pledged to Boulder Dam Grab; Check Is Challenged

Continuing its practice of spending public funds for political campaigning and propaganda, the Board of Public Service Commissioners, which, it is charged expended more than $50,000 before the election on the 5th inst. for jazz bands, posters, advertising, circulars and other forms of publicity, has, it became known yesterday, formally agreed to donate more than $10,000 to the Boulder Dam Association for mysterious, unspecified purposes in furthering the city's control of hydro-electric power developed at the Nevada-Arizona flood control and reclamation project.

The board has already started making its payments from its revenues to the association and the first of the checks, which was for $1000, reached the City Hall yesterday and was immediately questioned by City Treasurer Powell who laid the facts before City Attorney Stephens. The check already had been delivered to Mayor John L. Bacon, San Diego, as president of the association and bore his indorsement showing that he had cashed or deposited it at the Southern Trust and Commerce Bank at San Diego.

BILL FOR PUBLICITY

Investigation at the City Hall yesterday showed that the demand had been forwarded to Mayor Bacon and that the required record of its being issued had been filed with the City Auditor attached to which was an asserted bill from the Boulder Dam Association written on plain stationery and headed in typewriting "Boulder Dam Association, care W. B. Mathews." Mr. Mathews is the $12,000-a-year special counsel of the Board of Public Service Commissioners and in charge of its propaganda work. This "bill" for $1000 was dated June 14 and stated that the payment was due "on account of city's share of expense for publicity work in connection with Boulder Canyon Dam." No details were given as to just what the "association" had done to justify an expenditure of $1000 from the public funds of the Los Angeles city government. Special Counsel Mathews was asked for details. Here are the written questions presented to Mr. Mathews and his answers:

Q.: When was the Boulder Dam Association organized?

Q.: Where are its officers?

A.: I don't know.

Q.: How many members and the names of some of them?

A.: I don't know.

Q.: Who are its officers?

QUESTIONED ABOUT $1000

Q.: What did the association do for the city of Los Angeles, in detail, to earn $1000 payment of bill dated June 14?

A.: It is an association of municipalities of Southern California to further the interests of Boulder dam by publicity and information.

Q.: What is the association going to do, in detail, to justify monthly payments of $1500 from city power revenues?

A.: Mayor of San Diego.

Q.: Why was the address of the association stated on the bill as "in care of W. B. Mathews?"

A.: I don't know, I haven't seen the bill.

Additional investigation yesterday revealed the fact that the Boulder Dam Association was organized at Santa Ana and on its executive committee are Mayor Bacon of San Diego, S. C. Evans of Riverside, former Senator W. J. Carr of Pasadena, Earl Pound of the Imperial Valley Irrigation Board, and that Congressman Swing of San Diego is "closely cooperating" with the association. Congressman Swing headed a delegation from the Imperial Valley which came here during the last days of the municipal campaign and made speeches in favor of the Los Angeles $35,000,000 power bond issue.

OTHER PAYMENTS DUE

That the first donation of $1000 is but the forerunner of monthly payments of $1500 from the city's power revenues to the "association" was shown by an examination of the records of the Board of Public Service Commissioners. On June 12, the board adopted a resolution pledging from its revenues donations to the "association" not to exceed $1500 to continue until Congress meets next December, seven months hence. Two days after the resolution was adopted by the board the initial demand for $1000 payable to the association was issued from the public service department bearing the number 10,163 and the signatures of President Del Valle of the commission, Controller L. M. Anderson and the approving signature of City Auditor Myers. The city charter says (Section 219) that all demands on the City Treasury must be laid before the City Auditor "who must satisfy himself whether the money is legally due and whether the payment thereof is authorized by law" before placing his approving signature on the demand. City Auditor Myers said last night:

"I do not recall definitely the $1000 Boulder Dam Association demand, but I presume that it passed through my hands in the usual routine of the day and that as it bore the signature of the president of the Public Service Commission, which has practical control over the expenditure of its revenues, I naturally approved it. Now that the question has been raised as to whether payments of this kind to associations are legal expenditures, as described by the city charter, I shall investigate this matter most carefully as well as all other de-

Springers Engage Lawyer in Suit for $800,000,000

Asserted Heirs to Delaware Land Won't Settle

Property Involved Said to be Swedish Estate

With a fortune aggregating $800,000,000, together with jewels and heirlooms dating from 420 A.D., as possible fruits of a legal fight against the city of Wilmington, Del., eight members of the Springer Heirs, Inc., five of them residents of Los Angeles, yesterday engaged Attorney James H. Mitchell of Los Angeles to file individual suits against the eastern city.

The suits will follow one filed recently by the Springer Heirs Association, which is seeking the restoration of 800 acres of land on which Wilmington is built, and which, it is asserted, was twice leased on ninety-nine-year contracts since the death of Charles Springer, the original owner. The value of the land, with rentals, amounts to more than $800,000,000, Mr. Mitchell said.

Los Angeles descendants of the Springer family are Mrs. Dora Vale Small, wife of Dr. David M. Small, residing in Laurel Canyon; Fred Russel Blake and Walter Russel Blake, residing in San Gabriel, and sons of Mrs. Salina Johnson Blake, who is also to enter suit, and Winfield Scott Blake, 303 South Spring street. William S. Blake of Omaha, Neb., and Harry W. Blake and A. M. Blake of Kansas City, Mo., have also engaged Attorney Mitchell to file suits.

Mr. Mitchell said he heard that the city of Wilmington recently made an offer to the Springer Heirs, Inc., to settle the suit out of court for $500,000,000. There are more than 2000 known Springer heirs, and through their attorneys they have decided to contest the suit.

It will be necessary to establish the claim by Dec. 31, 1923, otherwise the claims will be considered legally dead," Mr. Mitchell said.

Millions in jewelry are said to wait the Springer heirs if their fight is successful. Charles Christopher Springer, was the son and heir of Lord Baron of Stockholm, Sweden, who was possessed of the legendary fortune lying in a huge vault in Stockholm, Sweden, since the Sixteenth century. This vault is said to be as large as a seven-room house, and is supposed to be filled with jewels, crowns and riches inherited from royal ancestors.

INDIAN LOVE NOTES READ AS EVIDENCE

Former Waitress Said to Have Sent Letters to Wife of Borax Official

When the waitress to whom Henry Blumenberg, Jr., general manager of the American Borax Company, asserted to have been paying court, married another man, she sent the love letters she is said to have received from Blumenberg to his wife, Edna, the latter declared yesterday in her divorce suit, which went to trial before Judge Fitzpatrick in Superior court.

"My Dear Little Will o' the Wisp," began one of the asserted letters, which was read in court. "You should strive to make something of yourself and raise yourself to my level." Another letter began "My Dear Little Girl of my Dreams, Irene," and the one that followed was addressed "Minnehaha" and signed "Your Big Brave." There was a series of these Indian letters, Mrs. Blumenberg asserted, in one of which it was said: "I want to bundle you up like a papoose, put you in my grip and make myself your Indian brave."

The couple were married in 1916 and lived principally at St. Thomas, Nev., where the borax works are located. Blumenberg's income is asserted to be $1000 monthly.

The case will contiue today when Blumenberg's defense will be heard.

SEEK LEADERS IN BOND THEFT

Grand Jury Will Soon Begin Investigation

Eighth Suspect is Arrested at Fresno

Prisoners Thought to be Only Working Crew

A thorough investigation of the bond bandit gang suspects, eight of whom are under arrest and suspected of stealing $500,000 in negotiable bonds in a bold daylight robbery in which Sam McGee, a First National Bank chauffeur, was killed on February 13, is to be made by the county grand jury. Such was the announcement made last night by Captain of Detectives Home.

Other arrests are expected. In the continued round-up of bond bandit suspects, at least two local business men are said to be under suspicion. The members of the gang who have been caught, according to the officers, are the ones who did the detail work of obtaining and selling the fortune in bonds. Those who supplied the brains for the biggest bond theft in Los Angeles history, and who are suspected of being the directors of the sensational robbery, are believed to be at large. To sift the mystery down to those men will be the job of the grand jury, according to the report.

PRISONERS ILLITERATE

The eight persons yesterday were described by the officials as the most illiterate "criminal suspects that ever participated in such a major crime.

"But they are the most canny and shrewd illiterates I have ever met in my many years of insurance work," declared Harry Vandeveer, vice president of the Fidelity and Deposit Company, which insured the bonds lost in the robbery.

Their ignorance was described in many incidents regarding their actions, as told by the officers. Several of the suspects were arrested on a liquor charge several days ago. For three months prior to that time they had always been under surveillance.

WIFE FURNISHES BAIL

Amelio Sierra was arrested and his wife furnished his bail of $2500. This bail, according to Capt. Home, was paid by Mrs. Sierra by two $100 bills of marked money. This marked money had been paid by the officers to Sierra and his wife for some of the stolen bonds.

A. M. Garcia was the eighth person taken into custody. He was arrested in Fresno by Assistant Captain of Detectives O'Brien, Lieutenant of Detectives Raymond and other Los Angeles officers. Stolen bonds, recognized as part of the half-million-dollar plunder and valued at $22,242.50, were recovered in Garcia's home.

Negotiable bonds valued at approximately $75,000 have been recovered by Captain of Detectives Home and his detectives. From Angel Ruiz the officers obtained

CAPT. NELSON TAYLOR HOME

Arrives From Long Cruise in Far Lands in Behalf of Southwest Museum; His Vessel Destroyed

With his curiosity about strange, out-of-the-way places unappeased and his desire for adventure unsatiated Capt. Nelson Taylor, master of the intrepid little yacht, Wisdom II, that poked her nose into innumerable ports in exotic lands for the Southwest Museum, returned to his Los Angeles' home yesterday after an absence of thirty months, during which time he circumnavigated the globe.

In his home at 215 South Wilton Place last night, Capt. Taylor with the true adventurer's reticence, discoursed briefly on his experiences while directing the destinies of the Wisdom II.

He told of grounding the yacht in the Red Sea, thereby causing her to leave her lead keel buried in the sands somewhere along the coast of Arabia. His greatest concern was over the fate of the little vessel, which was burned beyond salvage while laid up for repairs in an Italian port.

VISITS ABYSSINIA

It was with a degree of enthusiasm, however, that Capt. Taylor referred to a month's visit to the capital of Abyssinia. In company with Marion C. Cooper, a newspaper man and member of the expedition, the captain journeyed into Abyssinia, and finding it so altogether enjoyable remained a month as guest of Prince Regent Tafari, who placed at his disposal a retinue of servants, the palace of the deposed ruler, and everything else desired. This little-known country, Capt. Taylor explained, is rich in color and resources, and is untouched by modern civilization.

Asked what place he would select to live if given his choice, the captain declared a preference for Abyssinia if given an opportunity to explore, or some mystic South Sea Isle if he had nothing to do but loaf.

In January, 1921, the Wisdom II sailed from Los Angeles on her historic trip around the world. During the ensuing months she plowed her way through Southern Seas, putting into quaint South Sea ports to enable her distinguished passengers to collect data concerning the racial differences of man and other facts for the edification of posterity.

PICTURES BROUGHT HOME

Capt. Salisbury, noted lecturer, writer and explorer, who was responsible for and in chage of the expedition for the Southwest Museum, last year returned to the United States with the thousands of feet of exposed motion-picture film depicting native life and customs of the places visited.

During his nine-month absence, the Wisdom II lay in Singapore and upon his return continued her journey westward, arriving eventually in Italy, where a gasoline explosion destroyed the vessel and the curios collected. There the expedition was abandoned and the crew discharged.

Capt. Taylor returned to New York almost immediately and upon the arrival of Capt. Salisbury there several days ago, left for Los Angeles. His principal reason for returning at this time, he asserted, is to take passage to Alaska aboard the yacht Padariva, as the guest of her owner S. M. Spalding. The Padariva sails on the 28th inst. for a two-months' cruise in Alaskan waters.

Seven Hundred Students Honored at Commencement Fete; McAdoo Gives Address

Seven hundred students of the University of Southern California received graduation honors at the fortieth annual commencement exercises yesterday afternoon at the band stand in Exposition Park.

The exercises were presided over by Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the university. The commencement address was made by William G. McAdoo and at the conclusion of the ceremony honorary degrees were conferred upon four citizens of national repute.

The commencement procession left the university campus shortly before 4 o'clock and marched through University avenue to the stage in Exposition Park, where several thousand people had gathered. The procession was led by the university band, following which came marshals of the commencement exercises, graduates faculties and trustees of the university, the president emeritus and the chaplain, President Von KleinSmid and the commencement speaker.

ANTHEM IS SUNG

Following the singing of the National Anthem by the audience, Rev. W. L. Y. Davis, commencement chaplain, led the assemblage in prayer, whereupon Mr. McAdoo delivered his address.

"These graduates are about to enter upon the higher duties and responsibilities of citizenship in this great republic," Mr. McAdoo said. "They are on the threshold of their careers. In the natural order of events, their generation will in time have to assume the responsibilities of government and direct the destinies of the American people until they are relieved by the generation which will succeed them. It would not seem inappropriate, therefore, to let our minds revert to the meaning and purposes of democratic institutions and to the nature of the obligation which good citizenship imposes."

Lincoln's definition of democracy was referred to by Mr. McAdoo as meaning a "government springing from the people, government administered in the interest of the people, and government controlled and directed by the people." He said that our own history verifies the fact that since the people in a democracy are the source of power in government, the difficulty of obtaining an expression of the popular will based upon knowledge and understanding of the facts makes it harder to maintain democratic institutions then to achieve them.

"The fundamental problem of democracy is the individual citizen," he declared. "Success of democratic institutions must proceed from the individual. The continuous problem is the development of individual character and intelligence. Success in any democratic undertaking is possible only when the process of perfecting the individual is constantly pursued."

The tendency within recent years to rely upon legislation as the cure for every evil is not the way to-

SCARED BANDITS ROB BANK

Branch at Florence and Monéta Avenues Raided by Two Men Who Flee in Auto With $3500

A trembling bandit, so overcome with excitement that his gun exploded during his getaway, with a white-faced comrade yesterday held up a branch of the Security Trust and Savings Bank at Florence and Moneta avenues but despite his nervousness, succeeded in making away with $3500 in bank notes and a check for $30.

The driver of the car in which the robbers fled was the calmest of the three, as he steered his machine through a maze of traffic at a sixty-mile-a-minute speed, eluding a load of pursuers after a two-mile chase.

The hold-up was cleverly conceived and efficiently executed. John True, who was starting an account with th bank at the time of the robbery, was not aware that he had been present during the operation until the pistol shot rang out as the two unmasked men dashed out the door.

Laden with a flour sack, stuffed with bills ranging as high as $50 in denomination, the twain clambered into their waiting automobile, and tore away north on Moneta avenue, with Ed and Stanley Rogan, druggists, in hot pursuit.

BUILDING MAN SUED BY WIFE

Leapold Cristion is Made Defendant in Action For Separate Maintenance

Leopold Cristion, wealthy head of a local building supply company, was made defendant in a separate maintenance action filed yesterday by his wife, Mary Cristion, who charges that he abandoned her in Philadelphia in 1914.

In her complaint Mrs. Cristion reveals that she has trailed her husband for nine years, finally locating him through an anonymous letter which she received while in Philadelphia. She charges also that he is now living with another woman, known as Estelle Jacobs, in his costly home at Hollywood.

WED IN 1909

The complaint states that the couple were married at Camden, N. J., in 1909. Later they moved to Philadelphia, the complaint sets forth, and Cristion deserted his wife there in 1914.

Mrs. Cristion made numerous efforts to locate her husband, she stated in the complaint, but without success. Then she received an anonymous letter informing her that her husband was living in Hollywood with another woman.

She came to this city, she says, and communicated with the authorities. They informed her that there was no law in this State to compel a husband to make provision for his wife, she says.

To avoid the notoriety incident to a suit, she declares in the complaint, her husband and his father, Dr. H. B. F. Cristion, induced her to sign an agreement whereby she was to receive $350 a month for the support of herself and the child born to her just before the asserted abandonment by her husband. Later, however, Mrs. Cristion says, she learned that there was a law in the State to compel a husband to provide for his wife and child.

She asks that the original agreement between herself, her husband and her father-in-law be declared null and void and that the court force her husband to provide a reasonable sum for the support of herself and their child.

Mr. and Mrs. Cristion are said to be well known in Philadelphia and in the East.

Over the telephone last night from his home, 1240 Orange Drive, Mr. Cristion denied all charges made by his wife, but admitted that she was once his wife. He said he had not received a divorce from Mrs. Cristion in Pennsylvania, still would not say whether or not he had received one in any other State.

For nine years, Mr. Cristion said, he has supported Mrs. Cristion and their child, adding that he intended to continue to do so. The statement that he had recently entered into an agreement with his wife was confirmed by him, but he would comment no further than to deny all of Mrs. Cristion's charges, especially that accusing him of living with another woman.

ward solution of our social problems, according to Mr McAdoo.

"We need less the creation of more laws than to change the hearts and conscience of men. We must strive to improve the individual. The great Washington said, 'It is impossible to rightly govern the world without God and the Bible.' The modern tendency is to lean more on legislation than on religion and education.

"Good citizenship begins with moral character, and the church is the great teacher. The religion of Christ and the Ten Commandments are the very foundation of Christian character and the very Gibraltar of democracy and democratic citizenship. In no field would the Ten Commandments work such a wholesome transformation as in the political life of the nation.

"Practice the fundamental Christian precepts and you will be a good and useful citizen. If you are a good and useful citizen you will make a genuine contribution to democracy and to your country's welfare, however humble the part you may be called upon to pay. It is not given to every man and woman to be great in the sense that we ordinarily use that term, but true greatness does not consist in high place or power. It consists in the quality and character of the individual, and in the kind of service he provides in the part allotted to him in the tasks of our common life. Be a good citizen. That sums up everything of Christian character and patriotic service.

PATRIOTISM IS SACRIFICE

"Patriotism is a matter of quality, of sacrifice, of soul. It is a transcendent thing, and is not proved by asseverations of perfection or mere protestations. By practicing Christian virtues, by observing high moral standards and by making unselfish sacrifices to the high command of duty, you will become a patriot and prove worthy of citizenship in the greatest democracy the world has ever known."

President Von KleinSmid began the conferring of honors by awarding senior honors to graduates of the college of commerce and business administration, college of dentistry, school of law and the college of liberal arts. This was followed by the awarding of certificates and diplomas to graduates of the school of education, college of music, college of pharmacy, school of religion and the school of speech.

In recognition of services and achievements in their respective fields of endeavor, the president conferred honorary degrees upon the following men of national prominence:

William G. McAdoo, Doctor of Laws; Judge Curtis D. Wilbur, Chief Justice, Supreme Court of California, Doctor of Laws; Rev. John Hedley, superintendent Chinese Mission for Pacific Coast, Doctor of Divinity; William Harvey Housh, principal, Los Angeles High School, in recognition of fifty years' service as principal, Master of Arts.

New Defense Is Offered in Check Arrest

What is declared to be a new point in criminal law was raised yesterday in the case of H. C. Wade, a guest at the Ambassador, who was held by Justice Scott in $5000 bail to answer a charge of issuing a check without sufficient funds.

Wade, through his lawyer, Al McDonald, contended that the check, which was for $5000, was given in payment for a bungalow erected by his wife; that he was not responsible for the debt and that the check was not given for a valid consideration. The Birch-O'Neal Company, a construction firm, received it.

The attorney declared the point was an entirely new one not covered by any court decisions and said the case would be carried to the Supreme Court if necessary when Justice Scott decided against him. Dep. Dist.-Atty Burton prosecuted the charge.

mands from the commission for similar purposes."

TEXT OF RESOLUTION

The Public Service Commission's blanket resolution authorizing monthly donations to the Boulder Dam Association "of $1500 a month until Congress meets next December," says:

Whereas, the city of Los Angeles is vitally interested in the matter of inducing Congress to provide the necessary funds for the construction of a high storage dam at or near Boulder Canyon on the Colorado River, because of the fact that such dam, besides insuring protection to Imperial Valley and other menaced sections against the floods of the Colorado River, and greatly extending irrigation in the Lower Colorado Basin, will make possible the development of a great amount of hydroelectric power; and

Whereas, it appears necessary, in order to bring about the adoption of legislation by Congress for the above purpose, to give wide and thorough publicity to the nature and public importance of such development; and

Whereas, an organization known as Boulder Dam Association, composed of representatives of the various municipalities, districts and communities interested in said project, has been formed for the purpose of providing such publicity, and such organization is to be supported and financed by participating public agencies, and it appears desirable that the city of Los Angeles, as a member of such organization, should contribute its share of the legitimate expense of such publicity work;

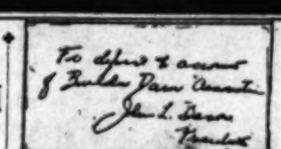
Now, therefore, be it resolved; that an amount not exceeding $1500 per month be appropriated out of the Power Revenue for said purpose until the convening of Congress in December next; and that, for such purpose, a demand for $1000 in favor of the Boulder Dam Association be, and the same is hereby, ordered drawn and approved on the Power Revenue Fund.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of a resolution adopted by the Board of Public Service Commissioners of the city of Los Angeles, at its meeting held on June 12, 1923.

[Signed]
JAMES P. VROMAN, Secretary.

STATEMENT TO BE MADE

Following the spectacular, expensive but futile advertising campaign of the public service commission to secure support for the $35,000,000 power bonds at the recent city election, the commission bowed its collective head to the demand of the public to know how much of the public funds had been spent for "jazz" bands, posters, banners, postcards, letters, circulars, windshield stickers, and advertising of all kinds, and passed a resolution instructing Controller



The $1000 Check

Anderson to make a detailed statement to the board as to the campaign expenditures. This statement, Controller Anderson said, is being prepared, and will soon be transmitted to the board. In addition to the work done openly by the board and its 3000 employees much advertising matter including 400,000 copies of a four-page newspaper was sent out over the names of the "Municipal Ownership Association," "Public Ownership League" and similar organizations. Officials of the commission at the time denied that the board had made any contributions to these organizations, such as the one to the "Boulder Dam Association," which came to light yesterday.

The Boulder Dam Association's $1000 check and future payments of the organization of $1500 a month will doubtless figure prominently if the threatened investigation of the commission's political expenditures by the incoming City Council, which takes office on July 2, comes to pass.

The mere passage by the commission of a resolution donating $1500 a month to an organization or to an individual does not make these expenditures legal. Section 192 of the city charter sets forth exactly the purposes for which the Public Service Commission may expend its power revenues, and these purposes include the necessary expenses of conducting, operating, maintaining and extending its power business.

Nothing is said of money to be paid to "jazz" bands, for posters, letters to voters, circulars, banners and donations to the Boulder Dam Association" or any other "organizations" for "publicity." If the new Council should declare these propaganda expenses illegal, the commissioners would be required to dig down into their pockets and replace in the power revenue fund the money they had ordered paid out for these campaign expenses, including the $1000 paid to the "Boulder Dam Association."

Another method of replacing these expenditures would be the bringing in the courts of a taxpayers' suit, and should the courts hold the expenditures illegal, the commissioners would be required to personally replace the money in the power revenue fund.

ish heirs." Mr. Mitchell said. "The Springer Heirs, Inc., are to attempt to regain possession of this fortune as well as the land originally owned by Charles Springer, granted to the pioneer in colonial days."

According to Mr. Mitchell, the Du Pont interests which at present are in possession of the greater part of Wilmington are said to have no proof of their claim. At a recent meeting of the Springer Heirs Inc., in Chicago, several witnesses testified to having seen books in Wilmington banks showing $240,000,000 in rentals held for the Springer heirs, Mr. Mitchell said.

$21,000 in bonds; from a house at 422 Aliso, where Ruis lived, bonds valued at $22,000 were recovered; $7000 worth were located in a safety deposit vault and Garcia's arrest revealed the hiding place of the $22,000 allotment in the northern city.

SAY SUSPECT TOLD

The arrests of the first seven suspects occurred late last Wednesday after Capt. Home and a detail of twenty-five officers had worked patiently on the case for ninety-seven days. One of the suspects is said to have "squealed." He is said to have betrayed his companions by telling the officers of their part in the robbery and in the killing of McGee. He has been named as the one who led the officers early yesterday to Fresno, where Garcia conducts a poolroom, purchased with stolen bonds. Those now under arrest are: Amelio Sierra, 40 years of age; E. Blandes, 32; Cruz Jaramillo, 32, and Garcia, all of whom are charged with highway robbery. Angel Ruiz, Frank E. Bernard, Mrs. Portia Jaramillo and Mrs. Maxine Sierra, all charged with receiving stolen property. Mrs. Sierra is held under guard at the Aliso-street house.

Jaramillo, the man said to have "squealed," is named as the one whose actions led to the arrests of the others. The bonds which he possessed, he declared, were sold to him for $300 by two men on Sunset Boulevard. He said he borrowed the money from Sierra.

MAY HAVE SLAYER

Whether or not the actual slayer of the bank chauffeur is now in custody—one of the suspects under arrest—the police are not certain. It is to clear up this last thread of mystery of the $500,000 bond robbery that Capt. Home gave instructions that each suspect be given an exhaustive cross-examination.

"The slayer of Sam McGee is the man we want most of all," said Mr. Vandeveer yesterday. He has been assisting the officers in the investigation for three months. "We do not know whether he is in jail or not. If he is not, the time will not be long before Capt. Home will grab him."

Chamber Plans Reception for Teacher Guests

Official welcome will be accorded to the delegation of teachers from Hawaii, arriving in Los Angeles on the Calawaii tomorrow at 12 noon.

Coming to Los Angeles for a brief visit and sightseeing tour before the N.E.A. convention in San Francisco, beginning the 25th inst., the delegation will be met by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce and educational organizations.

To give the visitors a general idea of the city, seventy-five cars will meet them at the boat and take the 226 travelers on a sightseeing tour over Los Angeles and its environs. Luncheon will be served at the Hollywood High School and in the evening the party will attend a theater.

Many members of the party have announced their intention of returning to the Southland to spend the remainder of their vacation.

Man Ordered to Provide Money for His Child

Declaring he was convinced John K. Muma had committed perjury when he denied paternity of Marguerite Wahl, born February 15, 1921, to Emma Wahl, a laundry worker, Judge Valentine in Superior Court yesterday ordered Muma to pay $20 a month for the support of the child.

"In order to escape his obligations, I am confident from his own testimony this man has perjured himself," said the judge. "Unfortunately the evidence probably is not sufficient for action by the District Attorney."

Miss Wahl asserted Muma took her for automobile rides in moonlight. She did not know, she said, he was a married man.

the present and future needs of the city of Los Angeles."

INSIDE POLITICS

Councilmen who have watched closely the delay in starting the library, declare that the real reasons for the commission's rejection of the plans were that some of the commissioners were unalterably opposed to any library being built on Normal Hill and also to the fact that a New York architect was chosen to design the building.

One Councilman said: "What has the Municipal Art Commission to do with the site of the library? Normal Hill is the only useable site which could be secured free and thus leave $2,000,000 of the bond money for the central public library and equipment and furnishings. The people have shown that they approve of the Normal Hill site by voting on June 5 to issue $500,000 additional bonds to purchase the Flower-street frontage. Why should the Art Commission thwart the wishes of the people?"

MAY OUST BOARD

Following the rejection of the plans, the board of library directors asked the Art Commission for a detailed statement as to why the architect's plans were unacceptable, and to date this letter has not been answered.

The Art Commission has delegated John W. Mitchell to draft a letter to the library board and to submit it to the Art Commission at its meeting on July 5. The Mayor said that he wanted immediate results and could not wait for the July 5 meeting, but would call the conference at once.

If the Mayor is unsuccessful in breaking the deadlock over approval of the library plans, it is possible that one of the results of the trouble will be the elimination in the new charter of the Art Commission as a branch of the city government.

SLAIN ROLLING 'A NATURAL'

Witness in Crap Game Shooting Tells How One of Eight Players Was Killed

After eight devotees of the dotted ivories had wooed Lady Luck in a crap game for six hours, January 10, 1922, James E. Goldie threw a natural and was shot and killed by another player, A. F. Champion, according to testimony yesterday in the hearing of Champion in Justice Hanby's court.

Harry A. Smith, who said that he was one of the eight, testified that the players were on their knees in a place at 309 West Ninth street and that the only conversation he heard in the six hours of play was when each man, in turn, "talked to the dotted ivories." He said the conversation included such phrases as "come on, dice, come home to your daddy," "box cars," "snake eyes, "baby needs a pair of shoes" and "Little Phoebe, talk to me."

Then, he said, the regular course of conversation was broken when Champion said: 'Somebody is winning all the money."

"Then Goldie took the bones," said Smith, "threw a natural and Champion shot him."

Champion disappeared but recently was arrested in Cleveland after he had been acquitted there on another charge of murder.

Smith, the only witness heard yesterday, when interrogated by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Heinecke and S. S. Hahn, defense attorney, asserted nothing was said when the shot was fired. The case was continued until Wednesday for additional testimony.

SCARED CROOKS HOLD UP BANK

Patrick. The bank was opened for business May 12.

Dyck was attending to the entry of True's account, and Patrick was at the teller's window when the two men drifted in from the market. One of them casually tossed a $50 bill through the grill to Patrick, asking him for change.

"When I offered him the change," said Mr. Patrick, "I saw the barrel of a pistol a foot long. He thrust a flour sack in to me and said: 'Put all the money in that.' There was a great stack of one dollar bills in front of me, and I crowded them into the sack. Then I put in the five and ten dollar bills.

"'Act quick, or you'll be a dead man, and don't push any buttons!' he then told me."

SPEAKS IN LOUD WHISPER

The bandit spoke in a loud whisper. At this time Dyck looked up from the True account and saw that the second man was covering him with a large pistol. He hurriedly thrust the money deposited by True to this bandit. Meanwhile True continued the business of becoming a bank depositor.

Then the $20 and $50 bills followed the ones and tens into the sack and Patrick passed it through the grill to the robber. The man with the sack ran from the bank, the one who had been covering Dyck gave him a moment's start, then followed. As the second man left the bank his revolver exploded. He had been heard to cock it during the harvest.

Both bandits had spoken huskily, their hands had shaken excitedly, and their faces were strained and blanched during the robbery. The pistol shot, which imbedded itself in the cashier's cage close to the floor, was attributed to the bandit's fright, and not to an attempt to intimidation. True then realized that gunmen were operating, but let his account stand as it was.

The shot aroused the neighborhood, and men rushed toward the bank. The Rogan brothers were in their car across Florence avenue from the scene of the hold-up, and as the bandits piled into their own car, which was headed north on Moneta avenue, took up the pursuit. A number of men jumped in the Rogan car and the chase was on.

BANDITS SPEED AWAY

The bandit car tore north on Moneta, west on Sixty-third street to Figueroa street, north on Figueroa to Slauson avenue, and east on Slauson avenue until they were lost in the traffic. At one point the Rogan car crashed into another, coming dangerously near a fatal collision, but continued until further pursuit was hopeless.

The bandit car was variously described as a Studebaker and a Buick. Its number was first reported to be 611368, but later this clew was discarded.

Patrolman W. V. Kelmas rang the police telegraph at the corner at 11:45 a.m. then hurried to the school at the intersection of Sixty-first street and Figueroa, where he helped the children across the street. The bandits presumably were acquainted with this fact, as the bank was robbed at 11:55 a.m.

Assistant Captain of Detectives Chapman assigned Detective Lieutenants Briggs and Bergman to the case. Deputy Sheriffs Modle and Dewar visited the scene and sought to have several suspects identified.

Patrick declared that the bandits went away with the impression that they had about $30,000, owing to the large number of $1 bills they obtained. A much larger amount of money was left intact in the vault.

DESCRIPTIONS OBTAINED

Good descriptions of the bandits were obtained from several people in the vicinity who had seen them. The first was described as being about 35 years of age, about 5ft., 11in. tall, weighing approximately 145 pounds, of slender build, with a thin, pale face. He wore a dark suit, a dark fedora hat, and carried a large revolver. The second was about 35 years old, 5ft., 9in. tall and weighing about 135 pounds. He wore a gray soft hat, dark suit and khaki shirt and carried a blue revolver. The third remained in the car and was not described.

From their appearance police concluded that the bandits were addicted to narcotics. Their nervousness might have been due to a craving for drugs.

Perhaps the most amazing discovery of recent years in the field of medicine is the discovery that Piles or Hemorrhoids can now be successfully treated and cured at home by a wonderful substance to which the name of MOAVA has been given.

For years it has been known that many so-called remedies were simply palliative and gave only temporary relief while surgical operations, often adopted as a last resource, did not remove the cause but simply the formation, in no wise acting on the source of the trouble.

merit, the sort that aims at a high standard and reaches it.

Major and his orchestra, playing through the courtesy of The Rendezvous, Crystal Beach, Santa Monica, provided the noon program.

The syncopation, in a manner, was an announcement of the fact that The Rendezvous was to have its formal opening at 8 o'clock last night.

Admirers of good dance music telephoned in to congratulate the orchestra on its playing. F. J. Major, head of the orchestra, is also a well-known band leader. His organization has toured the principal cities of the East and Middle West. Each of his players is a picked musician of solo worth.

The personnel is: Wyn Bowles, saxophone and accordion; S. W. Davidson, drums and tympani; C. F. Wax, cornet; C. A. Burk, bass; Sammy Silverman, violin; A. M. Gifford, banjo; G. A. Johnson, trombone; F. L. (Ted) Appleton, pianist, and Forrest J. Major, leader and saxophonist. In addition to the orchestra jazz numbers there were solos by members of the organization. Sammy Silverman, violinist; Wyn Bowles, playing an accordion, and A. M. Gifford, banjoist, took turns in the order given.

TENOR CHARMS

Arne Nordskog, a tenor of recognized ability, formerly in grand opera and now president of the Nordskog Recording Company, was a feature of the program. He was the guest of honor at The Rendezvous last Saturday night and sang last night at the formal opening.

Mr. Nordskog studied in Europe and concertized widely, as well as appearing in grand opera for several years. His splendid voice was heard by listeners-in yesterday in "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and "Land of the Sky Blue Water." F. L. Appleton was the accompanist.

Using only string instruments the Filipino musicians can emulate "a young symphony orchestra," as one hearer phrased it. The orchestra is composed of Daniel Mangabat, violin, Richard Beltrano, first mandolin, Crisanto Cardenal, tenor mandola, Carlos Tempongko mando-'cello, Vincent Fondevilla, guitar, and Pedro Bandalan, bass-guitar.

POPUDAR FEATURE

This organization has become one of the most popular features of KHJ. Yesterday they ranged from syncopation to grand opera, playing "Sextette," from "Lucia di Lammermoor," Overture to "Semiramide," by Rossini, and fox-trot favorites.

Dr. James D. Eaton, author and lecturer, spoke during the afternoon program on "The People of Mexico," an interesting and timely subject. He is the author of "Life Under Two Flags."

The children's program was given by Parker Oliver, 14 years of age, and Edward Hertford, 12, saxophonists, and Mary Elizabeth Harris, pianiste, 6. The saxophonists are pupils of Irma Hertford. They favored with duets, including March from "Aida," by Verdi, "Barcarolle," from "The Love Tales of Hoffman," and "Mighty Lak' a Rose," by Nevin.

Little Miss Harris, also a pupil of Irma Hertford, surprised with her aptitude for the piano. She played "Hide and Seek," "May Dance," and "The Violin," all by Blake.

Several children from the Los Angeles Orphan Asylum came to the studio for the evening program and had an enjoyable hour. They sang songs and gave readings for juvenile radio fans.

FOREST FIRE COSTLY

Took $2500 To Extinguish Flames In Lytle Creek

A checking up of the financial loss caused by the recent forest fire in the Lytle Creek region, shows it cost $2500 to extinguish the flames. The timber burned was not of much value, but the destruction of the brush injured the watershed that San Bernardino and other localities depend on for their water supply. Two Mexicans injured at the fire are at the Ramona Hospital, San Bernardino, one with a broken shoulder. Under the workmen's compensation law of the government, these men are on the payrool during their disability.

CHANGE OF HEART

Nineteen different political parties are represented in the Czecho-Slovakia Parliament. Some of the statesmen there must awake in the morning with a new political bedfellow. It is certainly a good deal easier for a man to change his politics than his shirt, for there are not that many shirts in Prague.

ANYHOW IT HAPPENED

During the night of terror when the volcano was destroying the fair island of Sicily 200,000 people prayed unceasingly to their God to save them from the tongues of fire. And the next morning there was a diminishing in the streams of molten lava. Whether this was an instance of the law of cause and effect or just a coincidence everyone will decide for himself according to the trend of his own individual thought.

TAKING NO CHANCES

The American Journal of Public Health has been investigating sanitary conditions in all the larger cities of the country. The expenditure for health purposes in eighty-one of the largest cities averages 51.6 cents per inhabitant. In San Francisco the expenditure is 45 cents per capita. Despite the natural advantages of Southern California from a health standpoint Los Angeles is spending 53 cents per person—a trifle more than the average.

THE SINGLE STANDARD

The equality of the sexes has been rather firmly established in old England. The British House of Commons has finally passed a bill which makes infidelity of the husband on a plane with infidelity of the wife as a basis for divorce. Heretofore, the frailties of the husband have only been counted as episodes in connection with more serious specifications, but now a wandering husband can be held directly responsible for his lapses—that is, if the House of Lords has a spasm of virtue and lends its approval to the measure. Possibly that is too much to expect.

WASTING WATER

Chicago experts have ascertained that the wastage of water increases about twice as fast as the city's population. While 125 gallons per day is said to be all an average human being needs, the population as a whole consumes an average of 276 gallons per person. When it comes to wasting water, however, Chicagoans are pikers compared with a good many Californians. If you think otherwise, take a drive along some of our boulevards, especially the Foothill Boulevard, and note the overflow from the orchards, running waste along the roadsides. Unless better use can be found for this waste water, perhaps the Fisheries Commission might be induced to stock the streams with trout.

ROMANTIC FOREST SOLD

One by one the picturesque haunts of romance are falling before the needs of a commercial-minded world. Who will not heave a sigh to learn that Sherwood Forest, where Robin Hood and his merry band abided, is to be destroyed to supply coal? Nottingham county is rich in coal deposits and it is estimated that 10,000,000 tons a year can be taken from this historic locality. The lords who owned the forest have for many years resisted the temptation to put it to practical uses, because of the wealth of tradition that clung to the place. But today they are poor and have announced that the heavy income tax that burdens the land owner in Britain today necessitates parting with the forest in order to pay their dues to the government. So the hiding place where Robin Hood and Maid Marian lingered when they were not harassing the wealthy oppressors of the poor is to be destroyed in order that the descendants of those oppressors may themselves pay their bills. Time works some mighty changes.

ETHICS OF THE DUST

It has been ruled unethical for realty salesmen to flag passing motorists or force upon them the wonders of the specific subdivision to which their energies are at the time attached. In the enthusiasm of the moment a salesman has occasionally gone into the highway, plucked the arm and attention of the passing stranger and compelled his consideration of the glorious opportunities unfolded. Against this aggressive approach the Realty Board has sternly set its face. The cry is to let nature take her course. Under recent laws and regulations the real estate sign must even be modest and unobtrusive. It must also be truthful. So it may be seen that the business is now on a plane with banking, diplomacy and statesmanship. The realtor no longer travels with a brass band, a sandbag and a fountain pen. He carries discreet announcements of his treasure in the Sunday papers and the people pass in review before the panorama as it is unleashed. If they are interested the beckoning finger will invite the activities of the salesman. But there is to be no man-handling or rough stuff on the part of the subordinate agent. Live and let live is the order of the day.

JAPAN'S SECOND AWAKENING

When the Prince of Wales visited Japan last year he started something. To Commodore Perry Japan owes her awakening from a dream of isolation that endured for 1000 years. He was the fairy prince of Japanese commerce, industry and politics. But it remained for a real prince of the royal line of England to awaken the reigning family of Japan; to give its members the first intimation that it was worth while to come forth from royal seclusion and live the life of real people.

England's heir seemed to enjoy himself immensely while making his tour of the world; and the peoples that he visited gave him wonderful receptions. The Japanese viewed it in the light of something that succeeded, and what succeeds is always held by them to be worthy of imitation.

While the Japanese have won no decorations for originality, they possess an uncanny talent for the adaptation of the best that is discovered elsewhere and discarding what fails in other countries.

This versatility is especially noticeable in their political attitude since the World War. During the early years of the century, while Germany was lording it over the rest of Europe, the Japanese became convinced that Germany possessed the secret of national success. They imitated German armaments and military aggression. Then came the war. They saw Germany go on the rocks, disappear as a leading power, treated with contempt by those whom she bullied in the days of her greatness. And the Japanese have now an aversion for anything German. They have ceased to be arrogant internationally, and they are said to be as strong advocates of peace as they once were strong for military aggression. No other people could experience so complete a change of heart in so brief a time.

Now the Japanese are trying the experiment of sending their Prince Imperial to visit foreign countries. Crown Prince Hirohito has just traveled through Europe, and is reported to have done his best to conduct himself like a regular fellow. He went about incognito in Paris and London, mingling with the masses; something no son of the Mikado has yet dared to do in his own country.

Some of his adventures recall in a lesser way those of the "Arabian Nights;" and they become more marvelous with each repetition. A story about any international character is bound to grow as it travels, like a snowball rolling down hill.

In France, to illustrate, Prince Hirohito was driving an automobile. A collision occurred in which there was a fatality. Of course, the Prince was not arrested; but information comes from Tokio that three officers of the imperial army have been dismissed from the service in disgrace, because the automobile driven by the Prince in France was wrecked.

Thus does the old tradition of Japan collide with the new order. If the Prince's auto was wrecked some one had to be punished and, of course, it could not be the Prince. So, in accordance with the ancient law of the Samurai, three officers of the army were offered as a vicarious sacrifice.

Prince Hirohito is said to be affable and wholly charming. He has increased the prestige of the royal family of Japan in the countries he has visited; but his journey is said to have caused political and social complications at home. The rank and file of the Japanese people insist that the veil of mystery shall not be removed from the descendants of the sun and moon. They refuse to accept a reigning house whose members are just the common or garden variety of human beings.

Taking the royal family from its seclusion is as much of a tragedy to them as taking God out of heaven. When the Prince started on his adventures a number of the Samurai threw themselves in front of the imperial train. Killing oneself is a Samurai custom of making a political protest. How much it is to be regretted that it has not been followed by certain cults in our own country!

Now the Prince is said to be returning home to face a political crisis. Superstition, builded on tradition, has come to grips in Japan with the spirit of progress. There is a feeling in parts of the country that, if the royal family is no longer to be worshiped, it should no longer be obeyed. The Samurai would rather be governed from heaven than to govern themselves.

BRITAIN'S INDIAN PERIL

Many thoughtful people in England hold that Great Britain's chief source of anxiety today is not in the Ruhr Valley or Mesopotamia or the Balkan Peninsula or about Ireland or the Lancashire cotton trade, but in the political unrest and spirit of revolt threatening a dangerous upheaval in India.

These alarmists fear that if India were lost the British Empire would fall like an arch from which the keystone has been removed. Not since the Sepoy mutiny has the British government faced so grave a situation in her great Asiatic dependency.

It may be said that, sifted to the bottom, beneath all the moves made by the British Foreign Office in any part of the world, will be found the paramount need of holding India. Yet since the close of the war British policy toward the native population there has been marked by blunder after blunder.

England swallowed an unpalatable pill when, in 1921, she entered into a trade agreement with the Bolshevists at Moscow. She didn't do it because she expected particularly lucrative returns from any business ventures sponsored by the soviets. Her main object was to call off the Russian revolutionary propaganda that was being carried on among her Indian subjects.

For a time the policy succeeded. Lenin called off the Indian propaganda in return for the lifting of the British trade blockade of Russia. And then the Indian government undid the effect of this agreement by drastic measures against Gandhi and his followers. Freed, as they supposed, from the Russian threat, British officials imprisoned by the thousands the supporters of a policy of passive resistance.

The only result of this imprisonment was to turn passive resistance into active opposition. Gandhi and the moderates being imprisoned the natives turned to the radicals and revolutionaries. So the British repeated the mistakes that alienated Ireland and stirred the flames of discontent in India as no Bolshevist agents could have possibly done in so short a time.

In the meantime, by backing the Greeks in their unhappy Turkish adventure, the British lost prestige in the Mohammedan world, while the bombarding of Mohammedan village by British airplanes during a border war on the northeast frontier has lighted another anti-Christian conflagration.

According to the latest dispatches radicals have captured the municipal government in many of the large centers of population in India. Their program is to scrap the machinery of government and to encourage anarchy. Thus people are refusing to pay their taxes and when their property is seized to be sold nobody will buy.

Into this mess, ripe for plucking, the Russian "Reds" are again stirring in the ferment of Communism. In India conditions approach the crisis that gave birth to the republican army in Ireland; but if revolt of the 300,000,000 people of India should result from this latest agitation the consequences would be still more disastrous. If it succeeded it would end British rule in India. And none can say where the flood of Asiatic revolution thus let loose would reach its final limit.

GETTING THE ANGORAS

When the Americans secured their sweeping concession from Turkey they overlooked one source of considerable revenue. This has now been secured by a syndicate of Swiss capitalists, who have been accorded a concession which gives them the sole privilege of exporting from Angora the superb cats that are native there. This may not seem much to the average American, but, when it is learned that the syndicate plans to export 1,000,000 a year of the fluffy-haired beauties one readily sees that Admiral Chester overlooked a source of potential revenue.

The Swiss capitalists will pay Mustapha Kemal's government $1 each for the cats, plus a duty of from $1 to $3 on every feline. They will then be retailed in England and America at $50 each, which leaves a neat profit for the canny gentlemen from Switzerland. The Turks, to whom the cats are less than the dust, despite their beauty, are reported as in a state of amazed joy over this sudden boon granted them by Allah. Domestic pets are not appreciated by the Osmanli. So those Americans who love their sleep had better be getting in their full eight hours before our share of the yearly 1,000,000 begins to roll in. Tuneful nights are ahead of us in the land of the free.

WHEN LOVE LAUGHS

"Love laughs at locksmiths." And sometimes it can smile serenely at greater obstacles, as is shown in the case of a young San Francisco girl who was injured in an automobile accident a year ago, suffering a broken spine that left her a cripple. Seemingly such a condition would be an insuperable barrier to an elopement, and so her mother thought. And when her youthful fiance called to take her for an automobile ride the mother readily consented. And straight to Redwood City, the Gretna Green of Northern California, the young people betook themselves and were married. Then the mother and police went searching for the youthful runaways.

All of which proves conclusively that when a lady, young or old, makes up her mind to get married it takes more than a broken leg or a broken back to keep her away from the altar. She can even rally out of a coma long enough to pronounce the magic words "I do." Times and customs may change, divorce statistics loom ever larger and marriage license lists shrink. But away in the back of her mind each damsel has tucked a picture of a pageant in which she, as the bride, is the central figure. Perhaps she may some day be a captain of industry or the first woman President and confer on the partner of her joys and sorrows the distinction of being the "first gentleman of the land," but the outstanding recollection of her life is likely to be of the day she strode up the church aisle and imagined that all her girl friends were envying her. There is nothing so intoxicating to most women as a whiff of orange blossoms, especially when they are detached from the trees and adorning their heads above a bridal veil.

TWO MINUTES OF OPTIMISM

BY HERMAN J. STICH

The Ship That Found Itself

Kipling once wrote a story of a magnificent ship that sailed forth on its far-heralded maiden voyage across the sea. With banners streaming and crowds and crew cheering, it swept majestically into the ocean, its nose pointed toward the glorious, limitless expanse of blue.

Then a curious thing happened. Each section of the ship, pride-conscious and conceit-soaked, roared aloud in self-glorification—and shrieked and howled and groaned and bellowed in a mad attempt to trample over the noises of its fellow-sections.

All went fairly well while the sea was smooth. But suddenly a storm arose. Mountains of water crashed viciously into the quivering hulk. Gigantic waves battered against the sides of the writhing Titan till it seemed as though it must be dismembered. And all the while the sturdy ship fought bravely but futilely to subdue an enraged element.

In this crisis the ship's sections held a conference. And they decided immediately to forget their individual glory and strength, to give in each just a little bit, to exert each his whole power and sinew toward pushing the ship into port.

And soon the discordant, inharmonious cry and jangle died down, to swell into a harmonious, purring whir. And the ship moved steadier and straighter than it had moved for days. And with seeming newborn spirit and strength that radiated triumphant power and undaunted will, it ploughed a path through the waves till it made its port. For the ship had found itself.

Are capital and labor inferior to a lifeless hunk of wood and steel? Is it not high time that they stopped being up and at each other like a pack of Kilkenny cats? Cannot these conflicting groups give in each just a little, relinquish their pound of flesh, put forth each his whole energy and resources to pushing the good ship America to the Port of Good Times and the Haven of Happiness and Content?

The spirit of grab and clawing at the other fellow's throat has already made the vessel careen precariously. Can we not stop looking out for Number One long enough to stop rocking the boat and give it a chance to find itself?

RIPPLING RHYMES

SAFE TOPICS

I have very little worry, for I'm not a trouble hound; as around the burg I hurry, harmless topics I expound; and I talk about the weather and the price of hay and leather, and I keep my lips together when there's scandal going round. Oh, the weather is a topic that is seldom sprung in vain, and when I am feeling yawpic such a theme is safe and sane; no one's heart is being wounded by the sentiments I've sounded, if, when by my friends surrounded, I discuss last evening's rain. I take up last winter's blizzard when I want a thing to roast, show it up from A to Izzard, knock it where it hurts the most; or I criticise the thunder that aroused the hamlet's wonder when it split a tree asunder—such discussion is my boast. Once I talked about my neighbors with a sort of righteous ire; I belittled all their labors, gossiped like a house afire; idle stories I was spreading while upon my errands treading, and my life was rougher sledding than a voter could desire. For the gossip is detested as a serpent in the grass; people wish he were arrested every time they see him pass; so I talk about the weather and the "hoose amang the heather," and the cow that breaks her tether and the growing garden sass. PEN POINTS

By the Staff

June is more than half past. Hurry up, girls.

The commencement season is commencing, all right.

A number of our distinguished Americans are being remembered this month—by degrees.

So far, Gov. Al Smith has not nullified the hot weather that is prevailing in New York.

That Republican "split" on the World Court idea seems to have been much exaggerated.

It is now possible to get 165,000 German marks for $1. You might paper a room with them.

It now turns out that it was Andy Gump who offered the Shipping Board $1,000,000,000 for the government's ships.

A vacation is one thing that we think we can afford to take. It is a good deal like buying an automobile—the readiness is all.

The Santa Fe Railroad wants thirty locomotives. Have you a little locomotive in your home? If so, here is a chance for a buyer.

It is predicted that Southern California will soon supply the world with its English walnuts. Not to speak of other varieties of nuts.

A serum cure for rheumatism is announced. Wonder if it is any better than the old-fashioned buckeye or potato cure? They were lalapaloozas.

It is suggested that the membership of the Republican National and Executive committees be made up half men and half women. If not, why not?

It is possible that in the near future children will go to school in an airplane. Grandfather walked to school in his bare feet; father used a street car, when he had the price, and the automobile is used to carry the tots. But the flying machine is almost here.

THIS IS THE DAY

The British warship Leopard stopped the U.S.S. frigate Chesapeake on the high seas to search for three asserted deserters from the British navy. When the Chesapeake disregarded the summons the Leopard fired a broadside, damaging her hull and rigging. Thereupon the Chesapeake hove to, the British boarded her and carried off the three suspected deserters. This aggressive act was one of the most direct causes of the War of 1812. The hold-up of the Leopard occurred in the year 1807.

Lieut. Adolphus W. Greeley and six companions, survivors of the disastrous Greeley Arctic expedition, were found by a rescue party near Cape Sabine, off Northern Greenland, in the year 1884. The Greeley party had originally numbered twenty-five men, the rest having died of starvation and exposure.

EASY-CHAIR SCIENCE

BY RANSOME SUTTON

XXXIII. THE A. B. C. OF EVOLUTION

One need not believe in the simian origin of man to believe in evolution, but one must believe in the unfolding processes of nature in order to understand the laws and workings of nature and that is what evolution means—the unfolding, or unrolling, of things in nature. Evolution is old, older than the oldest star, for out of firemist the stars have been evolved and, according to astronomers, are even now being evolved. In the rings of Saturn one may see moons in the making. The evolution idea, while as old as Greek philosophy, has only recently become a part of our mental equipment. Students in all branches of science now make use of it as an intellectual tool with which to delve into the secrets of nature. In some form or other evolution is being taught in the public schools of all the States, openly in all except Kentucky and a few Gulf States. Evolution means that out of the past the present has grown, and that the present is now growing into the future, that the present is the child of the past and will be the parent of the future.

Naturalists think of nature as evolution's workshop—poorly kept, it would seem, for everywhere one finds dust-covered models of antique animals and plants, which were discarded by the Maker, just as in a human workshop one finds obsolete forms and patterns of inventions used in the making of more workable forms and patterns. When it comes to tracing the origin and development of things, however, whether of backbones or steam engines, those junked models are found exceedingly instructive.

Unlike the dead languages, evolution is neither dead nor dying; it is terribly alive, as active today as ever in the past, and individuals, institutions or tribes, standing in its way, must sooner or later step aside. The process of creation is still going on, not only among animals and plants, but also in the world of lifeless matter, in the heavens and upon the earth.

In radium, for example, creation may be seen in active operation. Radium shines and the "shine" comes from atoms thrown off by its exploding molecules. Since radium is an element, one of the eighty-eight supposedly basic forms of matter, like gold and oxygen, it used to be thought that nothing but radium could come from it, just as nothing but gold has ever been found in gold. Modern physicists have discovered, however, that as the radium molecule breaks down it erupts several kinds of atoms, [illegible] dium at all. One [illegible] called alpha rays, [illegible] speed of 12,000 [illegible] but, by surrounding [illegible] sample with [illegible] ticles have been [illegible] tested with the [illegible] found to be—helium!

Not only helium, but [illegible] or forms of elements [illegible] been discovered in the [illegible] anations; and, after [illegible] has shot out all its [illegible] an inert residuum [illegible] this remainder, the [illegible] the evaporation, [illegible] ther radium nor [illegible]

If this is not evolution will have to [illegible] ing nature thus [illegible] ments out of the [illegible] elements, may we not [illegible] the older elements [illegible] their day similarly [illegible] still older elements?

There are only [illegible] known elements in the [illegible] sun, stars and [illegible] entists are beginning [illegible] that all have been [illegible] coming together or [illegible] apart of simpler forms. Hydrogen, being the [illegible] elements, consists of [illegible] each of which consists [illegible] tive and one negative [illegible] the atoms of the heavier [illegible] contain multiples of [illegible] doublets, so it is thought [illegible] trons were the primordial [illegible] ing stones used in the [illegible] of all forms of matter [illegible] earth and in the heavens.

Socially, politically, [illegible] in all walks of life new [illegible] tendencies, new ideas [illegible] customs are growing up [illegible] forms, tendencies, ideas [illegible] toms. The noblest [illegible] things of ancient times [illegible] lete today, and one may predict that the [illegible] things, considered [illegible] us, will seem very [illegible] ish perhaps, to Americans [illegible] twenty-first century. [illegible] would be dazzled to [illegible] Broadway today, but [illegible] should we 100 years [illegible]

If we think of evolution [illegible] a power nor as a [illegible] Deity, but as a process [illegible] which the Creator has [illegible] sky with stars—some [illegible] others dying or dead—[illegible] man out of the ooze and [illegible] an eye to see and a mind [illegible] prehend the beauty [illegible] so apparent all around [illegible] not feel inclined to [illegible] the cobblers, for [illegible] is nothing to quibble [illegible]

As an essential part [illegible] Chair Science I shall [illegible] plain the workings of [illegible] fied, orderly, god-like [illegible]

GOOD EXCUSES

BY LEE SHIPPEY

Three weeks ago I was leading an exemplary useful life. Now I am almost ruined. And all because of good excuses.

I used to spring up with the city man's lark, the alarm clock, at 6 a.m., garden till 7, shave, bathe, breakfast and read the paper and get to work by 9. At 5 p.m I quit work, took a stroll, watered the walks and porch thoroughly and the grass and flowers more or less, supped and read something worth while nearly every evening. Each day slipped into the happiest of pasts with a record of something attempted, something done, and I felt I was a real, worthy citizen.

Then the wife got doctor's orders to take things easy, the washwoman and maid got dictatorial and was fired and both the children got whooping cough. No other help was within our reach. My wife, with two small children, a house and a husband to look after by day, needed rest at night. So I insisted on sleeping in the children's room and seeing them through the nights.

Their teamwork was wonderful. They never whooped in concert. They took turns at it and made things decidedly lively for me. After three nights I had such circles around my eyes that the owls tried to talk to me in their own language when I strolled out in the twilight, and I felt that I knew how they got that way. And then came Sunday.

At 7 Sunday morning my wife came in, collected the children and took them to the farthest corner of the house.

"Now you sleep," she ordered. "You need it."

"I've a ton of work to catch up with today," I protested, feebly. "I really can't take more than fifteen minutes."

"Nonsense," she retorted. "You have a good excuse for not working today."

She went out and closed the door. It was half-past 12 when she opened it again and then she had to shake me twice to wake me.

Since that day I have been a changed man. The children are much better now, but I am worse. I've got into the habit of oversleeping an hour or two every morning because I feel that I have a good excuse. The lawn and flowers have gone to pot and the back-yard garden has become unfit for the pot. My novel has been sidetracked, my other work has suffered sadly and I've quit shaving every day. I'm as disorganized as Russia.

But I have a good excuse.

It reminds me of a friend of mine who was a city editor. But I didn't know he was a friend when I first met him. He was a man who believed there are sermons in stones, and he used to bounce one, figuratively speaking, off the poll of every reporter who in any way failed on an assignment. When I came in from my first unsuccessful assignment he humiliated me before the whole office by booming:

"Young man, this paper prints everything but excuses."

I wonder how many millions of men have failed to make the successes they should have made of themselves through having good excuses. No one will ever know.

But we all know [illegible] who make successes [illegible] of good excuses. For [illegible] work won't stop for [illegible] any more than it will [illegible] cough.

So it's 6 a.m. by [illegible] How about you?

Home Hints & Entertainment — of Interest to Women

THE LAST WORD. BY ALMA WHITAKER

In the Days of Chivalry

I see an irate gentleman has been tackling the good old subject of vanished chivalry in a letter to the papers. But he feels that we women have brought it on ourselves. Since we are not as demurely enchanting as we used to be, how can we expect men to act with the same chivalry toward us as they did 200 years ago?

And on the very same day I saw a little item about a record that had been dug out of the archives of 1747:

"Mary Meredith, to be whipped at the cart's tail until her body is bloody, along Wardour street from the end next to Edward street unto the end thereof next to Tyburn street."

Just a concise little court order. Of course, we don't know just what poor little Mary had done to deserve that punishment, but she could even kill a couple of husbands and collect the insurance money nowadays without being subjected to anything quite so drastic.

STILL ANOTHER EXAMPLE

But reading a novel dealing with those times in this country, a little later, I discovered that the beauteous heroine, who started life as a beach comber, was sentenced to sit in the public stocks and have her bare feet whipped for three days—because she broke the Sabbath by beach-combing on a Sunday.

And I will wager the pastors of those days held the lady up to contumely from their pulpits as utterly depraved.

But the gentleman who later became her lover and husband was moved to chivalry when he saw her in that distressing position. He used his influence to make it two days and omit half the foot whipping. For this she was so eternally grateful that although later he threw it in her face, she loved him just the same.

BETTER WITHOUT IT

Under the circumstances, don't you know, we really cannot feel so bitter on the subject of vanished chivalry. We get along so much better without it.

In fact, I find the meager residue of chivalry left today very satisfying. Indeed, if anything, the gentlemen rather overdo it. They may be a little reluctant at times about seats in street cars or removing hats in elevators and such trifles, but we have to admit that when it comes to a showdown, like murder trials and alimony and real human-interest stuff like that, we are smothered in gallantry.

You see, they are not so exacting about our department these days—especially now the longer skirts are in. It was such a shudderful thing when a lady on a pedestal stepped aside that they soaked her good and hard for any and every offense the poor, weak creature committed—even "until her body is bloody"—in the days of chivalry. Ye gods, could one be chivalrous to a female human who was less than perfect?

PEDESTAL FALLS

But now that we are comfortably off that pedestal and are recognized as miserable sinners like themselves, if not more so, they are apt to regard our sins with the same consideration that they concede their own. And a bit more for good measure.

In fact, when you come to think of it, is the supervirtuous and dignified amongst us who seem to suffer most from the modern "lack" of chivalry. As sure as you find a lady complaining that chivalry has lamentably failed—that precious seat in the street car, for instance—you will almost surely find that she is an eminently worthy dame, still up on that pedestal in her own estimation and suffering acutely in the effort to remain there.

Perhaps men sense this and resent it. At all events, most of my friskier lady friends, who kicked the pedestal away recklessly some years ago, either have machines of their own, or just naturally smile a man into relinquishing his seat for them on the car with all the chivalry that he ought to have reserved for the more adamantly righteous.

Which, of course, isn't chivalry but admiration—and they are not the same at all.

AS TO EQUALITY

I never have been able to get very excited about that male-filled seat on the street car anyway. I am quite content with that sort of equality. He obviously thinks I am quite as good a man as he is, anyway, and I usually agree with him.

And when he does succumb to old tradition and magnificently gives up his seat, and he mostly does, bless him, I am quite apt to smile benignly, with a sense of graciously permitting myself to be patronized as the weaker vessel, just because he is a nice chap.

But it is the other kind of man who really makes me feel superior. He, bless him, indignantly, furiously, reluctantly, is conceding my full mental and physical equality with his precious sex—admitting, confessing, that he needs a seat more than I do, so there. And even if it is rather churlish—it is sound bona fide evidence. And of course, we do still occasionally need a little corroborative evidence. It is your gallant, protective man who makes us doubt ourselves, and hark back to the gentle lean-to attitude.

The men of my family can always put me in my place, back on the tiresome old pedastal, replete with self, grateful old-fashioned womanliness, by being chivalrously protective and gallant. But let me treat them as man-to-man and I am all bossy and suffragetty at once. But sly little concessions to my sex make me as putty in I am gentle and at once.

SLY

All of which cause and effect a bit confused wasn't quite in those subjects us modest, pliant, ful. Perhaps it nating and coloring that Mary Meredith tail whipping sarcastic thoughts of protective chivalry They did not the weaker ably discovered she wasn't, after that artistic that Mary probably fledged embryo

No, dears, it should because chivalry of the old could have been keeping us in interesting places airy. Think, for who have written women, had the stronghold of that in this guise loved, honored an ennobling effect had upon our stead, they declared hold of all the for our dire and every small sult that we did the saintly men's corning us. I have the saints gave steer when they so interestingly

PREVENTION vs. CURE

"There's a big change in the attitude toward doctors in the family physician, as he made his examination of the members of the family before they left town for the summer days, and not such very old days at that, men and women they were pretty sick before they called a doctor. Now doctor at least once or twice a year to give them a thorough tion and warn them if any indications point to danger. that today the doctor's work is as much prevention as Countless persons are alive and well who would have graves long ago if their physicians hadn't caught the of disease and warded off the trouble before it could by Jove, how much more satisfying it is to prevent helpless before it or even than it is to cure it.

"I have dozens of patients," he went on, "that I have saved from kidney and heart diseases by taking hold in time. The result of the new method is that I hold myself responsible now if a patient of mine becomes seriously ill. The patients hold me responsible, too," he chuckled, "so that puts me on my mettle."

THAT BLOOD PRESSURE

He took the blood pressure of the eldest member of the family, a woman of 80.

"One hundred and fifty," he smiled. "It would be hard to show a better record than that at your age. But do you remember that last year you had one hundred and seventy? Here's your card. That wasn't serious at your age, but just the same we took it in hand and got it down. Didn't want it jumping up to one hundred and ninety or two hundred. Hello, what's this?"

He was taking the blood pressure of another member of the family—a woman of 40. "One hundred and sixty-five," he muttered. "That's at least twenty degrees more than you're entitled to. What have you been doing?"

He listened to a record of special work, special strain, and nodded.

"Probably it's only temporary," he said. "If it is, the summer's rest will end it. However, you keep mighty quiet for the next week. Stay in bed as much as you can I'll make a thorough examination and take your blood pressure again before you leave town. Then we'll see."

THE DOCTOR'S

He examined the lungs and took the of every member of pronouncing all well a word of warning

Every housekeeper will want to put up at least a few jars of cherries this year. For there is no more decorative—not to say delicious—fruit to combine with a dainty salad or to garnish a tempting dessert. Can them as follows:

To Can Sweet Cherries: The oxhart variety are perhaps best for canning—although sour cherries may be put up in a sweeter sirup with excellent results. Wash the cherries in cold water and pit them. Sterilize your glass jars by boiling them for twenty minutes, with their covers, in clear water. Drain and, while still hot, pack them with the cherries. Whatever juice you saved when pitting the cherries, should now be added to the jar. Have ready a hot sirup made as follows: To six quarts of cherries allow three pounds of granulated sugar and one-half pint of water; combine and bring this sugar and water to a boil, then let continue to boil for ten minutes. Turn it over the fruit in the jars.

Now put a fresh [illegible] JAR. (This rubber [illegible] dipped for a [illegible] tair to sterilize it.) Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

I, I, I; I, MYSELF; I
THE CONFESSIONS OF A BABY
CHAPTER LXIV. GREAT EVENTS (Continued)

Last week I told you about my wonderful achievement, my first set of teeth. Two of 'em! I told you how mamma, by her diet both before I came and now while she is nursing me, was the one who really deserved the credit. I also warned you mammas not to attribute any illness to your babies' teething until you had ruled out illness due to other causes—because teething is a natural process and should not be accompanied by much disturbance.

I shall have twenty teeth in my first set, and I expect to have them all by the time I am two and a half years old. Doctor says I can expect them as follows:

Average time of eruption of deciduous or temporary teeth:

Two lower central incisors, six to nine months.

Four upper incisors, eight to twelve months.

Two lower lateral incisors, nine to twelve months.

Four anterior molars, twelve to sixteen months.

Four canines (upper—the "eye" teeth; lower—the "stomach" teeth) fourteen to twenty months.

Four posterior molars, twenty to thirty-six months.

At one year should have six teeth.

At eighteen months should have twelve teeth.

At two years should have sixteen teeth.

At two and one-half to three years should have twenty teeth.

My, but I am going to be careful of my teeth! After hearing doctor talk to my mamma and my daddy about them, we sure are impressed with how important they are. Doctor says the first teeth should hardly be called temporary, because we can hardly look on them as temporary when some of them stay with us until we are twelve or thirteen years old. Deciduous is the real name for them. The word is taken from words meaning "to fall off."

Sometimes parents, thinking of them as temporary teeth, don't realize that they must have as good care as the second teeth. But it really is just as important to have good care taken of our first sets of teeth even though they are, in a way, temporary.

Doctor told us about children she had treated who had enlarged glands in the neck, rheumatism and sometimes heart disease, simply because of decayed teeth. The germs causing these troubles gained entrance into their little bodies through the decayed teeth, which were not given attention because their parents thought they were temporary.

We wont let anything like that happen in our families, will we, mammas? We won't think of the first set of teeth as temporary, but will realize that they are permanent and 'portant for quite a period, won't we?

Of course I hardly need a tooth brush yet, but when I get enough teeth I will use it at least twice a day—in the morning and just before I don my chemise de nuit—that's elegant language for my nightie.

We will probably make a little game of it at first until I get the habit good and strong. My, what a picture that brings up—the habit good and strong! I think doctor and I will have to write on that subject some day, for habits good and strong mean health and happiness good and strong.

Of course there are going to be other things that are important to keep my first set of teeth in good condition besides keeping them clean. Oh, yes, extremely important. I'll bet you know what the chief one is! Yes, you are right—it is my diet.

My mamma will surely see that I get the foods containing the elements I need for my teeth, and some hard food to chew on every day so that my jaws and teeth will get some exercise. And you will see that your babies get these necessary foods, too, won't you, mammas?

Au revoir,
A. SOCKUMS

Boiled Rice

Never stir rice or it will fall to the bottom of the pan and burn. A way to cook rice that will bring each kernel out firm and not stuck to its neighbor is to soak the rice for twenty minutes, then put into boiling salted water and cook for twenty minutes, using plenty of water so that the rice cannot possible cook dry. Use at least two quarts of water to a cup and a half of rice.

DAILY DOT PUZZLE

Can You Finish This Picture?

Complete the drawing by tracing from figure one to two and so on to the end. Then use your crayons or water-colors and see how nicely you can color it.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

TOUGH STEAKS

If you are suspicious of the steak, cook it early in the usual pan broil. Then place the pan containing it in a steamer over hot water and let it stand over a very slow fire for an hour or so. This method will soften the toughest meat without losing the broiled flavor.

A REMINDER

Have you remembered to give the kitchen linoleum its fall coat of clear varnish or shellac? You will add years to the life of it if this is done once every six months.

DRESSMAKING AT HOME

If you make your own clothes and have no one to fit you, it is wise to stitch around neck bands and armholes to prevent their stretching while you are trying the garment on.

WHEN COAL IS SCARCE

At the present time when many people are unable to procure coal, the following is perhaps a welcome suggestion: Crush sheets of newspapers into balles and soak in a washtub half full of water. Soak overnight and in the morning press the water out and shape each ball as round as possible by packing hard. Dry thoroughly in the sun and use as you would coal. The heat they produce will surprise you.

SILKS

Colored silks should be ironed immediately after washing. Wrap them up in a clean piece of muslin or a towel for about fifteen minutes and then iron. If allowed to dry you may have trouble getting the wrinkles out.

HANDY HINTS

Dry silk stockings in the shade.

When purchasing kitchen utensils avoid dirt-catching handles.

Lamb requires more basting than any other meat, if you wish to obtain the best flavor from it.

Not Very Practical

Gelatin used in jelly to make it harden is not a great success. The jelly will stay stiff as long as it is cold, but if allowed to get the least bit warm it will get thin again.

Romance to the Dinner Table

There is nothing that gives the attractive, lovely light on the dining-room table as candlelight. Candlelight is vastly becoming to both guests and the appearance of the table, and with shades corresponding to the decorations supplies the finishing touch.

Sauces to Serve

Horseradish with roast beef.
Apple sauce with roast pork.
Tomato sauce with roast veal.
Caper sauce with boiled mutton.
Black currant jelly with roast duck.

Inside Paint

If you are thinking of painting the insides of dresser drawers and shelves white, use paint that contains no oil. Oil is only required for outside painting and is apt to turn your inside work an ugly yellow.

Discolored Vases

When crystal vases are used frequently for flowers a brown stain usually appears at the base. These dark stains can be removed by moistening tea leaves in vinegar, placing these in the vase and scrubbing the inside with them by means of a bottle brush.

Keeps Them Juicy

When pan-broiling steaks or chops, be careful to pick them up by the fat when turning. A fork stuck into the meat will let the juice out.

In My Garden

By Joseph A. Cuttey

If everyone knew the value of hardy primulas there is little doubt but what they would be found in every garden, and it is due to ignorance that these delightful flowers are held in little esteem by many amateurs. Of course if you have a light, dry soil you cannot be blamed for not understanding and appreciating the primulas, those particularly of the moisture-loving varieties, but even the lightest and driest soil can be arranged to take some of the species. Almost any kind of a soil not absolutely devoid of humus will grow some of the varieties of primroses to perfection, but to accomplish this successfully every advantage must be taken of the shade of shrubs and trees. There is no doubt of the value of the colored primroses, and those of the blue and lavender shades are worthy of particular attention. When they are grown in natural-looking colonies in the shade of shrubs they are strikingly attractive, and in rock gardens they give an expression, particularly in early spring, that scarcely anything else will.

Won't Take Long

Even if you have not time to thoroughly wash and sterilize baby's bottles when he is finished with them, at least take time to rinse them out in cold water to prevent any milk from souring in the bottles.

SANTA FE PLANS FOR EXPANSION

Redlands Rotarians Hear of Program

Large Sums to be Spent at San Bernardino

Improvements Demanded to Care for Business

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, June 21. — The Santa Fe Railroad has under way a great program of expansion and progress, but not nearly sufficient to meet the growing needs of the railroad was the message given by R. H. Tutele, superintendent, to members of the Redlands Rotary Club at noon today. The Santa Fe plans to spend a large amount in improvements on the railroad shops at San Bernardino and also plans for big improvements all along the line. Mr. Tutele has been with the Santa Fe for about thirty-five years now.

Fred Kruse, assistant general freight agent of Los Angeles for the Santa Fe said that every railroad in the country is bending every effort to build up equipment and take care of increased business. He says that the handling of freight is a big problem and that unless shippers load and unload promptly there will be trouble. It is in their best interest to do it.

T. A. Wood, superintendent of the American Railway Express spoke of the need of education among people regarding the preparation of packages. Goods properly packed are rarely damaged and those that are properly marked seldom go astray.

"The value of a member of the Legislature is shown more by the amount of bad legislation he defeats than by the good legislation he accomplishes," said J. J. Prendergast, Assemblyman, in his talk before the club. He said that the budget was the big noise in the legislative halls this year and that most of the session was taken up in disposing of it.

Babe Gives Skin in Operation to Save His Sister

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, June 21.—Wayne Main, 2-year-old son of Mrs. J. H. Main, 412½ West B street, today gave skin from his own body to be used in a grafting operation performed at the San Antonio Hospital by Dr. Stephen A. Craig in an effort to save the life of the lad's 6-year-old sister, Fern Main, who was seriously burned recently in an accident.

The little girl's right leg was burned from hip to knee and she received lesser burns elsewhere.

The skin-grafting operation, which was performed with the aid of a new Gwathney gas anaesthetic machine installed in the hospital, was witnessed by surgeons from all over Western San Bernardino county and was declared successful.

FIGHT FIRE HAZARDS

Foothill Cities Organize to Protect Watersheds

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

The object of the association is to secure closer co-operation in the matter of protecting watersheds from the menace of fire.

The association plans the ultimate organization in each community of a fire-fighting brigade similar to that recently organized in Pasadena under the Forest Service Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and plans to place itself and the local forces at the service of the Federal, State and county officials in caring for the hazards. The present association limits itself to the territory from the east side of the Tajunga on the west to the north of Lytle Creek on the east.

Officers chosen are:

President, J. N. Paige of Pomona; first vice-president, J. L. Matthews of Covina; second vice-president, T. W. Ree of Monrovia; treasurer, F. H. Manker of Uplands; secretary, C. A. Harris of Glendora. Invitations will be sent to all cities in the district to join the association.

PIONEER WOMAN AT REDLANDS IS DEAD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, June 21. — Mrs. Amanetta Nettleton, one of the pioneer women of Redlands, died last night at her home on Cajon street, after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services are to be conducted at the residence, 123 Cajon street, tomorrow morning, with Rev. Edward Seldon Lane, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, in charge. Mrs. Nettleton came to Redlands with her husband in 1890. He died about twenty years ago. Mrs. Nettleton is survived by her daughter, Miss Lucy Nettleton.

NONSTOP FLYER DROPS 200 FEET TO EARTH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RELIGIOUS TRAINING URGED

Prof. Honline at Friends' Yearly Meeting Deplores Modern Tendency to Doubt Old Beliefs

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WHITTIER, June 21.—The importance of religious education was stressed at both the morning and evening meetings of the California Yearly Meeting of Friends, here today, when Prof. M. A. Honline, known in religious and educational circles throughout the United States, as well as abroad, as the associate superintendent of religious education in the International Sunday-school Council, spoke upon the subject.

Prof. Honline declared that the Christian world today was passing through a transition period, a cold-blooded age, wherein judgment was reached with the yardstick, the scales or the x-ray.

AS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

If a proposition is presented to the young people of today and they are asked to accept it, they will immediately ask why.

"Belief," said Prof. Honline, "is not a creature of the will. One cannot honestly believe by simply wanting to believe. Belief is like love, it transcends one's will, so that belief becomes a creature or creation of evidence rather than that of will.

"During the past year I have talked to more than 50,000 students in colleges and in high schools and in one of the surveys made I found that 55 per cent of the girls and 79 per cent of the boys, from the ages of 18 to 25 years, were much in doubt regarding the general religious beliefs and tenets. Confusion in religious teachings seemer to predominate.

FOUR QUESTIONS

"There are four outstanding questions which the college men or woman of today or the high school student may ask regarding the Bible; they are 'What is the Bible? Where did it come from? Is it a reliable record? and How should it be studied or interpreted?' They have a perfect right to ask these questions.

"Such questions are not a symptom of religious decay, but of religious growth, but if not answered satisfactorily, may lead to religious decay. There are two realms of reality, the physical and the spiritual, and the spiritual is every whit as real as the physical. Science deals with the physical and religion deals with the spiritual. They do not conflict."

Obregon's Chief Aide Tells of Peaceful Conditions in Republic

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, June 21.—Conditions in Mexico are improving steadily and the country is now as peaceful and law-abiding as can be desired, according to Gen. M. Perez Trevino, chief of staff to President Obregon, who has been a visitor here for several days. Gen. Trevino has departed for Calexico and after returning here in a few days, will leave for Mexico City.

"Many people thought the retirement of Gov. Cantu would result in great injury to business and agriculture," the general said. "Such has not been the case. Prosperity has increased normally and conditions are satisfactory.

"The growing friendship between Mexicans and Americans is resulting in an increasing business between the two countries. It is to our mutual benefit. The American Commission on Recognition of Mexico was cordially received in Mexico City and is considering in all friendliness questions involved."

Gen. Trevino declared himself in favor of trade excursions, many of which has visited Mexico in past months, saying that they resulted in better understanding and an increase of business between Mexico and the United States.

Four years ago Gen. Trevino was a resident of San Diego.

Whittier Will Give Benefit to Aid Band Fund

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

WHITTIER, June 21.—One of the largest benefits ever planned for the Whittier State School is that to be given Friday evening at the Scenic Theater when the various organizations of the city will unite to present a program in aid of the band fund for the school. Two years ago, the musicians lost their instruments in a fire at the school and the school accordingly has been without a band.

One of the numbers to be presented by the boys themselves is the Anvil Chorus from Il Trovatore, when one hundred voices will sing this celebrated song, with a "striking" accompaniment on fifty anvils. This number is put on under the direction of Prof. Harrold de Grosse, instructor in vocal music at Whittier High School.

The Whittier Men's Chorus, thirty strong, will have two or more numbers on the program, with Ivan Knox, accompanist, and Mrs. Faye Hazzard, violinist. Prof. Howard L. Hockett, member of the faculty of Whittier college will direct the chorus.

The Elks' Municipal Band will furnish several numbers, and the Lions, Rotarians and other organizations will each add their stunt to a program that promises to eclipse in novelty and entertaining features, any programs yet presented by the mouunity.

FORMER SHERIFF SUED AFTER CAR SEIZURE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, June 21.—Former Sheriff Newell has been made defendant in a court action here filed by Richard Richey and the New Amsterdam Casualty Company. Richey asserts that, as a result of a suit in which his father was involved and which he lost, Newell confiscated a Chevrolet truck belonging to Richey, Jr., in which his father had no interest whatever. The plaintiff declares that the truck, which was not yet entirely paid for, was earning him $8 a day, and that after the confiscation he was unable to procure another for thirty days, wherefore he is suing for $931.56. Richey will be represented by Edward West, Deputy District Attorney.

Marshal's Aide Held on Charge of Robbing Man

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, June 21.—Otto Reber, Assistant City Marshal of Brawley, was in the County Jail tonight in default of bail of $2500 following his arrest on a charge of robbing William Ivory, a negro laborer. The negro asserted the officer had stopped him on the county highway near Calexico and took $50 from him.

Reber denied the charge. He said that he was driving along the road and met Ivory driving a car in excess of the speed limit. He said he stopped and ordered the negro to report to police headquarters at Calexico, and that when the negro made a move as if to draw a gun, he searched him.

The officer has had a clear record and police officials refused to believe the charge against him. Reber was in the Navy for twenty years before coming to the valley.

ORANGE PLANS ELKS LODGE

Antlered Order Seeks Charter; Propose to Erect Clubhouse in Business Section

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ORANGE, June 21.—Formation of an Elks Lodge in this city, which ultimately will result in the purchase of property for erection of a clubhouse, was voted at a meeting last night of members of the order in this district.

The resolution to form a lodge passed without a dissenting voice. The meeting was called following a movement to purchase downtown property for a clubhouse site. An option had been obtained on the property which included a large two-story dwelling. At the meeting last night, however, opinion was divided as to the purchase of this property until after preliminary details toward the formation of the lodge had been worked out.

A committee consisting of T. H. Elijah, Fred Baier and Leon Shadel was named to circulate a petition for names of those desiring to become members. This work will be delayed until application forms are received from Elks headquarters at Chicago. When at least fifty names are obtained, the application form will be returned to the exalted ruler who will then forward it to the State association for approval or rejection. If favorable, the list of applicants will be forwarded to the nearest Elks order, which is Santa Ana, for approval.

A lodge here, it was stated, would start with a membership of almost 100. Elks in this district at present are members of the Santa Ana lodge. K. E. Watson, local Elk, and V. D. Johnson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, were named charman and secretary, respectively, of the new order.

AVIATORS REPLENISH FUEL WHILE IN AIR

Capt. Lowell Smith and Lieut. John B. Richter

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, June 21. — Two Army air officers at Rockwell Field here have just completed an aerial refueling system by which they hope to make a continuous flight for four days and four nights. The men are Capt. Lowell Smith and Lieut. John B. Richter, shown in the picture.

A De Haviland plane has been especially arranged for the flight. Other planes will fly above the nonstop aviators and replenish their gas supply by means of a tube dropped into the gas tank of the lower plane. Food supplies will be transmitted in a similar way. The flight is one of several record-breaking stunt trips planned and executed by officers at Rockwell Field.

IMPERIAL COUNTY PRODDED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, June 21.—"There are errors in methods and systems and in the personnel existing in the government of Imperial county," asserted W. D. Hammond, expert auditor of Los Angeles, in a report made to the Imperial county grand jury.

Hammond has been investigating the conduct of county officers for several weeks. The errors in methods could be corrected by the officers themselves, declared Hammond's report, but the errors in personnel could be remedied only by removal from office or recall. The auditor did not designate which officers, in his opinion, should be removed.

Hammond's report urged closer scrutiny by the Supervisors of claims against the county and also cautioned the County Auditor to watch the expense items more carefully.

"It is too hard to get money into the county treasury and too easy to get it out," asserted Hammond in his report. "There is too great a waste and expense in the road matters. The remedy for this would be to place the road expenditures under control of the County Engineer and let all road work to the lowest bidder.

"This one-sided criticism is unfair to the officials," said Hammond in closing his report. "I recommend, therefore, that the grand jury summon the various county officers and give them a chance to explain some of the conditions that we have discovered. In this way the systems of operation in the offices might be materially improved."

CUT-OFF TO HARBOR FOR LONG BEACH

Union Pacific Will Put in Spur Line, Beginning at Signal Hill

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LONG BEACH, June 21.—Successful termination of an effort by Long Beach, begun three years ago, to obtain a Union Pacific cut-off to Los Angeles Harbor, was made known in a report received by City Manager Windham today from W. H. Comstock, general manager of the Union Pacific.

The cut-off has been approved by President Carl Gray and the Union Pacific directors and construction authorized at an estimated cost of $600,000.

The new line will branch off from the present main line in the Signal Hill district at California avenue and Arabella street, following Arabella street to American avenue, thence to Chestnut avenue, and thence southwest to Terminal Island in Los Angeles Harbor. Over this line, the Union Pacific will operate all freight trains, the present line being used only for passenger traffic. It is expected that the Union Pacific will use part of the old right of way to build a passenger terminal.

It is believed there will be an exodus of Japanese ranchers from Imperial Valley when the new law takes effect. The law relating to foreign language schools does not affect the valley.

MAY RAISE LIMIT

Possibility of Taller Buildings at Long Beach Looms

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, June 21.—The Long Beach City Planning Commission is said to approve removal of the present hight limit, to permit erection of twelve-story buildings in any part of the city except districts restricted to homes.

The likelihood that the limit will soon be removed became known today, following application by Bradfield & Canterburg, realtors, to erect a twelve-story building at Ocean Boulevard and Third street. The structure, estimated to cost $2,000,000, would be an office building.

The application was placed before the Planning Commission yesterday, and a majority of the individual members of the commission stated today that they are in favor of removing the limit to permit erection of taller buildings.

They include Charles Alexander, Master Councilor; Richard Clark, Senior Councilor, and George Potter, Junior Councilor. Installation of officers will take place Monday evening. The De Molay order is close to the end of its first year here. It was the first chapter in this district and has been the mother to a number of new chapters which have recently arisen in the district.

Ocean Breeze Uncovers Pocket and Venice Officer Does His Duty.

[By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.]

VENICE, June 21.—It was an ill wind that blew in over the Pacific last night and opened the coat of E. N. Brown of this city, exposing to the wary eyes of Officer Ludlow an asserted pint bottle of gin. He was escorted to the jail.

Brown cast a lingering glance at the container which was taken from him as he counted out $50 to insure his appearance before Police Judge Rennie tomorrow afternoon. He was arrested near Center street and Ocean Front.

TULARE PUT IN QUANDARY BY OPINION

Officials Are in Doubt as to Their Duties Toward Former Officials

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VISALIA, June 21.—Tulare county officials have been thrown into a quandary by reports of Atty. Gen. U. S. Webb's opinion that the State law effecting county horticultural commissioners and their assistants is unconstitutional. Should this affect Tulare county, Commissioner Frank R. Brann and more than twenty deputies and inspectors will be thrown out of work. Attorney Frank Lamberson, special counsel for county supervisors, has wired for a copy of the opinion and until it is received no definite action will be taken.

Auditor W. J. Hirni is understood to be in doubt about issuing warrants for salaries covering this office on July 1, but it is expected that by that time more definite knowledge of the opinion will be available.

Lamberson stated that he was of the opinion that it would make little difference in Tulare county and in the event that Brann and his corps were released, the Board of Supervisors had power to reemploy Brann as an employee and not an officer. He further declared: "I have always regarded the county horticultural commissioner as an employee and not as officer as his duties are different. Besides the Board has power to employ someone to take action against noxious weeds, plant pests, etc."

CLASS IS GRADUATED

Huntington Park Commencement Attended by Many

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, June 21. The graduating exercises of the Huntington Park city schools were conducted tonight in the Huntington Park Union High School auditorium before an audience of more than 1000 persons. The class consisted of 179 graduates, the largest number in the history of the school. The grammar school orchestra gave a selection during the entrance of the graduates. The audience sang the "Star Spangled Banner," which was followed by the invocation by Rev. S. S. Sampson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The "Schubert Serenade" was sung by the Girls' Glee Club of the school.

Dr. George P. Taubman, pastor of the Christian Church at Long Beach, delivered the annual address, being followed by a violin solo by Valma Dutwiller. The class rendered its class song, the diplomas were presented and the benediction pronounced by Rev. N. Zulch, pastor of the First Christian Church.

PUTS UP FIGHT WHEN SEIZED ON OCEAN WALK

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, June 21.—When officers endeavored to place C. Mally under arrest late last night on the ocean front walk he immediately became pugilistic and was arrested only after a fight, according to police. He is being held in default of $100 bail to appear before Police Judge Walter Rennie tomorrow, charged with disturbing the peace, resisting an officer and being under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

RENEW SEWER FARM FIGHT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, June 21.—Promise of a new chapter in the old battle between the Fresno Irrigation District and the city over the municipal sewer farm was seen today in a decision of Superior Judge Strother, who enjoined the district from levying a tax on the sewer farm or claiming any interest in it.

A temporary restraining order was granted by Judge Strother several months ago to prevent the irrigation district from selling at auction the sewage farm property for assessments and penalties that had been levied against it amounting to $972.52.

The decision of the lower court will not be accepted as final by the district, according to George L. Swendsen, district manager. The case will be taken to the Supreme Court, he said today, after being informed of the result of the hearing.

The land was given assessed valuation in 1921 of $64,000. During that year the board of directors of the irrigation district levied an assessment of $1.53 per $100 valuation to pay organization expenses of the district and principal and interest on outstanding bonds.

The amount was not paid by the city and a 10 per cent penalty was added Aug. 1, 1922. The property was listed for sale Aug. 28, 1922 when the temporary restraining order was issued.

New Policemen Uniforms Make Burbank Shine

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, June 21.—Main street in Burbank today is busy admiring the splendor of the new police uniforms. The officers are wearing military suits, adorned in outstanding collars, stars, wheels and Sam Brown belts. Visored caps and brown leggings give a smart touch to the suits.

The star on the cap is the star of hope, one officer asserted. Another officer says he is wearing a guiding star.

The wheel insignia on the motorcycle officer's coat signifies brains and the walnut traced on the gold badge means that the force is after the nuts, it is said by the officers.

DAIRYMEN TO MEET AT VENTURA TUESDAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, June 21.—Of interest to Oxnard dairymen will be the meeting to be held in Ventura Tuesday at the Courthouse. Matters vitally affecting the dairy industry will come before the dairymen. Some of the most important matters that will be taken up are the adoption of by-laws and perfection of an organization, discussion of the tuberculous free area, Cow Testing Association for Ventura county, election of officers for the ensuing year and milk inspection for the county. There is possibility of having an assistant farm adviser. An attempt is being made to have present Dr. Keef of the Department of Agriculture to speak on the matter of a tuberculous free area.

LACK OF BLOOMS WILL HIT HONEY OUTPUT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VENTURA, June 21.—This year's honey crop will be the poorest in ten years, according to Bee Inspector Marks, who inspected apiaries in the county this week. Bees are in poor condition, and the scarcity of bloom will cause this season to be the poorest since 1913. Bees will do well to fill for winter without feeding and diseased colonies, naturally weak, will succumb under existing conditions and be robbed out this spreading contagion, Marks said. This condition alone is likely to wipe out a number of apiaries before spring.

CHRISTIE COMING HOME

COMEDY PRODUCER IS DUE FROM FOREIGN TRIP

By Grace Kingsley

Having seen all the famous places in Europe and decided that a few of them would do all right as backgrounds for a couple of his comedies, Al Christie, kingpin comedy maker, is cutting short his vacation abroad and is starting home this week to resume active charge of his comedy studio, where work on the new productions for fall release has already begun.

He sailed from Cherbourg a week sooner than he had planned in order to attend the opening of the Motion-Picture Exposition, for one thing, and for another he just couldn't wait any longer to start on the direction of a big special comedy about which he is very enthusiastic.

It is Mr. Christie's intention to make several comedies abroad but these will not be made until next summer, when he will take several of the comedy stars from home and make one comedy in London, one in Scotland and one with a Parisian setting.

While abroad the producer made a speed record for points of interest visited. He visited the leaning tower in Pisa, a dog show at Cardiff, Wales, the Louvre and, oh, a lot of other places in Paris, and took a motor trip through the South of France, as well as giving London the once-over.

Two new pictures for the coming year's series are already started. Dorothy Devore is starring in one of these, a comedy with the Pacific fleet of warships for a setting. Jimmie Adams is starring in the other picture, a comedy of oil wells. Neal Burns's latest release is "Back to the Woods," while Bobby Vernon's last appearance in the current series will be in "Plump Crazy."

Young Doug is Groom'ng

Young Doug Fairbanks is grooming for his picture career by going in for all sorts of athletic stunts, and also by getting acquainted around the Lasky studio. His enthusiasm reminds one of his famous father. In fact, it looks as though young Doug's work is going to be a sort of second edition of his father's.

The jitney Doug, 13 years old, visits his father frequently, and is entertained by the elder Fairbanks and by Mary Pickford at luncheons and at games. He is very fond of Miss Pickford, and she of him. He and his dad play tennis together, and the elder Doug says that the younger Doug is a whizz at the game.

The young star has annexed a boy pal already, or rather, the boy has annexed him. The youngster is Bob Gillette, two years younger than Doug, who fairly worships young Fairbanks. They don't know what they are going to do with him when Doug gets to work, but think they may have to put him in pictures, too.

He is a prize athlete already, is young Doug, even if the place where he won his laurels is only the small town in New Jersey where Doug formerly lived. He won a cup as the best all-around juvenile athlete, and he has kept it for two successive years.

The other day young Doug was visiting the Lasky studio. Frank Campbell, whom the boy knew when he was a very little fellow, but who didn't remember him, was standing by as Doug made a flying leap from one cabin roof to another on a set.

"Well, if that isn't like Doug Fairbanks!" ejaculated Frank.

"Good reason why! I am Doug Fairbanks," laughed the youngster. "Don't you remember me, Mr. Campbell?"

Campbell looked puzzled a minute. Then he exclaimed: "Well, I'm blessed! You surely have a memory as well as a gift for hopping."

Vacation will soon be over for the young star, however, as he will shortly start work under Joseph Henabery's direction, probably either in the original story which Julian Street has written for him, or in "Tom Sawyer."

May Play Anna Christie

Pauline Lord, New York star, may possibly play the name role of "Anna Christie," according to word given out yesterday from the Ince Studios. A film test has already been made and is expected to be forwarded to Thomas H. Ince within a few days.

However, it is known that Blanche Sweet is a strong contestant for the role. Decision will be made within a fortnight.

Bull Montana In It

Bull Montana isn't to be allowed to lose his comedy cunning just because Hunt Stromberg is taking a short vacation from production. Stromberg has loaned Montana to Metro, and Bull will play a comedy role in "Held to Answer," which Harold Shaw is directing.

Ralph Bushman With Keaton

Ralph E. Bushman, son of Francis X. Bushman, has signed with the Buster Keaton Company to play a prominent male role in the comedian's new seven-reel production. The picture has not yet been given a name, but it will be a Kentucky feud story, and will be a costume comedy drama of before Civil War days.

All-Women Film Company

A motion picture company composed entirely of women has been launched. It is the only one in America or in the world probably. The company is headed by Lule Warrenton, and is working at San Diego, at the Sawyer-Lubin studios.

Mrs. Warrenton, who has been on the stage and in motion pictures since childhood, is president and general director. Her chief aids are Mrs. A. B. E. Shute, Mrs. Katherine Chesnaye and Miss Edith Kendall, all of whom come to the screen with no other motion picture experience than that supplied by the educational department of the Palmer Photoplay Corporation. Mrs. Shute is a novelist, whose first book was published about twelve years ago. Mrs. Chesnaye is a short story writer, the wife of a British officer, and a world traveller who spent six years in Central Africa. Miss Kendall is also a writer.

Preparations are on the way for making a large regular program of feature releases, educationals and other films.

Paul Swan to Dance

St. Ritus Benda believes he has discovered two geniuses in the way of young dancers. Just by way of putting them to the test, they will appear at the first seasonal recital of his pupils to be given Saturday night at his studio. The young ladies' names are Betty Faulkner and Valcois O'Leary.

The recital itself will reveal several other interesting dancing features, among which is Harry Loees's interpretation of Cadman's Indian Suite and Wolf Dance. Paul Swan, noted dancer and sculptor, who is a co-worker of Benda's, will be guest of honor, and is to present a rhythmic pantomime.

Grace Darmond Flits

Having completed her role in "Alimony," Grace Darmond is to take a trip to San Francisco, where she will make personal appearances at a number of theatres.

PLAYDOM

WILL FILM "DOROTHY"

MARY PICKFORD SOON TO START NEW FEATURE

By Edwin Schallert

Now that her feature "Rosita," as it has been finally titled—is all but completed, Mary Pickford is arranging her plans for the production of her long-contemplated screen version of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." As a matter of fact, she is even now deciding on a director, and will probably announce his name and the definite date or starting within a week or two.

Miss Pickford has been considering "Dorothy Vernon" as a potential feature for all of a year. She would have made it ere this, only, after she engaged Ernst Lubitsch as a director, he felt that he could not make it as satisfactorily as some other director, and so they agreed to do the Spanish story instead.

Miss Pickford has settled on a series of big productions and will likely make these at the rate of two a year. "Dorothy Vernon" will probably even surpass "Rosita" in the lavishness of its costumes and settings.

Meanwhile, Miss Pickford has found time to assist Jack Pickford in the preparation of an original story, the plot of which has to do with a mountain-climber. Marion Jackson collaborated on the script with Miss Pickford and her brother. Jack plans soon to commence work on this picture so that if possible he can accompany his wife, Marilynn Miller, the musical comedy star, back to New York in September.

Mary Philbin's Next

After she finishes working in "Against the Grain," the Frank Borzage picture, Mary Philbin will probably appear in "My Mamie Rose" adapted from the novel of that name for Universal. The scenario is being prepared by Leonore J. Coffee, who is the author of "Havoc" and "Daytime Wives" recent features.

"Ruggles" on Way

Directors simply will not take a chance on locations for red-blooded dramas looking phoney any longer. For that reason, among others, James Cruze, who spent several months exploring Utah for scenery in "The Covered Wagon" some months ago, has built a town for his forthcoming feature, "Ruggles of Red Gap," near San Francisco. He wasn't satisfied with doing the exteriors for the film on the Famous Players-Lasky studio, and he and his company have set out for the setting in the north. Included among the principal players are Edward Horton, Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson, Fritzi Ridgeway, Charles Ogle and Louise Dresser.

NORMA TALMADGE AT GRAUMAN'S MONDAY

Flapper, vs. middle age and the latter wins in "She Loves and Lies," which comes to Grauman's Third Street Theatre Monday.

The peculiar twist of this story is the fact that Norma Talmadge plays both roles and not only wins for herself—but against herself.

"She Loves and Lies" is a lively serio-comedy punctuated here and there with deep emotional moments which Miss Talmadge understands so well how to portray. Conway Tearle plays opposite Miss Talmadge.

ORPHEUM ANNIVERSARY

The coming week will mark the twelfth anniversary of the Orpheum in its present home. Every act has been hand-picked. Fannie Brice, held for her fourth week—an epoch in itself in Orpheum affairs—is matched by Snow, Columbus and Harriet Hoctor, a dance trio, and Florence Tempest and Homer Dickinson, a combination marking Broadway's smartest couple. Handsome decorations and a gala atmosphere throughout the house will be marked and noticeable features.

STARS IN REVIVAL OF EARLY PICTURE

Norma Talmadge

"Oh, East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," wrote Rudyard Kipling in one of his inspired moods. But in "The Forbidden City," coming to the Symphony Sunday, East, interpreted by Norma Talmadge, marries the West, as represented by Thomas Meighan. It is a tale of China, of the mandarins, of mystery, romance and pathos intermingled.

The story of "The Forbidden City" was written by George Scarborough and directed by Sidney Franklin, who also directed Norma's great success, "Smilin' Through."

Picturization of Riley Poem at California

Harry Garson, when asked which of the numerous screen productions he has personally directed was his favorite, said:

"From a purely personal angle I experienced more genuine pleasure in filming 'An Old Sweetheart of Mine' than any picture I have ever been associated with. The James Whitcomb Riley poem, which is the basis of the production, is perhaps the most beloved of any native poem. There is something about Riley's writings that get right down to the hearts of the people and in nothing this Hoosier singer has penned is there such a wealth of homely sentiment and actual romance as 'An Old Sweetheart of Mine.'

"I know that when I set about filming it I put into the picture all of the boyishness of my own young life . . . and from the praise that has come for the production from every place it has been shown, I guess the life of every boy is pretty much the same—the reactions of one represent those of hundreds of thousands."

Much of the success of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" is due to the acting of the cast, which includes Elliott Dexter, Helen Jerome Eddy, Lloyd Whitlock, Barbara Worth, Pat Moore, little Mary Jane Irving and others.

Local theatergoers will appreciate the unusual character of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" when it is shown at the California Theater next week. It is a motion-picture production a bit out of the ordinary, a screen offering that doesn't rely upon any cut-and-dried formulae for its success.

People and Their Troubles

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

Blames the Pictures

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I wonder if it has ever occurred to our ministers, our Mayor and police department that there might be some connection between the present wave of crime and a certain play which has been playing to capacity houses at one of our local theaters for the past two months or more.

In this play crime of every description is presented in the most alluring manner. It might justly be called the apotheosis of crime. Contempt, too, for all our laws and our government is set forth in the plainest anarchistic language. The bandit chief who swashbuckles through the performance, announcing among other things, to the great delight of the audience, that he has "never seen a woman he wanted that he didn't take her" (there's your kidnaping, you see,) pictures murder and all the rest of the list as fascinating accomplishments in whose performance he is the wonderful hero.

Now why should not weak, ignorant, brainless youngsters with natural criminal instincts and no capacity for reasoning, be influenced, by this dashing hero who breaks every law, both human and divine, with such glory and eclat, to go out and do likewise? He himself says, when complimented upon the cleverness of some particularly atrocious line of conduct, "Oh, I learned that in the movies." It is the logical result of such teaching, of course.

This being true, why was this play permitted to go on? Was there no one in Los Angeles with sense enough to protest, no one with authority to put a stop to it? Apparently not. The public with its usual acceptance of anything and everything that entertains, was delighted with its thrills and its funny man. And said funny man's wit, by the way, consisted absolutely in nothing but swearing, in downright profanity. Why is it that an audience always goes wild when an actor says "damn" or "hell" or "My God?" What is there so unprofanously funny about these familiar expressions that an audience should slap its knees and roar in delirious ecstasy over them?

What is the psychology of it all? And who can answer as to why our public officials, or private citizens, or club women should permit such dangerous propaganda to go on in our midst unchallenged and unchecked.

EMILY WOODRUFF.

It's Appreciated

LONG BEACH, June 18.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I know that you are a busy man, and can spare but few moments on matters of little consequence. I do, however, want you to stop long enough just now to accept my sincere thanks for the helpful paper you send to our home each morning. We all "swear" by The Times, and my wife can not start the day right without seeing your paper.

I am writing you this in particular to thank you for the two fine articles that you published in yesterday's edition, that by Mr. Thomas Woolwine and the one by Dr. Bailey of the University of Southern California. Those are great, and I have read them with the greatest pleasure and profit.

I am done. Again thanking you for the paper and articles I am,

W. M. MAIR.
Supervisor of Attendance, Long Beach Schools.

P. S.: Say, Mr. Editor, why not give us a few more special articles by such men as Woolwine and Bailey, if there are any more like them?

Save Us: Oh Save Us

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I am writing this letter to compliment the governing body of your great city on the manly and righteous stand it has taken to protect the pigeons in Pershing Square. I read with interest and delight the account of the cinching of the old gentleman for committing the unpardonable offense of feeding the birds in the square, which is contrary to the peace and dignity of Los Angeles and honor of the Caesars. How anyone can sink so low as to be guilty of the diabolical crime of feeding pigeons is beyond me. And to think that this old man, lost to all sense of right, should be fined but a paltry $5. What did the magistrate mean by such leniency? The arch criminal should have been drawn and quartered, his ear split and his arm run through it. Gentlemen of the governing board of Los Angeles, don't be discouraged because of the sneers and gibes of ill tempered and jealous people of the other cities that have no such righteous laws to protect pigeons. Let them sneer and poke fun at you. Do your duty as you see it. If you don't see what you want ask for it (of the Kindergarten class.) My dear sirs you have done gloriously, but allow me to suggest that more and stringent laws be passed. I notice with regret that some of the birds will alight in the lap of a baby sitting on its mother's knee and the babe will stroke its glossy plumage. This is awful. Let me implore you gentlemen to pass a law to send the offender to the hoosegow. This will work a hardship on the mother who will have to accompany the babe to give it nurse, but what of it? Our pigeons must be protected. Bear with me further, gentlemen while I suggest that no one be allowed to look at those birds, for I grieve to note that many inconsiderate people actually stare those innocent things out of countenance.

Gentlemen there is another matter I wish to call to your attention. While in the park this morning a man from Fresno, with a copy of The Times in his hand and a finger pointed to the item quoted at the head of this article. Well this gentleman was mad clear through and he used language; much language. I never knew before that there were so many words in my mother tongue. And adjectives: He used all in the English, and then commenced on the Chinese vocabulary, directed to our beloved governing body. I longed to punch his head but I am of a mild and gentle nature and so I restrained myself; also he is much the larger. If you say so I'll give you his address. The idea of a Fresnoan presuming to criticise our great and glorious governing body. Yours for the ill-treated, downtrodden pigeons of Pershing Square.

E. J. LEWIS.

Need Vigorous Action

GLENDALE, June 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Every good citizen of Los Angeles county, of whatever religious or political affiliation, will rejoice in the wholesome agitation initiated by the churches of our great metropolis for better law and order. No worthy reforms are ever wrought without preceding periods of vigorous agitation, an unrelenting stirring up of the dry bones of apathy among the people to be affected. This must be carried on largely by a few determined individuals who possess the courage of their convictions and who are willing to sacrifice popularity, if they have ever had any, among the enemies of society. More power to those who have assumed this responsibility.

What Los Angeles county needs is a Theodore Roosevelt—a real leader of men, who is big enough and courageous enough to take hold of the crime demon and crush the life out of it and make no apologies for so doing. A man like that would not have to play politics, for he would automatically fortify himself behind a solid wall of good citizenship, which in every civilized community is to be found overwhelmingly in the majority when it comes to a battle of the ballots.

Temporizing with law violators, using the soft pedal in dealing with criminals and with criminal sympathizers, will never make crime unpopular. Before juries will convict promptly without cringing and recommending extreme leniency the public conscience must be aroused by the vigorous, zealous actions of public officials. One determined public prosecutor, with fire in his eye and an honest-to-God backbone can, inspire the whole community to do its duty in dealing with the criminal element.

Question: In blasting, what is the largest amount of explosive ever used? K. L. C.

Answer: Twenty, thirty and event fifty thousand pounds of explosive are frequently used in one charge. The largest single blast of which we can find a record was that used in the blowing up of Flood Rock at Hell Gate, in East River, New York, October 10, 1885, when 283,000 pounds of explosive was fired.

Q.: What is the predominating religion of the Egyptians? C. G.

A.: Ninety-two per cent of the 9,000,000 people who live in Egypt are of the Mohammedan faith. The remaining 8 per cent are mostly Christians and Jews.

A.: This term is a corruption of the phrase "God by with ye," used in Elizabethan times as a valedictien.

Q.: What is the best season of the year to "deaden" a tree? O. I.

A.: A tree may be most easily killed without the annoyance of sprouting from the roots by cutting out a band of its bark all around its trunk at some time during midsummer. If it is so cut in spring, fall or winter, it is likely to sprout from the roots.

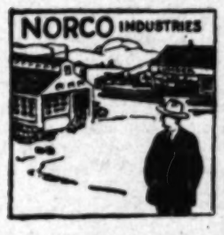
A.: The Gospel of Saint Matthew, Chapter 8, Verses 14-15, describes the healing by Jesus of the mother of Reter's wife, who "lay sick of a fever" at Peter's house. This indicates that Peter was married.

Q.: How did Canada get its name? D. C. O.

A.: The name of Canada is due to a mistake. Canada was the native Indian word for village. When the French explorers first sailed up the St. Lawrence, they pointed to the land and asked its name. The natives who accompanied them misunderstood. They thought the explorers were asking about a group of wigwams on the shore, and they replied Canada—meaning village.

When that Missouri Farmer Bought a NORCO Farm

—he did something that every California young man, every wage earner, every investor will do well to imitate. This farmer from the Corn Belt came to NORCO. He was deliberate. He did not hurry. He looked NORCO FARMS over carefully. When he had done so, he spent a night and a day thinking it over and then BOUGHT a nice little NORCO FARM. We can show you the farm. Come and see it and you will learn WHY this farmer preferred NORCO FARMS to Corn Belt farms.



He Found NORCO A REAL Place

—not a bare tract of land with improvements ON PAPER ONLY. Not a PROMISE of things to come, but farms, factories, NORCO City, an Industrial NORCO right on the spot. The concrete works, planing mill, machine shops, garage; big department store—all working for NORCO farmers. He found that ANYBODY can come to NORCO, pay a small amount down on a fruit farm tract or chicken ranch, and

Save 25 Per Cent on Costs

—of building material and labor in placing his farm on a productive basis. Some of the farms now covered with bearing fruit trees are already producing a good income. Most fertile soil and OCEANS OF WATER, a fine climate and a

Good Market at the Door

Such a combination cannot be beaten. Here he need not wait for rain. He can MAKE IT RAIN by irrigation at ANY time his crops need rain. He will never suffer either from lack of rain or a flood. Neither will he have to shovel snow, but CROPS WILL GROW EVERY DAY OF THE YEAR AT NORCO.

Five Acres at NORCO Beats 40 In the East

NORCO simply wants the opportunity of PROVING the above statement. The Missouri farmer saw the truth of it. That's one reason why he bought here. NORCO valley raises ANYTHING that grows. Remember that. If you are a wage earner, a clerk, Easterner or an investor, don't waste another week, don't spend a dollar for a home ANYWHERE until you SEE NORCO FARMS, the Community—City and Farms—now building just as you like it. Over 8 square miles of mellow fertility in beautiful NORCO valley, which lies west of Riverside and north of Corona. Only a few miles from the Government Horticultural Experiment Station.

A Farm for YOU at $450 Per Acre

Easy terms, NORCO men and machinery to help you. No need of buying expensive equipment. NORCO supplies the help. No danger of loss from lack of experience. NORCO helps you in every way. Live in NORCO with a modern home, gas, water, electricity, ice, telephones, free school bus. Don't wait. Daily transportation from our office to NORCO.

JAMES F. HERNDON BURIED BY MASONS

Funeral services for James F. Herndon, 50 years of age, formerly of Dallas, Tex., who died here the 19th inst., were conducted yesterday under direction of the Knights Templar, at Forest Lawn Cemetery. Mr. Herndon leaves a widow and a son, Randell Herndon, both of Los Angeles.

OTHER WOMAN LOVED BY WIFE

the court expressed the belief that Mr. Johnson is the father of the child. Community property in Venice, valued at about $10,000 is to be divided equally between husband and wife. Mr. Johnson is district cashier of the Prudential Life Insurance company.

Mrs. Johnson declared at her home shortly after her husband was granted the divorce that she felt no bitterness nor resentment toward him for the things he had done and the unpleasant things he had charged during the trial. The existence of another woman was hinted at during the trial.

"When the Bible says 'what God hath joined together let no man put asunder' it means just that," said Mrs. Johnson when contending that it takes more than California law to divorce her from her husband. "Why, he is still with us. We set a place for him every night at the table. He is in our stories and prayers. He always will be. He'll be back soon. He can't stay away from this darling child. Just give him a chance to get away from the influence of his relatives and he'll soon be back with us. Our prayers will bring him back."

There was no sighing and weeping when she said this. She spoke as in an ordinary conversation—with conviction.

"You hinted that there is another woman," she was reminded. "Suppose that he should bring another woman—say it might be the very woman you suspect—when he comes to visit the child as the court decreed he could, what would be your attitude toward such a woman?"

"Why, there is only one thing to do," she replied quickly. "I'd certainly invite her in to sit down. You know what the Bible says: 'Whoesoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also.' Yes, I'd have to love her and treat her like a sister, because it is also written in the Scriptures: 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you.'

"Why should I hate her? She is fighting for his love just as hard as I am. But theirs is not love. Theirs is passion. I could not let the child go to their home if they married because there would be no love there."

"Do you say this merely because the Bible tells you such must be your conduct, or do you really feel this in your heart?" she was asked.

"I really feel it—and the Bible says so."

WAS A "WAR BRIDE"

Mrs. Johnson can still get a laugh out of life and her relations with her husband. She and her husband are both 37 years of age. They were married in 1918 after knowing each other but three weeks. She was a "war bride." She laughed when she told of the circumstances attendant upon their marriage.

"Mr. Johnson told me he had a terrible nightmare. He dreamed that he had been on the battle front in France. The Germans had captured him. It scared him so that he fell out of bed and hurt his foot badly. The next day after that we were married. He insisted that we get married then."

Mrs. Johnson will go to a school for missionaries next fall where she will study to become a missionary doctor.

"Now, don't say anything about my husband that isn't nice," she warned the reporter the last thing. "He's—well, I still love him!"

INDICTMENT IN FOLLETTE CASE HOLDS

Proposal to Set Charges Aside is Denied; Demurrer to be Heard 28th Inst.

A motion to set aside the grand jury indictment against Justice of the Peace Follette was yesterday denied by Superior Judge Reeve and the 28th inst. was set as the time for argument on the demurrers filed by Follette's attorneys as the next step of the defense.

The motion to throw out the indictment was based upon technicalities found in the paper, H. L. Geisler, attorney for Follette, asserted that the indictment did not conform to the legal requirements of the particular case involved. Judge Reeve held that the small differences pointed out in the indictment did not constitute sufficient grounds for withdrawal.

Following the denial of the motion the defense attorneys filed in the Superior Court a demurrer covering the same grounds. It is based upon the fact that the indictment names no particular public offense committed by Follette.

Carl V. Lindquist, in connection with whose asserted activities Follette was indicted, yesterday appeared before Judge Cole. His bail was reduced from $10,000 to $2000 with the consent both of defense and prosecuting attorneys.

Lindquist was arrested and indicted through his asserted activity in providing questionable bonds for several bunko men. Follette is accused of complicity in accepting the bonds.

Delinquent Tax Force Groomed for Collection

The field force of the Internal Revenue Department is being groomed for an intensive drive to begin July 1 on a variety of special delinquent taxes. Collector Rex Goodcell is mapping out plans.

A large number of such taxes are delinquent after the 30th inst. They include taxes on beach concessions, summer resorts, automobiles for hire; public exhibitions, taxes under the Harrison Narcotic Act on physicians, dentists, druggists, hospitals and wholesalers.

The force also will begin service of 2000 distraint warrants for the collection of delinquent taxes in other classes.

MRS. KEATON BACK IN FILMS

Former Natalie Talmadge, Who Gave Up Work For Home, Returns to Screen as Star For Husband

Natalie Talmadge is coming back. The sister of Norma and Constance Talmadge is returning to the screen but this time it is as Natalie Talmadge Keaton. She will play leads for Buster Keaton, the man for whom she gave up film stardom for a career of marriage.

Joseph M. Schenck yesterday announced that Mrs. Keaton will play the feminine lead in the five-reel comedy feature that "frozen-faced" Buster is preparing to start work upon.

Natalie Talmadge Keaton

Her return to the screen denotes a revocation of her determination to devote herself wholly to her husband's home. It was a sacrifice, this decision, for in retiring from the screen she gave up an offer calling for a salary of more than $100,000 a year.

ANXIOUS TO RETURN

Now, with Baby Joe more than a year old, Natalie Keaton has felt the urge of the old life returning. In her two years of married retirement she could not altogether curb the recurring hunger for "just one more fling before the camera." Young Buster Keaton II is now old enough to intrust to his nurse in daytime. And the return to England of Margaret Leahy left Papa Buster without a leading lady. Natalie asked for the place.

Buster reminded Natalie of her promise to give up screen life. And like a good wife Natalie tried. But day after day she, with the Keaton heir and "Ma" Talmadge, could be seen on the Joseph M. Schenck lot, where Constance and Norma have been making their big costume dramas. It was too much for Natalie.

When Buster's need of a new feminine lead became acute she played her trump card. She went to Lou Anger, executive manager of Buster's studio, and prevailed upon Anger to intercede for her. Between the two of them Buster was won over.

To make it more of a family affair, Baby Joe is to have a part, too, in Buster's next picture. This will be his second film appearance, his debut having been made with Constance Talmadge in her forthcoming Joseph M. Schenck release, "Dulcy."

Filming of Buster's new feature comedy probably will start the middle of next week, with Jack Flystone directing.

BILL HART COMING BACK

Noted Western Character Film Actor to Start Work on Paramount Picture Soon

William S. Hart is to return to the screen.

After nearly two years of retirement, the silent drama's most famous Western character will begin work within the next thirty days on the first of a series of Paramount Pictures, according to an announcement made today by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

According to this same announcement, Hart will be starred in the rugged, out-of-door roles that he has made famous in the past. Several Western and Alaskan stories have already been secured for him and from this group will be selected the story in which Hart will make his initial reappearance on the screen.

All of the forthcoming Hart pictures will be produced at Paramount's West Coast Studio. Before his retirement, the star maintained his own studio but under the new agreement between producer and star Hart decided to take advantage of the more complete equipment and personnel of the larger studio.

"PAINT HORSE" TOO

Hart's famous "paint horse" will also return to the screen after two years of loafing in green pastures far away from the click of the camera and the glare of the klieg lights.

Jesse L. Lasky, in welcoming Hart back to active screen work, said:

"No announcement of a star's plans has ever given me as much personal pleasure as this good news that William S. Hart is to return to the screen. This beloved portrayer of one of America's finest characters holds a unique place in the hearts of the world audience. His return follows nearly two years of insistent demand from the public for that same return. It was this insistence that caused Mr. Hart to reconsider his previous decision to retire from the screen. He is coming back in answer to a popular demand in even finer pictures of that type that won him his lasting popularity."

ANNOUNCES DIVISION OF CITY BOARD

Committees to Supervise Drafting of New Charter; Dunlop Made Secretary

Robert M. Clarke, president of the Board of Freeholders, stated at last night's meeting, held at the City Hall, that he will announce early next week the fifteen committees into which the board will be divided for expediting the work of drafting a new city charter. As there are fifteen members of the board, each member will be a chairman of one of the committees. The complete list of committees and the charter-building work assigned to each is as follows:

Form of government with respect to constitution of membership in the City Council; form of government with respect to powers and duties of principal officials; corporate powers, duties and obligations; finance and revenue; borough government study and special assessment matters; public safety; education and recreation; City Planning and Art Commission, elections; Mayor and Council; departments of public works, harbor and public service; public utilities; legal departments; City Clerk, Auditor and Treasurer, and civil service and pensions.

At last night's meeting of the board, which was attended by twelve of the fifteen members, George H. Dunlop, former president of the Municipal League, was elected secretary of the board. He will receive a salary of $200 a month, and his offices will probably be in the rooms of the Supreme Court in the Pacific Finance Building, where the board and committees will probably hold their meetings, if President Clark can make the necessary arrangements with the State government. The board will meet next Thursday evening, probably in the Supreme Court rooms.

GLASS WILL PLAY LEAD IN MAYTIME

Schulberg Studio to Give Screen Version of Noted Musical Production

Gaston Glass has been chosen by R. P. Schulberg to play the male lead in the screen version of "Maytime" which goes into production at the Schulberg studios on July 1. Louis J. Gasnier will direct the picture.

This announcement was made late yesterday by the producer, who further stated that an all-star cast has been engaged to portray the well-known musical play. "Maytime" has had one of the most successful runs on the stage of any production of its kind. Its book and lyrics were by Rita Johnson Young, and the musical score by Sigmund Romberg.

Mr. Schulberg stated that the purchase of "Maytime" had cost him $75,000 and that the production will be of an elaborate nature. Although there has been no leading woman actually signed up to date, the producer says that Ethel Shannon is the most likely candidate.

Other players are being assembled, including William Norris, who created the role of "Matthew" in the original stage version of "Maytime," and who has already been signed by the Schulberg organization to enact the same role in the motion picture.

"Maytime" will be about seven or eight weeks in the making, the producer said.

WILL VOTE ON STREET WIDENING

Council to Provide for the Improvement of Tenth to 100-Foot Width

The final ordinance for the $6,000,000 opening and widening of Tenth street to 100 feet from the east to the west sections of the city, is scheduled to be enacted by the City Council next Thursday morning, after which the City Attorney and City Engineer will begin the preparation of condemnation suits to secure the property required to erect the new traffic artery.

Of the total estimated cost, the city will pay from general taxation $1,500,000, or one-fourth of the expense of the street opening, and the remainder will be paid from assessments on property in the assessment district adjacent to the improvement.

The City Council yesterday authorized an appropriation of $3000 to the City Engineer to employ additional engineers so that the condemnation suits can be filed at the earliest possible moment.

It is expected that the actual work will take three or four years to complete. Owners of only 16 per cent of the property in the large assessment district protested against the improvement, which is indorsed and urged by the Chamber of Commerce, Automobile Club of Southern California, Realty Board and other civic organizations.

DRAIN FUNDS ALLOWED

An appropriation of $15,000 was made yesterday by the City Council to pay for rights of way for the Slauson avenue storm drain which is to carry off storm waters from streets in the southwestern part of the city.

FINIS FOR LLOYD AND ROACH PACT

Association of Nine Years is Terminated

Star's Complete Staff is Also Released

Arrangement is for Mutual Advantage

The nine years of business association between Harold Lloyd and Hal Roach, the producer, came to a friendly termination yesterday.

This announcement was made by Roach and Lloyd following the signing of papers whereby Roach released the famous comedian from a contract which called for three more comedy productions.

The arrangement is said to have been agreed upon for the mutual advantage of both star and producer, and will in no way affect the releasing contract which Pathe Exchange, Inc., now holds with Lloyd. Elmer Pearson, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, who is now in Los Angeles, attended the conference which made Lloyd a free agent.

STAFF ALSO RELEASED

Lloyd's entire staff has been released by Mr. Roach and will immediately go over to the comedian, who is as yet unable to announce where he will start production on his own account.

Both Lloyd and Roach insist that there has been no split between them, but that the business separation is merely the result of an unavoidable need for expansion upon the part of both star and producer. During the making of Lloyd's latest picture, as yet untitled, Lloyd took up more than half the Roach studio, according to studio officials, and with the increased productions plan of Mr. Roach this would prove impossible in the future. The comedian is also faced with the necessity of finding room to expand.

Lloyd virtually has directed his own producing activities since he began the development of the so-called feature-length comedies, as Mr. Roach has had an increasing number of companies to supervise personally.

Therefore when the comedy star begins production on his own account he will have practically the entire staff which has worked with him in the screening of "Safety Last," and of his latest six-reel comedy.

Sam Taylor and Fred Newmeyer will continue with him as directors, Tim Whelan and Ted Wilde as "gag" men; Robert A. Golden as assistant director; Walter Lundin and Art Lloyd as staff cameramen; Gaylord Lloyd, Harold's brother, Roy Brooks, Charles Stevenson and Wallie Howe as actors. Jobyna Ralston, who has been substituted for Mildred Davis as Lloyd's leading woman since the star's marriage to Miss Davis, will also continue with the comedian.

FRASER TO BE MANAGER

William A. Fraser, Lloyd's uncle and business manager, will be general manager of the Lloyd company; J. L. Murphy will be production manager and Joe Reddy will direct publicity.

Roach is reported to have made an offer to release Lloyd several weeks ago, but arrangements attendant upon the new move have been hanging fire until yesterday. In consideration of the friendly relations which still exist between the producer and star, an arrangement for the interchange of players has been drawn up and approved.

The details of Lloyd's future plans probably will not be announced until the return of the star from New York, where he has gone on a belated honeymoon with Mildred Davis, his bride of a few months. He will be gone about four weeks. Meanwhile plans for his organization will move forward under the direction of Mr. Fraser.

Lloyd and Roach first became associated nine years ago when both were playing extra parts on the Universal lot. Lloyd was doing character parts, while Roach was at the time one of the hard-riding cowboys appearing in Universal western thrillers.

A few months after they became acquainted Roach raised money enough to start production on his own account. He invited Lloyd to go with him and offered him a salary of $40 a week.

Roach had discovered an Englishman whom he thought would be a great comedian and was starring him. Lloyd was assigned to play character parts. In the roles given to him Lloyd stood out so well that the producer decided to make him the star.

This association, which was concluded yesterday with the signing of the new agreement, saw the rapid rise of both producer and star in the motion-picture industry. Under its terms Lloyd made his more important comedies, including, "A Sailor Made Man," "Never Weaken," "Grandma's Boy," "Dr. Jack," "Safety Last," and his latest picture which is yet to be released.

SILENCE IS CHARGED IN CROSS SUIT

Husband Makes Refusal to Speak Complaint in Divorce Action

The asserted refusal by his wife to talk to him for six days was looked upon as evidence of abnormality and hysteria, by Roy D. Stone, who yesterday filed a cross-complaint asking divorce from his wife, Mary Stone, wealthy Osage Indian.

Some time ago Mrs. Stone filed a divorce suit against her husband, charging that he obtained $45,000 of her money and diverted it to his own uses. Mrs. Stone is said to command an income of $1000 a month from oil royalties on lands in the Osage Reservation in the Oklahoma oil fields.

Stone, in asserting his wife was subject to spells of hysteria, complained that she often threatened to kill herself and was unduly irrational, besides, he said, refusing to speak to him for six weeks.

On another occasion, according to Stone's complaint, his wife refused to observe the ancient rite of eating the Thanksgiving turkey, but caught the unoffending bird by the legs and cast it out the back door.

Police in Man Hunt Discover Bootlegger's Garage; Arrest Two Suspects

A man hunt which began with a burglar as the [illegible] ended yesterday in the discovery of a bootlegger's cache and [illegible] of thousands of counterfeit revenue labels in a [illegible] 1724½ Morton avenue.

The search for the burglar began yesterday morning after police had received a phone call from B. A. Baehr of 1720½ Morton avenue, who informed police that his home had been ransacked by a burglar whom he believed was still hiding in the house.

Detectives Vail and Culp of the flying squadron hurried out to the house but were unable to find the burglar. A newsboy, attracted to the scene by the speeding police car and the buzz of excitement, volunteered the information that he had seen a man leaving the house through a rear door just before the arrival of the detectives. The man had gone to a garage two doors away, the boy said.

The detectives proceeded to the garage. There they found Murray Lewis and Emil Uhmann apparently in deep slumber. They were snoring. The detectives found four cases of illicit gin and labels, a quantity of counterfeit revenue stamps and a suitcase containing some of the spurious labels.

Lewis and Uhmann were taken to the City Jail on charges of violating the Wright Act. They and the counterfeit stamps were carted away as evidence against the two men.

It is believed by the police that the two suspects acted as "lookouts" for bootleggers. They are believed to have taken their bootleg liquor from the garage to customers. The counterfeit labels on the bottles gave the product for high priced [illegible] real article.

Mr. Baehr told police that the burglar had taken a [illegible] cash and other articles from the house.
